PayPal and Setefi: Web Payments Agreement

Milan, 21 February 2014 – PayPal and Setefi, a company of the Intesa Sanpaolo Group specialising in the management of e-money payments, have reached an agreement that facilitates the sale of products and services online. PayPal is thus added to the payment systems accepted by MonetaWeb, Setefi's platform that manages payment collections for businesses and professionals operating in e-commerce. MonetaWeb customers using PayPal will be able to benefit from this payment method with no additional processing charge.

The PayPal payment experience is fast and straightforward, requiring just a few clicks of the mouse by simply entering the e-mail address and password. For sales merchants, it leads to an increase in sales and encourages customer loyalty. Available in 193 countries around the world, PayPal opens up new business horizons, including abroad.

"We are very pleased to enter into partnership with Setefi," said Angelo Meregalli, General Manager of PayPal Italia "as it is the market leader in e-payment management in Italy. There are already over 143 million active PayPal accounts globally. We believe that working with Setefi will allow us to further increase the use of this tool on the Italian market, by helping users understand its security and ease of use".

"The agreement with PayPal will allow our customers," added Maurizio Manzotti, Managing Director and General Manager of Setefi "to accept PayPal payments without changing their Web platform. Indeed, through MonetaWeb, Setefi will provide a single access for managing online payments as well as a full range of back office activities, from accounting to support. Setefi's strategy in e-commerce focuses upon making Monetaweb the key platform for the integrated management of all payment methods on the Internet".

PayPal

PayPal is the simple, fast and secure way to pay and to be paid online, via mobile devices and in sales outlets. The service provides the simplest way to send cash without sharing financial information, with the flexibility to pay by way of your own current account, credit card or through promotional financing.
