Chapter 1 – The regulatory framework

1.1 The administrative liability scheme laid down in Legislative Decree no. 231/2001 for legal persons, companies and associations

By way of implementation of the delegation under Article 11 of Law No 300 of 29 September 2000, on 8 June 2001 Legislative Decree no. 231 (hereinafter the “Decree” or “Legislative Decree no. 231/2001”) was adopted, aligning national legislation with the international conventions on the liability of legal persons. These are, specifically, the Brussels Convention on the protection of the European Communities’ financial interests of 26 July 1995, the Convention on the fight against corruption involving officials of the European Communities or officials of Member States of the European Union, signed in Brussels on 26 May 1997, and the OECD Convention on Combating Bribery of Foreign Public Officials in International Business Transactions of 17 December 1997.

The Decree, which lays down “Provisions on the administrative liability of legal persons, companies and associations, including those without legal personality”, introduced into the Italian legal order an administrative liability regime applying to Entities (meaning companies, associations, consortia, etc., hereinafter, “Entities”) for a series of specified offences committed in the interest or to the advantage of the entity: (i) by natural persons holding representation, administration or management positions in the Entity or in a financially and functionally autonomous organisational unit belonging to the Entity; and by natural persons who exercise, also de facto, the management and control of the Entity, or (ii) by natural persons subject to the management or supervision of one of the above-mentioned persons. The list of “predicate offences” was recently expanded by the addition of some types of administrative breaches.

The Entity’s liability is additional to that of the natural person who was the perpetrator of the offence, and is independent of it, as it also exists where the perpetrator has not been identified or cannot be charged or where the offence is extinguished for a reason other than amnesty.

The administrative liability regime laid down in the Decree for prosecution of the offences specifically identified therein, applies to Entities which benefited from the offences or in whose interest the predicate offences - or administrative breaches - identified in the Decree were committed. The penalties applicable to the Entity may include fines, interdictions, confiscation, publication of the sentence and appointment of a special administrator. Interdiction measures, which may have a more severe impact on the Entity than monetary penalties, consist in the suspension or revocation of licenses and concessions, prohibition on contracting with the public administration, prohibition on conducting business activities, denial or revocation of funding and contributions, and the prohibition on advertising products and services.
The above-mentioned liability also applies to offences committed abroad, provided that the country in which the offence was committed does not initiate proceedings in respect of those offences and that the Entity has its head office in Italy.

1.2 The adoption of the organisation, management and control models as a means to exempt Entities from administrative liability

After establishing the administrative liability of Entities, in Article 6 the Decree provides that an Entity shall not be liable where it can prove that it adopted and effectively implemented, before the offence was committed, “an appropriate organisation and management model to prevent offences of the kind that has occurred”. Article 6 also provides for creation of an internal control body within the Entity, tasked with monitoring the operation, effective implementation and observance of the model, and with updating the model.

The Organisational, Management and Control Model (hereinafter also the “Model”) must meet the following requirements:

- identify the activities which may give rise to the offences listed in the Decree;
- define the procedures through which the entity makes and implements decisions relating to the offences to be prevented;
- define procedures for managing financial resources to prevent offences from being committed;
- establish reporting obligations to the body responsible for monitoring Model operation and compliance;
- put in place an effective disciplinary system to punish non-compliance with the measures required by the Model.

If the offence is committed by persons holding a representative, administrative or management role in the Entity or one of its organisational units with financial and functional autonomy and by persons who, de facto or otherwise, manage and control the Entity, the Entity shall not be liable if it can prove that; (i) management had adopted and effectively implemented an appropriate organisational and management model to prevent offences of the kind that has occurred; (ii) the task of monitoring the Model implementation, compliance and updating was entrusted to a corporate body with independent powers of initiative and control; (iii) the perpetrators committed the offence by fraudulently circumventing the Model; (iv) there was no omission or insufficient control by the control body.

On the other hand, where the offence is committed by persons under the management or supervision of one of the above-mentioned persons, the Entity is liable if perpetration of the offence was made possible by non-performance of management and supervisory duties. Such performance shall be ruled out where the Entity, before the offence was committed, had adopted and effectively implemented an appropriate Model to prevent offences of the kind committed, based, of course, on a priori assessment.

Lastly, Article 6 of the Decree provides that the Model may be adopted on the basis of codes of conduct prepared by representative trade associations and submitted to the Ministry of Justice. This Model was prepared and updated also having regard to the guidelines prepared by ABI and approved by the Ministry of Justice.
Chapter 2 - The Organisational, Management and Control Model of Intesa Sanpaolo S.p.A.

2.1 The existing corporate tools underlying the Model

In preparing this Model, account was taken firstly of the current legislation and of the procedures and control systems already existing and implemented within Intesa Sanpaolo S.p.A., insofar as they were appropriate to also serve as measures for preventing offences and unlawful conduct in general, including those laid down in Legislative Decree no. 231/2001.

Intesa Sanpaolo S.p.A. (hereinafter also the “Bank”), which originated from the merger by incorporation of Sanpaolo IMI S.p.A. into Bank Intesa S.p.A., effective from 1 January 2007, is a highly complex reality, from both the organisational and operational viewpoint.

The corporate bodies of Intesa Sanpaolo S.p.A. have given the highest importance to aligning the organisational structures and operational procedures of the two Banks, both to ensure efficiency, effectiveness and transparency in the management of activities and the associated allocation of responsibilities, and to minimise any inefficiencies, failures and irregularities (including any conduct which is unlawful or otherwise not in line with Bank guidelines).

The organisational context of Intesa Sanpaolo S.p.A. consists of the corpus of rules, structures and procedures which ensure the Bank’s operation; it is therefore a multifaceted system which is defined and checked internally also with a view to compliance with the legislation applicable to Intesa Sanpaolo S.p.A. as both a bank and a listed company (Banking Law, the Bank of Italy’s Supervisory Instructions, the Consolidated Law on Financial Intermediation and the associated implementing regulations).

In such capacity, the Bank is also subject to the supervision of the Bank of Italy and Consob, within their respective powers, which carry out checks and controls on the Bank’s activities and organisational structure, as provided for by law.

Clearly, therefore, this corpus of special rules, together with ongoing supervision by the competent Authorities constitute invaluable tools for preventing unlawful conduct in general, including the offences laid down in the specific legislation on the administrative liability of Entities.

The Bank’s already existing specific tools laying down the procedures through which the entity makes and implements decisions relating to the offences and breaches to be prevented include:

- the rules of corporate governance adopted in accordance with the Corporate Governance Code for listed companies and the relevant corporate laws and regulations;
- internal regulations and corporate policies;
- the Group’s Code of Ethics and Internal Code of Conduct;
- The internal control system;
the powers and delegation system.

The rules, procedures and principles set out in the above-mentioned instruments are not described in detail in this Model but are integrated in the Model's broader organisation, management and control system which all internal and external parties are required to respect, in accordance with their relationship with the Bank.

The following paragraphs provide an overview of the reference principles of the Group's Code of Ethics and Internal Code of Conduct, of the internal control system, and of the powers and delegation system.

2.1.1 The Group’s Code of Ethics and Internal Code of Conduct

In line with the importance assigned to ethical issues and to pursuing a conduct consistently inspired by criteria of rigour and integrity, the Bank has adopted a Group-wide Code of Ethics and Internal Code of Conduct.

The Code of Ethics is the “constitutional charter” of the Intesa Sanpaolo Group. It lays down the pillars of its corporate culture and values which underline the concrete rules of conduct to be followed by all internal and external stakeholders having direct or indirect relations with the Bank: firstly customers, shareholders and employees but also suppliers, business partners, the community, the local areas and the environment in which the Group operates.

The Group's Internal Code of Conduct, applicable to all Group Companies, is an intentionally lean set of rules. It includes general provisions – defining the essential rules of conduct for company representatives, staff and external collaborators who, in performing their duties, must operate with professionalism, diligence, honesty and correctness – and more specific provisions, such as the prohibition to engage in certain personal transactions.
2.1.2 The key features of the internal control system

Intesa Sanpaolo S.p.A., to ensure sound and prudent management, combines business profitability with an attentive risk-acceptance activity and an operating conduct based on fairness.

Therefore, the Bank, in line with legal and supervisory regulations in force and consistently with the Code of conduct of listed companies, has adopted an internal control system capable of identifying, measuring and continuously monitoring the risks typical of its business activities.

Intesa Sanpaolo S.p.A.’s internal control system is built around a set of rules, procedures and organisational structures aimed at ensuring compliance with Company strategies and the achievement of the following objectives:

- the effectiveness and efficiency of Company processes;
- the safeguard of asset value and protection from losses;
- reliability and integrity of accounting and management information;
- transaction compliance with the law, supervisory regulations as well as policies, plans, procedures and internal regulations;

The internal control system is characterised by a documentary infrastructure (regulatory framework) that provides organised and systematic access to the guidelines, procedures, organisational structures, and risks and controls within the business, incorporating both the Company policies and the instructions of the Supervisory Authorities, and the provisions of the law, including the principles laid down in Legislative Decree 231/2001.

The regulatory framework consists of “Governance Documents” as adopted from time to time, which oversee the operation of the Bank (Articles of Association, Code of Ethics, Group Internal Code of Conduct, Committee Regulation, Regulation on Related Party Transactions, Authorities and powers, Policies, Guidelines, Function/Organisational Charts, Organisational Models, etc.) and of more strictly operational regulations that govern business processes, individual operations and the associated controls (Service Orders, Service Notes, Circulars and Operating Guidelines).

More specifically, the Company rules set out organisational solutions that:

- ensure sufficient separation between the operational and control functions and prevent situations of conflict of interest in the assignment of responsibilities;
- are capable of adequately identifying, measuring and monitoring the main risks assumed in the various operational segments;
- enable the recording of every operational event and, in particular, of every transaction, with an adequate level of detail, ensuring their correct allocation over time; establish reliable information systems and suitable reporting procedures for the various management levels having control functions; ensure prompt reporting to the appropriate levels within the company and the swift handling of any anomalies found by the business units, by the internal audit function or by other control functions.

Moreover, the Company’s organisational solutions provide for control activities at all operational levels, which make it possible to univocally and formally identify responsibilities, in particular as concerns performing controls and correcting any irregularities found.

Following the indications provided by the Supervisory Authorities, the Bank has identified the following macro types of control:

- line controls, aimed at ensuring the correct application of day-to-day activities and single transactions. Normally, such controls are carried out by the production structures (business or support) or incorporated in IT procedures or executed as part of back office activities;

- risk management controls, which help define risk management methodologies, verify compliance with the limits assigned to the various operating functions and check whether the operations of individual production structures are in line with established risk-return targets. As a rules, these checks are carried out by other than production structures;

- compliance controls, made up of policies and procedures to identify, assess, check and manage the risk of non-compliance with laws, Supervisory authority measures or self-regulating codes, as well as any other rule which may apply to the Bank;

- internal auditing, aimed at identifying anomalous trends, violations of procedures and regulations, as well as assessing the overall functioning of the internal control system. It is performed by different structures which are independent from production structures.

The internal control system is periodically reviewed and adapted in relation to business developments and the reference context.

In particular, the internal audit activities in Intesa Sanpaolo S.p.A. are carried out by an internal function (Internal Audit), which reports directly to the Chairman of the Management Board and the Chairman of the Supervisory Board, reporting in particular to the Control Committee. This function is also tasked with submitting to the Management Board, the Supervisory Board, the Top Management and the Heads of the various Organisational units, proposals for possible improvements to risk management policies, measurement tools, processes and procedures.
2.1.3 The power and delegation system

Under the Articles of Association, and in accordance with the general planning and strategic guidelines approved by the Supervisory Board, the Management Board is vested with all the powers for the ordinary and extraordinary administration of the Bank and has delegated its functions to the Managing Director and C.E.O, establishing his powers.

The Management Board has also defined and approved the decision-making powers and expenditure limits of the Heads of the Organisational Structures, in accordance with the organisational and management responsibilities assigned to them, setting the limits thereof and establishing procedures and limits for exercise of sub-delegations.

The power to sub-delegate is exercised through a constantly monitored transparent process, which is calibrated in accordance with the role and position of the sub-delegate, who in any case must always report back to the delegating function.

Moreover, the procedures for signing deeds, contracts, documents and internal and external correspondence are formalised, and the relevant signing powers are assigned to staff members jointly or severally. In particular, joint signatures are usually required for documents issuing orders or accepting obligations for the Bank.

All the Structures operate under specific Regulations defining their powers and responsibilities, which are available throughout the Bank. The document on autonomous management powers, approved by the Management Board, is also disseminated throughout the Bank.

Lastly, operational procedures, which define how the different corporate processes are to be performed are also disseminated throughout the Bank by means of specific internal rules. Therefore, all the main decision-making and implementing processes concerning Bank operations are spelled out, observable and available to the entire organisation.

2.2 The aims pursued by the model

Although the corporate tools described in the preceding paragraphs would by themselves suffice to prevent the offences covered by the Decree, following the same policy already adopted by Sanpaolo IMI S.p.A. and Bank Intesa S.p.A. the Bank decided to adopt a specific Organisational, Management and Control Model pursuant to the Decree, convinced that such model, besides being an important tool for raising the awareness of all those who operate on the Bank’s behalf, leading them to operate with integrity and transparency, is also more effective in preventing the risk of the offences and the administrative breaches covered by the reference legislation being committed.
In particular, by adopting and regularly updating the Model, the Bank pursues the following main aims:

- make all persons operating on the Bank’s account in the field of “sensitive activities” (i.e. those activities which, by their nature, are at risk for the offences identified in the Decree), aware of the fact that, should they breach the rules governing such activities, they might incur disciplinary and/or contractual sanctions, as well as criminal and administrative penalties;
- stress that any such unlawful conduct is strongly discouraged since (even where the Bank would seem to benefit from it) such behaviour is in breach not only of the law, but also of the ethical principles which the Bank intends to apply to all its activities;
- enable the Bank, thanks to monitoring of the sensitive activity areas, to take swift action to prevent or fight any offences and punish conduct in breach of its Model.

2.3 Key model components

The Model of Intesa Sanpaolo S.p.A. was prepared in accordance with the will of the legislator, and taking into account the guidelines issued by ABI.

The key model components may be summarised as follows:

- identification of the activity areas at risk, i.e. the sensitive company activities where offences might occur, to be analysed and monitored;
- management of operational processes ensuring:
  - the separation of duties by adequately allocating responsibilities and establishing appropriate authorization levels in order to avoid functional overlaps or operating allocations that concentrate activities on a single person;
  - clear and formalised allocation of powers and responsibilities, expressly indicating the limits of those powers and consistent with the duties assigned and positions covered within the organisational structure;
  - appropriate procedures for performing the activities;
  - traceability of the acts, operations and transactions through an appropriate paper or electronic trail;
  - decision-making processes linked to preset objective criteria (e.g.: the company keeps registers of approved suppliers, objective staff assessment and selection criteria are in place, etc.);
  - control and supervisory activities on company transactions are in place and traceable; safety mechanisms are in place, providing appropriate data protection/access control to corporate data and assets;
- adequate rules of conduct are in place ensuring that corporate activities are carried out in compliance with the laws and regulations and safeguarding the company’s assets;
- the responsibilities for the adoption, amendment, implementation and control of the Model have been defined;
- the Surveillance Body has been identified and specific duties of oversight on the Model’s effective and proper functioning have been allocated;
- the information flows to the Surveillance Body have been defined;
- an effective disciplinary system has been put in place and implemented to punish non-compliance with the measures required by the Model;
- staff training and internal communication concerning the contents of the Decree and of the Model, and the associated compliance obligations.

2.4 Model structure

To define this “Organisational, Management and Control Model” Intesa Sanpaolo S.p.A. took as a basis, supplementing them, the internal rules and procedures already in place in Intesa S.p.A. and Sanpaolo Imi S.p.A., thereby making the most of the experience already gained by the two Banks.

Specifically:
- with regard to Bank Intesa, the Board of Directors, by resolution of 8 March 2004 approved the "Management, Organisation and Control Model", implementing and updating it by the subsequent resolutions of on 8 February 2005 and 6 March 2006;
- with regard to Sanpaolo Imi, the Board of Directors, by resolution of 25 March 2003 approved the “Reference Principles for Adoption of the Organisation, Management and Control Models”, subsequently updated and supplemented by the resolutions of 24 January 2006, 28 February 2006 and 20 June 2006.

After the merger, by means of its resolution of 2 January 2007 the Management Board of Intesa Sanpaolo S.p.A. confirmed the validity and effectiveness of the two Models previously adopted by the two former Banks. Said Models were applied within the Business Units originating respectively from Sanpaolo Imi S.p.A. and Bank Intesa S.p.A. until this Model was adopted.

After the Bank’s new organisational setup was defined, to enable the timely adoption of a single Model meeting the needs of the new organisation, Intesa Sanpaolo S.p.A. chose to use the evidence obtained through the mapping of the sensitive areas and risk types previously carried out by the two banks before the merger, comparing and reconciling them in the light of the Bank’s current organisational structure.

Accordingly, for each category of “predicate offence”, the “sensitive” corporate areas have been identified. Within each sensitive area the corporate activities most at risk for the perpetration of the predicate offences laid down in the Decree (“sensitive” activities) have been identified, and for each of such activities conduct and control rules have been established – differentiated according to the specific offence-risk to be prevented – also taking into account the rules in force at the two banks prior to the merger.

The Model is fully and effectively implemented in the Bank’s operations by connecting each sensitive area with the corporate structures concerned and with the dynamic management of processes and of the reference internal regulations, which must be based on the conduct and control principles spelled out for each such activity.

The approach adopted:

- helps make optimum use of the store of knowledge built by the two banks prior to the merger concerning the internal policies, rules and regulations guiding and governing the Bank’s decision-making and implementation concerning the prevention of unlawful acts, and, more in general, risk management and the performance of controls;
- makes it possible to manage the corporate operating rules with univocal criteria, including those relating to “sensitive” areas;
- makes it easier to regularly implement and update in a timely manner the internal processes and regulatory system, in response to changes in the company’s organisational structure and operations, making the Model highly “dynamic” especially in the current phase, marked by ongoing changes due to the current organisational and operational integration.

Accordingly, the control or the risks under Legislative Decree no. 231/2001 by Intesa Sanpaolo S.p.A. is ensured by:

- this document (“Organisational, Management and Control Model”), and
- the existing regulatory system, which is an integral and substantive part of this model.

The “Organisational, Management and Control Model” sets out in particular:

- the reference regulatory framework;
- the roles and responsibilities of the structures engaged in the adoption, effective implementation and modification of the model;
- the specific duties and responsibilities of the Surveillance Body;
• the information flows to the Surveillance Body;
• the system of sanctions;
• the training principles;
• the “sensitive” areas having regard to the types of offences identified in the Decree;
• the corporate activities at risk for the predicate offences (“sensitive” activities) and the rules of conduct and controls aimed at preventing such offences.

The Bank’s regulatory framework of the Bank, consisting of the “Governance Documents” (Articles of Association, Code of Ethics, Group Internal Code of Conduct, Regulations, Policy, Rules, etc.), Service Orders, Service Notes, Circulars, Handbooks, Operating Guidelines and other tools, governs at the various levels the Bank’s operations in the sensitive areas/activities and is for all intents and purpose an integral part of the Model.

The regulatory framework is held and catalogued, with specific reference to each “sensitive” activity, in a specific document repository, which is available throughout the Bank through the company’s Intranet and constantly updated by the competent functions in line with the development of the operations.

Therefore, by matching the contents of the Model with the corporate regulatory framework it is possible to extract, for each of the “sensitive” activities, specific, precise and always up-to-date Protocols that set out phases of activities, the structures concerned, control and conduct principles, and process operating rules and which make it possible to verify and streamline each activity phase.

2.5 The addressees of the Model

The Model and the provisions it contains or refers to must be complied with by all the managers and staff of Intesa Sanpaolo S.p.A. and, in particular, by those who perform sensitive activities. Staff training and the dissemination of information on Model contents within the organisation are continuously ensured by the procedures described in detail in Chapter 6 below.

In order to ensure the effective and efficient prevention of offences, the Model is also addressed to external stakeholders (i.e. self-employed or “para-subordinate” workers, freelance professionals, consultants, agents, suppliers, commercial partners, etc.) who, under contractual relationships, collaborate with the Bank in performance of its activities. Their compliance with the Model is ensured by a contractual clause whereby they undertake to comply with the principles of the Model and to report to the Surveillance Body any case of unlawful acts or breaches of the Model they might become aware of.

2.6 Model adoption, effective implementation and modification – Roles and responsibilities

Adoption of the Model

In accordance with Article 6, paragraph I, point (a) of the Decree, the Model is adopted by resolution of the Management Board, which also supervises its implementation. The Model must also be approved by the Supervisory Board in view of its statutory role in the Bank’s governance system and of the fact that the Surveillance Body is an internal organ of the Supervisory Board. The Managing Director and C.E.O. defines the structure of the Model to be submitted to the Management Board’s approval with the assistance, as to their respective areas, of the Compliance, Internal Audit, Legal Affairs, Organisation and Human Resources, Anti-Money Laundering functions, of the Employer and of the Principal pursuant to Legislative Decree no. 81/2008, and after consultation with the Surveillance Body.

Effective implementation and modification of the Model

The Management Board (or the entity formally delegated by it) is tasked with effectively implementing the Model, by assessing and approving the actions required to implement or amend it. In identifying such actions, the Management Board is assisted by the Surveillance Body.

The Management Board delegates the individual structures to implement Model contents and to regularly update and implement the internal regulations and corporate processes, which are an integral part of the Model, in compliance with the control and conduct principles defined for each sensitive activity. Any changes so made to company processes and regulations are reported every six months to the Management Board and the Surveillance Body. Effective and concrete Model implementation is also ensured:

- by the Surveillance Body, in exercise of its powers of initiative and control over the activities carried out by the individual organisational units in the sensitive areas;
- by the heads of the Bank’s various Organisational units (Divisions, Governance Areas - Chief Operating Officer, Chief Financial Officer, Chief Lending Officer, Chief Risk Officer - Departments and Organisational units) having regard to the activities at risk they perform.
The Management Board, also with the help of the Surveillance Body, must also ensure updating of the sensitive areas and of the Model, in view of any updating requirements which might become necessary in the future.

Specific roles and responsibilities relating to Model management are also assigned to the structures indicated below.

Internal Audit function
Internal Audit delivers ongoing and independent surveillance on the regular performance of operations and processes, in order to prevent or detect any anomalous or risky behaviour or situation. It assesses the efficiency of the overall internal control system and its ability to guarantee effective and efficient company processes.

Internal Audit supports directly the Surveillance Body in monitoring compliance with and adequacy of the rules contained in the Model. Whenever problems are identified, it refers them to the competent functions for the appropriate corrective actions.

Compliance function
The task of the Compliance function is to ensure consistently over time that effective rules, procedures and operational practices are in place to prevent breaches or violations of applicable provisions.

With specific reference to the administrative liability risks introduced by the Decree, the Compliance function supports the Surveillance Body’s performance of its control activities by:

- defining and updating the Model, with the support of both the Legal and the Organisation functions, in line with developments in the reference legislation and with changes in both the Employer’s and the Principal’s organisational structure, under Legislative Decree no. 81/2008, as well as of the Anti-Money Laundering function - each as to their respective areas of competence;

- monitoring, over time, Model effectiveness with reference to the rules and principles of conduct for the prevention of sensitive offences; to this end the Compliance function:
  - identifies each year those processes felt to be at higher risk both as to their contents with respect to the predicate offences, and as to the existence or non-existence of specific procedures to mitigate such risk; once the processes have been identified and before they are published on the company’s system of regulations, the compliance function issues a preliminary approval as to the correct application of the control and conduct principles provided for by the Model; moreover, by means of a risk-based approach, it implements specific assurance activities to assess the conformity of the processes with the “protocols” set out in the Model;
- analyses the results of the organisational units' self-assessment process and statement on compliance with the control and conduct principles set out in the Model;
- examining the information submitted by Internal Audit on issued detected during its verifications.

Anti-Money Laundering function

The Anti-Money Laundering function constantly checks that the company’s procedures are consistent with the aim of preventing and combating the violation of hetero-regulating (regulatory laws and rules) and self-regulating codes on the subject of money laundering and terrorism financing.

To pursue the aims set out in the Decree, the Anti-Money Laundering function, exclusively with regard to managing risks inherent to anti-money laundering and terrorism financing:
- contributes to the definition of the Model’s structure and to its update;
- promotes organisational and procedural amendments aimed at ensuring an adequate monitoring of the risks inherent to money laundering and terrorism financing;
- receives and forwards the periodical reports and the information flows set out in the “Guidelines for contrasting money laundering and terrorism financing phenomena and for managing embargoes”;
- sets up, in co-operation with the company structures responsible for training, an adequate training plan aimed at keeping employees and collaborators constantly updated.

Legal Affairs function

Legal Affairs pursues the aims set out in the Decree by providing assistance and legal advice to the Bank’s structures, monitoring the development of the relevant legislation and case law.

Other tasks of the Legal Affairs function are to interpret the legislation, resolve legal issues and identify types of conduct which may constitute offences.

The Legal Affairs function collaborates with Compliance, Internal Audit, Organisation, Anti-Money Laundering functions, with the Employer and the Principal pursuant to Legislative Decree no. 81/2008, in updating the Model, also reporting any widening of the scope of the administrative liability of Entities.

Organisation function
The duty of the Organisation function is to ensure that the organisational structure and governance mechanisms are in line with the objectives pursued by the Model. Accordingly, it shall:

- design the organisational structure, defining its missions, organisation charts and functions, and submits it for approval to the Managing Director and C.E.O.;
- define the rules for the design, official adoption and management of the organisational processes;
- support the design of the organisational processes or validate procedures defined by other functions, ensuring their consistency with the overall organisational plan;

- disseminate the internal rules throughout the Bank’s organisation through the company’s Intranet.

Human Resources function

With reference to the Decree, Human Resources, as described in detail in Chapter 5 and Chapter 6:

Organisational Units

The Organisational units are tasked with the execution, proper functioning and sustained effective process application over time. The internal regulations identify the Organisational Units tasked with designing the processes.

For the specific purposes of the Decree, the Organisational units have a duty to:

- review – in the light of the rules of conduct and principles applicable to sensitive activities - the practices and processes falling under their remit, to make them suitable to prevent unlawful conduct;
- report to the Surveillance Body any cases of irregularities or anomalous conduct.

In particular, the Organisational units for sensitive company activities should pay the highest and constant care in verifying the existence of and remediying any shortcomings in the regulations or procedures which may give rise to foreseeable risks of “predicate offences” being committed within the activities under their remit.

Employer and Principal pursuant to Legislative Decree no. 81/2008

The parties identified as Employer and Principal pursuant to Legislative Decree no. 81/2008, only as concerns their respective area of responsibility for managing the risks relating to workplace health and safety and to temporary or mobile construction sites shall:

- promote organisational and procedural changes aimed at adequately controlling non-compliance risk.

2.7 Outsourced activities

The organisational model of Intesa Sanpaolo S.p.A. provides for “outsourcing” of corporate activities, or parts thereof to other Group Companies. In particular, the operational management of all the activities concerning the organisation, security, real estate, procurement, operational services, information systems and Contact Unit services is entrusted to ISGS Intesa Sanpaolo Group Services S.p.A..

Outsourcing of the activities is carried out in accordance with the prescriptions of the competent Supervisory authorities and is formalised through the conclusion of specific contracts that enable Intesa Sanpaolo S.p.A.:

- to take all decisions by exercising its autonomy, as it maintains the necessary competences and responsibilities on the activities relating to the outsourced services;
• to consequently maintain guidance and control powers on the outsourced activities.

The outsourcing contracts shall include:
• a detailed description of the outsourced activities;
• the way in which the services are to be provided;
• specific service levels;
• the verification and control powers remaining with the Bank;
• the rates applying to the services rendered;
• appropriate reporting systems;
• appropriate safeguards protecting the Bank’s information assets and transaction security;
• the obligation for the outsourced service provider to operate in accordance with the current laws and regulations and to ensure they are also complied with by any third parties he might avail himself of for performance of the outsourced activities;
• the possibility for Intesa Sanpaolo S.p.A. to terminate the contract in the event it is breached by the service provider: (i) of the legislation and requirements issued by the Supervisory authorities which may involve sanctions for the principal; (ii) of the obligation to implement the activities in compliance with the principles laid down in the Organisational, Management and Control Model pursuant to Legislative Decree no. 231/2001 adopted by Intesa Sanpaolo S.p.A. and to the Code of Ethics and the Group Internal Code of Conduct.

Dedicated Bank structures shall constantly verify, also through control of the required service levels, compliance with contractual clauses, hence adequacy of the activities performed by the service provider.

2.8 Models of the Companies belonging to the Banking Group

Without prejudice to the independent responsibility of each Intesa Sanpaolo Group company as regards the adoption and efficient implementation of its own Model in accordance with the Decree, in exercising its specific function as Parent Company, the Bank has the power to establish criteria and guidelines of a general nature and to verify, through the Compliance, Internal Auditing and Corporate Affairs functions, whether the Group companies’ Models comply with such criteria and guidelines.

2.8.1 Group guidelines concerning the administrative liability of Entities
In order to harmonise at Group level the procedures for transposing and implementing the contents of the Decree by putting in place appropriate risk control procedures, we outline below the guidance principles which all the companies incorporated in Italy are required to comply with, in accordance with their legal autonomy and with the principles of sound corporate management.

In particular, each company concerned shall:

- adopt its own Model, after identifying the corporate activities at risk for the offences provided for by the Decree and the measures best able to prevent such offences. In preparing the Model, the company shall follow the principles and contents of the Parent Company’s Model, except where there are specific situations relating to the nature, size or type activity pursued or the company’s structure, the organisation and/or the allocation of internal delegations making it necessary or advisable to adopt different measures in order to pursue the Model's objectives more effectively, while always respecting the above-mentioned principles and those laid down in the Code of Ethics and in the Group’s Internal Code of Conduct.

In the case of substantial discrepancies with the principles and contents of the Model of Parent Company, the Parent Company’s Compliance function shall be informed of the reasons for such differences, and shall receive the final draft of the Model prior to its approval by the Corporate governance bodies.

The company shall inform the Compliance function of having adopted the Model by sending a copy thereof and the Board of Directors’ approval resolution.

Pending approval of the Model, the company shall adopt all appropriate means to prevent unlawful conduct;

- promptly appoint the Surveillance Body, in line with the Parent Company’s recommendations on the persons to be appointed.

The news of the Body’s appointment shall be communicated by sending a copy of the Board of Directors’ resolution, to the following functions: Parent Company operations, Compliance and Corporate Affairs; the latter shall submit regular updating reports on the matter to the Parent Company’s Surveillance Body;

- ensure systematic Model updating as required by legislative and organisational changes, or where significant and/or repeated breaches of the rules of the Model make it necessary. Any legislative amendments shall be notified by a specific communication to be sent to the company by the Parent Company’s Compliance function. Confirmation of the Model having been updated shall be provided to the Compliance function following the procedures described above;
• prepare, in collaboration with the Parent Company's Staff and Compliance functions, training and communication plans addressed to the whole Staff as well as specific training targeting figures engaged in activities more sensitive to the Decree, so as to create widespread awareness and a strong corporate culture in this field;

• adopt appropriate controls of the processes which are “sensitive” with respect to the Decree, covering their identification, documentation and publication within the corporate regulatory system. Moreover, each year the company's Compliance function shall follow a risk-based approach to identify those processes felt to be at higher risk for the predicate offences, having regard to both their contents and to the existence or inexistence of specific risk-mitigating procedures. For such processes the Compliance function shall:
  – issue a preliminary approval, prior to their publication, concerning the sound application of the control and conduct principles provided for by the Model;
  – implement specific assurance activities to assess the conformity of the processes with the “protocols” set out in the Model;

• perform, once a year, a self-assessment review of the activities carried out to verify the degree of Model implementation, with special regard to compliance with control and conduct principles and with operating rules. The self-assessment review shall be initiated in coordination with the Parent Company's Risk Management and Compliance functions;

• submit to the Parent Company’s Compliance function copy of the periodic reports, also including the results of the self-assessment exercise, submitted by the Compliance function to the Surveillance Body.

The company’s Surveillance Body shall also forward to the Parent Company’s Control Committee the periodic report, drawn up as a rule every six months, on the activity performed and submitted to the Board of Directors, together with any remarks made by such Board.

With regard to the above-mentioned activities, the competent Parent Company functions shall, within their respective spheres of competence, support and assist the companies in performing their duties.
In accordance with the Group-wide compliance guidelines, for specifically named companies\(^1\), whose operations are highly integrated with the Parent Company’s, the compliance controls concerning the administrative liability of Entities shall be handled centrally by the Parent Company’s compliance function; nevertheless, the competence and responsibility to approve and effectively implement the Model and appoint the Surveillance Body shall remain with the companies. Such companies are responsible for the following activities:

- handling of the Model formalisation and approval process by the competent Corporate governance bodies;
- support the Parent Company in collecting the information necessary to identify the company’s specific sensitive areas and activities;
- file and store the documentation concerning the outcomes of the self-assessment and of the reports to the Corporate governance bodies;
- forward to the Parent Company’s Compliance function a copy of the notices convening the meetings of the Surveillance Body and the meetings of the Corporate governance bodies whenever Decree-related issues are on the agenda.

\(^1\) Under outsourcing agreements/contracts.
Chapter 3 - The Surveillance Body

3.1 Identification of the Surveillance Body

In accordance with the Decree, the task of monitoring the Model’s implementation, compliance and updating was entrusted to a specific body of the Entity with autonomous powers of initiative and control (“Surveillance Body”).

In consideration of its specific tasks and of the Bank’s governance structure, the role and powers of Surveillance Body are assigned to the Control Committee, already existing within the Supervisory Board, pursuant to Article 25.4 of the Articles of Association, as this Committee fully meets the characteristics of autonomy, independence, professionalism and continuity of action necessary for the sound and efficient operations of such Body.

To this end the Surveillance Body provided with powers of initiative and control on the Bank’s activities, and has no management or administrative powers.

In order to pursue its functions with total independence, the Surveillance Body has autonomous spending powers based on an annual budget, approved by the Supervisory Board on the Body's proposal.

The operation of the Surveillance Body is governed by specific rules proposed to the Supervisory Board by the Surveillance Body and included in the Control Committee’s Regulation, which is approved by the Supervisory Board.

As a rule, the Surveillance Body shall avail itself of the Bank’s structures to perform its surveillance and control tasks, first and foremost the Internal Audit function, which is officially equipped with the technical know-how and the human and operating resources enabling it to guarantee the ongoing performance of checks, analyses and all other requirements. Where necessary, based on the specific nature of the issues addressed, it may also avail itself of external consultants.

In particular, having regard to workplace health and safety protection issues and to combating money laundering and terrorism financing, the Body may also avail itself of the resources in charge of these aspects (the Employer, the Officer in charge of the Prevention and Protection... service, the Workers’ safety representative, the competent Physician, the Officer in charge for the anti-money laundering function, the Officer in charge for reporting suspicious transactions) and the additional resources provided for by sectoral legislation.

Either directly or through the various corporate structures appointed for the purpose, the Surveillance Body, shall have access to all the activities carried out by the Company in the areas at risk and to the relevant documentation, at both the central offices and the local branches.

3.2 Composition, term of office and remuneration of the Surveillance Body

3.2.1 Composition

The Surveillance Body coincides with the Control Committee and is composed of five standing members fulfilling the independence requirements set out in the Corporate Governance Code of Borsa Italiana S.p.A..

The Supervisory Board also appoints three alternate members, who must be external to the Bank and meet the requirements set out below. Alternate members replace standing members in the cases set out in paragraphs 3.3.5 and 3.3.6 below.

The Body shall remain in office for the period established by the Supervisory Board on appointing it; where no term of office is so specified, the Body shall remain in office until the end of the mandate of the Supervisory Board that appointed it. The Supervisory Board, with abstention of those members who are members of the Surveillance Body, and after receiving the recommendations of the Remuneration Committee shall establish the remuneration for the entire term of office of the members of the Control Committee for performance of their duties, including those performed as standing members of the Surveillance Body.

The Supervisory Board, acting on the recommendations of the Remuneration Committee, shall also establish the remuneration for the Surveillance Body’s alternate members, in the form of a fixed sum for each participation in meetings.

Standing and alternate members shall also receive reimbursement of documented expenses incurred for participation in the meetings.

3.3.1 Requirements for standing members

3.3.1 a) Eligibility requirements

The standing members of the Surveillance Body must meet the integrity, professional and independence requirements provided for the applicable laws and regulations for the members of the Supervisory Board.

In particular, the Articles of Association provide:

- in Article 34 that, until new supervisory rules and/or regulatory provisions are issued concerning the requirements for the members of corporate governance bodies in the dual system, the integrity and professional requirements for Supervisory Board members shall continue to be governed by the rules for banks representatives laid down in the Regulation adopted by Ministerial Decree No 161 of 18.3.1998, and by the rules concerning the members of the Board of Auditors of listed companies laid down in the Regulation adopted by Ministerial Decree No 162 of 30.3.2000;

3.3.1 b) Additional requirements

In addition to meeting the above-mentioned requirements, standing members must also meet additional integrity requirements, in the form of conditions of ineligibility to the Surveillance Body:

- having received a final sentence or a non-final sentence, even where the sentence has been conditionally suspended, without prejudice to the effects of rehabilitation, for one of the offences to which Legislative Decree no. 231/2001 applies. The term “sentence” also includes sentences delivered under Article 444 of the Code of Criminal Procedure;

- the alternate members meet the professionalism, integrity and independence requirements set out in paragraph 3.3.2 above based on a statement made by the individuals concerned.

3.3.4 Grounds for disqualification from office

After their appointment the Surveillance Body’s standing and alternate members shall lapse from office, where:

- for standing members, they incur in revocation of or disqualification from their position as Supervisory Board members and/or Control Committee members (also as a consequence of losing the professionalism, integrity and independence requirements set out in the law or the Articles of Association);
- after their appointment, they are found to have been a member of the Surveillance Body in companies which have received, by final measure (including the ruling issued pursuant to Article 63 of the Decree), the sanctions laid down in Article 9 of the same Decree, concerning unlawful acts committed during their term of office;
- they received a final sentence (where the term “sentence” also includes sentences delivered under Article 444 of the Code of Criminal Procedure), even where the sentence has been conditionally suspended pursuant to article 163 of the Criminal Code, for one of the offences to which Legislative Decree no. 231/2001 applies;
- have received, with final measures, the accessory administrative penalties sanctions laid down in Article 187-quater of Legislative Decree no. 58/1998.
The members of the Surveillance Body shall inform the Chairman of the Supervisory Board, under their full responsibility, the occurrence of one of the above-mentioned grounds for disqualification from office.

In these and all other cases in which the Chairman of the Supervisory Board becomes directly aware of occurrence of one of the grounds for disqualification from office, he shall promptly inform the Supervisory Board, to ensure that, at the earliest possible meeting:

- in the cases of disqualification from office due to loss of the requirements referred to in Article 3.3.1 a), the Board promptly takes action, as required by the law and the Articles of Association;
- in the cases of disqualification from office due to the loss of the requirements laid down in Article 3.3.1 b), the Board removes the person concerned from the Surveillance Body and replaces him/her.

Where the disqualification from office concerns an alternate member, the same procedures provided for standing members shall apply, mutatis mutandis.

3.3.5 Grounds for suspension

Members of the Surveillance Body are subject to the same suspension conditions as those which, under the applicable law and regulations lead to lapse from membership of the Supervisory Board, plus the other conditions set out below:

- after their appointment, Surveillance Body members are found to have been members of the Surveillance Body in companies which have received, by non-final measure (including the ruling issued pursuant to Article 63 of the Decree), the sanctions laid down in Article 9 of the same Decree, concerning unlawful acts committed during their term of office;
- the members of the Surveillance Body received a non-final sentence, including a conditionally suspended sentence pursuant to Article 163 of the Criminal Code (where the term “sentence” also includes sentences delivered under Article 444 of the Code of Criminal Procedure), for one of the offences to which Legislative Decree no. 231/2001 applies.

The members of the Surveillance Body shall inform the Chairman of the Supervisory Board, under their full responsibility, of the occurrence of one of the above-mentioned grounds for suspension.

The Chairman of the Supervisory Board, also in all further cases in which he becomes directly aware of occurrence of one of the above-mentioned grounds for suspension, shall immediately inform the Supervisory Board which – without prejudice to any other measures to be taken pursuant to the law and to the Articles of Association relating to the office of Director – shall, in its next meeting, suspend the person(s) that incurred one of the above-mentioned grounds from the office of Surveillance Body member.

If, as a consequence of the suspension, the number for standing members becomes less than three, the Supervisory Board shall also order the temporary inclusion in the Surveillance Body of one or more alternate members, based on the following criteria:

- if the number of standing members has been reduced to two, an alternate member shall be temporarily appointed, and shall be the oldest in age;
- if only one standing member remains, two alternate members shall be temporarily appointed, based on age seniority;
- if all standing members have been suspended, they shall be replaced by the three alternate members.

Save for different provisions of the law and regulations, the suspension shall not last beyond six months. After this limit has expired, the Chairman of the Supervisory Board shall enter the possible revocation among the items to be addressed in the next Board meeting. Members not revoked shall be fully reinstated in office.

3.3.6 Temporary inability of the standing member

Where a standing member of the Surveillance Body is temporarily unable to perform his duties or perform them with the necessary autonomy and independence of judgment, such member must declare the reasons for such inability, and, where it is due to a potential conflict of interests, he/she shall declare the reason for such conflict and refrain from participating in the meetings of the body or in the specific resolution which the conflict relates to, until such time as the inability ceases or is removed.

Possible grounds for temporary inability include:

- where the member has been indicted for a predicate offence;
- where the member of the Body is informed by the Administrative authority that an administrative penalty procedure against him has been initiated under Article 187-quater of Legislative Decree no. 58/1998;
- illness or injury lasting more than three months and preventing the member from taking part in Surveillance Body meetings.
In the event of temporary inability or in any other case preventing one or more standing members from participating in the meeting, the Body shall operate in its reduced composition, provided that the number of the remaining standing members (who are not subject to any of the above situations) is not less than three.

On the other hand, where, as a consequence of the above situations:

- the number of standing members has been reduced to two, an alternate member shall be temporarily appointed, and shall be the older in age;
- only one standing member remains, two alternate members shall be temporarily appointed, based on age seniority;
- if no standing members remain, they shall be replaced by the three alternate members.

Where the inability lasts more than six months, extendable to a further 6 months not more than twice, the Supervisory Board may revoke the member(s) so incapacitated, and replace them with other standing members.

The grounds for suspension set out in paragraph 3.3.5 differing from those set out in the current legislation and regulations and referred to therein, or the grounds for temporary inability set out in paragraph 3.3.6 and the associated replacement mechanisms apply to members in their capacity as Surveillance Body members.

If the suspension or temporary inability concerns the Chairman, he shall be temporarily replaced by the member having the greatest seniority in office, or, seniority in office being equal, by the one older in age. Where such situations concern all standing members, the alternate member oldest in age shall be the temporary chair.

3.4 Duties of the Surveillance Body

The Surveillance Body, in pursuit of its ordinary activity shall oversee in general:

- the efficiency, effectiveness and adequacy of the Model in preventing and fighting the offences covered by Legislative Decree no. 231/2001, and of any offences which in the future might howsoever give rise to the company’s administrative liability;
- compliance with the provisions of the Model by its addressees, assessing the consistency of actual behaviour with the Model and any discrepancy, through information flow analyses and the reports to be submitted by the heads of the various corporate functions;
● updating of the Model when and as necessary, making proposals to the competent Corporate Bodies, wherever amendments and/or additions become necessary as a consequence of significant breaches of the provisions of the Model, significant changes in the Bank’s organisational set-up and procedures, or of the adoption of new legislation in this area;

● implementation of the Staff training plan (see Chapter 6.2 below);

● the initiation and performance of the procedure for imposing disciplinary sanctions where infringements of the Model are found.

The Surveillance Body shall also monitor, within the scope of its functions and duties, compliance with the provisions relating to prevention of the use of the financial system for the purpose of money laundering and the financing of terrorism laid down in the Legislative Decree 231/2007 and shall issue the related internal and external communications provided for by Article 52 of said Decree.

The control activity, carried out by the Internal Audit function on behalf of the Surveillance Body, is based on specific protocols designed and regularly updated based on the results of the risk analysis and of the control actions.

Risk analysis is the ongoing process of prior identification, classification and assessment of the risks (external and internal) and of the internal controls, which is the basis for planning audit actions.

This plan, prepared annually and submitted for approval to the Control Committee, also in its capacity as Surveillance Body, and, subsequently, to the Management Board, also takes into account any remarks and suggestions made in various respects by the Corporate bodies.

During the control actions, the level of the controls present in the company’s operations and processes is analysed in detail. Any weaknesses found are systematically reported to the Organisational units and to the other corporate functions concerned in order to make the rules, procedures and organisational structure more efficient and effective. Follow-up activity is also performed to verify that the planned actions are actually undertaken. The Internal Audit function regularly reports to the Surveillance Body on the follow-up activity carried out.

For the purposes of the Decree, the Body requires Internal Audit to include in its Surveillance Models (which are the instruments providing the methodological and regulatory support for managing the internal control system of a specific “control area”) and in the annual audit plan the specific checks carried out – in particular for the sensitive areas – in order to assess the effectiveness of the controls in preventing unlawful conduct.
The Surveillance Body can exchange information with the independent audit firm, if it deems it necessary or appropriate within the scope of their respective competences and responsibilities.

3.5 Procedures and frequency for reporting to the Corporate Bodies

Whenever it is deemed necessary or advisable, or where requested, the Surveillance Body shall report to the Management Board and the Supervisory Board on operation of the Model and the fulfilment of the obligations laid down in the Decree.

The Surveillance Body shall, at least on a half-yearly basis, submit to the above-mentioned Bodies a specific report on the adequacy of and compliance with the Model, which shall cover:

- the activity carried out;
- the results of the activity carried out;

In particular, the following shall be reported without delay:

- any information relating to the perpetration, or the reasonable conviction of the perpetration, of the offences within the scope of Legislative Decree no. 231/2001, including the initiation of judicial proceedings against executives/employees for offences provided for by Legislative Decree no. 231/2001;

The external parties shall submit their reports directly to the Surveillance Body.

The Surveillance Body shall assess the reports received and adopt the appropriate measures based on its reasonable assessment and under its discretion and responsibility; it may also hear the author of the report and/or the author of the alleged violation and shall provide reasons in writing for any refusal to start an internal enquiry.

The Surveillance Body shall take into consideration the report, including anonymous ones, which contain factual elements.

Intesa Sanpaolo S.p.A. shall safeguard those making said reports from any type of retaliation, discrimination or penalisation and shall in any event maintain the highest confidentiality on their identity, except where their disclosure is required by the law and by protection of the rights of the Bank or of any persons that have been wrongly and/or maliciously accused.

In addition to the reports on the above-mentioned breaches, the following information shall be submitted to the body mandatorily and immediately:

- via the Internal Audit function, any information concerning:
  - the measures and/or information issued by judicial police bodies or any other authority, without prejudice for the secrecy obligations laid down in the law, indicating that investigations are in progress, also against unknown persons, for offences falling within the scope of Legislative Decree no. 231/2001, if such investigations concern the Bank or its Employees or Corporate bodies or in any case involve the Bank’s liability;

- the reports prepared by the corporate functions as part of their control activity, which contain facts, acts, events or omissions indicating the risk of infringement of the rules of the Decree;
- the disciplinary proceedings initiated or, where such breaches have been committed by non employees, the penalties issued.

- through the Anti-Money laundering function, the reports of particularly serious potential infractions in the area of money laundering and the financing of terrorism for the purpose of informing the competent Authorities pursuant to Article 52 of Legislative Decree no. 231/2007,

Each corporate structure to which a specific role has been assigned in a phase of a sensitive process must promptly report to the Surveillance Body any actions it performs which departs significantly from those set out in the process description and the reason which have made such departure necessary or advisable.

In the case of events which might give rise to serious liability for Intesa Sanpaolo S.p.A., the Internal Audit function, acting in accordance with Legislative Decree no. 231/2001, shall promptly inform the Chairman of the Surveillance Body and shall prepare a specific report describing in detail the event, the risk, the staff involved, the disciplinary measures adopted and the solutions put in place to avoid reoccurrence of the event.

4.2 Periodic information flows

The Surveillance Body also performs its control tasks by analysing the systematic periodic information flows submitted by the functions performing first-tier control activity (Organisational units), by the Internal Audit, Compliance, Anti-Money laundering functions, and by the Employer and the Principal pursuant to Legislative Decree no. 81/2008.

Information flows coming from the Organisational Units

Once a year, the heads of the Organisational Units involved in “sensitive processes” within the meaning of Legislative Decree No 231/2001 shall perform a self-assessment review of the activities carried out to verify the degree of Model implementation, with special regard to compliance with control and conduct principles and with operating rules.

Through this formal self-assessment exercise, they highlight any problem areas in the processes they operate, any departures from the guidelines set out in the Model or in general from the regulatory framework, and the adequacy of such regulations, and shall highlight the actions and initiatives adopted or planned to address such problems.

The Organisational Units’ assessments shall be sent once a year to the Compliance function, which shall file these reports, keeping them available for the Surveillance Body to which it shall forward a report setting out the results.

The method for implementing the self-assessment exercise, which falls under the Bank’s broader Operational Risk Management process, must be submitted to the Surveillance Body for prior approval.

Information flows coming from the Internal Audit function

The ordinary reporting flow from the Internal Audit function to the Surveillance Body shall consist of quarterly reports, informing the Surveillance Body of the checks carried out, the main results, the corrective actions put in place by the Units concerned, and the control actions planned for the subsequent quarter, in line with the annual Audit Plan.

Where it deems it necessary, the Surveillance Body shall request from the Internal Audit a copy of the detailed report in order to review specific matters it wishes to address more in depth.

Information flows coming from the Compliance function

The ordinary reporting flow from the Compliance function to the Surveillance Body consists of six-monthly reports, describing the results of the activity carried out, concerning specifically the Model’s adequacy and functioning, any changes made to the processes and procedures (this aspect is covered in collaboration with the Organisation function) and the planned corrective and improvement actions (including training actions) and their progress.

Such information is relayed to the Management Board within the six-monthly compliance reports.

Information flows coming from the Anti-Money laundering function

The periodic reporting flows from the Anti-Money laundering function to the Surveillance Body consist of the quarterly and six-monthly reports provided for by the “Guidelines for contrasting money laundering and terrorism financing phenomena and for managing embargoes”;

Information flows from the Employer pursuant to Legislative Decree no. 81/2008

The ordinary reporting flow from the Employer pursuant to Legislative Decree no. 81/2008 to the Surveillance Body consists of reports with at least annual frequency describing the results of the activity carried out having regard to organisation and to the controls performed on the company’s Health and Safety management system.
Information flows from the Principal pursuant to Legislative Decree no. 81/2008

The ordinary reporting flow from the Principal pursuant to article 88 and following articles of Legislative Decree no. 81/2008 to the Surveillance Body consists of reports with at least annual frequency informing on the results of the organization and control activities on the company’s safety and health management system in temporary or mobile construction sites.
Chapter 5 - The disciplinary system

General Principles

Model effectiveness is ensured – in addition to the adoption of decision-making and control mechanisms such as to eliminate or significantly reduce the risk of commission of the criminal offences and administrative infringements covered by Legislative Decree no. 231/2001 – by the disciplinary instruments established to control compliance with the required conduct.

Any conduct of the employees and of the external parties (meaning self-employed or “para-subordinate workers”, freelance professionals, consultants, agents, suppliers, commercial partners, etc.) which are not in line with the principles and the rules of conduct laid down in this Model – including the Code of Ethics, the Group’s Internal Code of Conduct and the internal procedures and rules, which are an integral part of the Model – shall constitute a breach of contract.

Based on this premise, the Bank shall adopt:

- towards its employees, the system of sanctions laid down in the Bank’s Disciplinary Code and in the laws governing this area,
- towards all external parties, the system of sanctions laid down in the contractual and legal provisions governing this area.

The initiation of action on the basis of the reports submitted by the Internal Audit function or by the Surveillance Body, the implementation and finalisation of the disciplinary proceeding in respect of the employees shall be carried out, within the limits of its competences by the Human Resources function, which shall request the Managing Directors’ prior approval for disciplinary measures against executives.

The penalties against external parties shall be implemented by the function that manages the contract or with which the self-employed worker or the supplier works.

The type and size of each of the sanctions established shall be defined, pursuant to the above-mentioned legislation, taking into account the degree of recklessness, lack of judgment, negligence, fault, or wilfulness of the conduct relating to the action/omission, also considering any repetition of the misconduct, and the work activity carried out by the person concerned and his functional position, together with any other relevant circumstances characterising the fact.

Such disciplinary action shall be pursued regardless of the initiation and/or performance and finalisation of any criminal judicial action, since the principles and the rules of conduct laid down in the Model are adopted by the Bank in full autonomy and independently of any criminal offences which said conduct may determine and which it is for the judicial authority to ascertain. Therefore, in application of the above-mentioned criteria, the following system of sanctions is established.

The Surveillance Body is responsible for verifying the adequacy of the system of sanctions and constantly monitoring the application of sanctions to employees, and the actions in respect of external parties. The Surveillance Body shall also report any infringements it becomes aware of while performing its functions.

Professional and middle management staff
1) Verbal warning shall apply in the event of:
minor breach of the principles and of rules of conduct laid down in this Model or breach of the internal rules and procedures set out and/or referred to, or adoption, within the sensitive areas, of a conduct which is not in line with or not appropriate to the requirements of the Model, such conduct is equivalent to a "slight breach of the contractual rules or of the directives and instructions issued by management or by one's superiors" in the formulation already provided in point a) of the current Disciplinary Code;

2) Written warning shall apply in the event of:
failure to comply with the principles and of rules of conduct laid down in this Model or breach of the internal rules and procedures set out and/or referred to, or adoption, within the sensitive areas, of a conduct which is not in line with or not appropriate to the requirements of the Model, where such non-compliance is assessed to be neither minor nor serious, such conduct is equivalent to a "non-serious breach of the contractual rules or of the directives and instructions issued by management or by one’s superiors" in the formulation already provided in point b) of the current Disciplinary Code;

3) Suspension from work without pay for up to 10 days shall be applied in the event of:
failure to comply with the principles and of rules of conduct laid down in this Model or breach of the internal rules and procedures set out and/or referred to, or adoption, within the sensitive areas, of a conduct which is not in line with or not appropriate to the requirements of the Model, where such non-compliance is assessed to be relatively serious and/or has occurred repeatedly, such conduct is equivalent to a "repeated or relatively serious breach of the contractual rules or of the directives and instructions issued by management or by one’s superiors" in the formulation already provided in point c) of the current Disciplinary Code;

4) Dismissal for substantiated reasons shall apply in the event of:

adoption, in performance of the activities belonging to the sensitive areas, of a conduct characterised by serious non-compliance with the requirements and/or the procedures and/or the internal rules laid down in this Model, where it is even simply liable to give rise to one of the offences covered by the Decree, such conduct is equivalent to an "infringement (. . .) constituting (. . .) a "severe" failure to fulfil one’s obligations" in accordance with point d) of the current Disciplinary Code;

5) dismissal with cause shall apply in the event of:

adoption, in performance of the activities belonging to the sensitive areas, of a conduct wilfully in contrast with the requirements and/or the procedures and/or the internal rules laid down in this Model, which, albeit it is simply liable to give rise to one of the offences covered by the Decree, impairs the relationship of mutual trust which characterises employment relationships, or is so serious as to impede continuation of employment, even temporarily, as such conduct is linked to an "infringement/fault of such seriousness (either because the act was intentional, or on account of its criminal or monetary consequences, or for its repeated occurrence or its particular nature) that it impairs the trust on which an employment relationship is based and prevents continuation of employment" in accordance with point e) of the current Disciplinary Code.

Executives

Where executives infringe the internal principles, rules and procedures set out in this Model or adopt, in performing the activities belonging to the sensitive areas a conduct not in line with the requirements of the Model, such persons shall incur the measures indicated below, which shall be applied having due regard to the seriousness of the infringement and to whether it is a repeat occurrence. Also in consideration of the particular fiduciary relationship existing between the Bank and executive level employees, in compliance with the applicable provisions of the law and with the National Collective Employment Contract for Executives in credit companies, dismissal with notice and dismissal with cause shall be applicable for the most serious infringements.
As said measures involve termination of the employment relationship, the Company, acting in accordance with the legal principle of applying a graduated scale of sanctions, reserves the right, for less serious infringements, to apply the written warning – in cases of mere failure to apply the principles and rules of conduct set out in this Model or of infringement of the internal rules and procedures set out and/or referred to, or of adoption, within the sensitive areas, of a conduct non complying with or not appropriate to the requirements of the Model – or alternatively, to apply suspension from work without pay for up to 10 days – in the event of negligent infringement of duty to a non-negligible degree (and/or repeated) or of negligent conduct infringing the principles and rules of conduct provided for by this Model.

Any conduct adopted by external parties not belonging to the Bank which, in conflict with this Model, may give rise to the risk of occurrence of one of the offences covered by the Decree, shall, in accordance with the specific terms and conditions of contract included in the letter of appointment or in the agreement, produce early termination of the contractual relationship, without prejudice to any further remedy available to the Bank in the event that it suffers real damage as a consequence of such conduct, e.g. where the Judicial Authority applies the sanctions set out in the Decree.

Management Board members

Where the Model is infringed by members of the Bank’s Management Board, the Surveillance Body shall so inform the Supervisory Board, which shall adopt the initiatives it deems appropriate having regard to the nature of the infringement, in accordance with the current legislation.
Chapter 6 - Internal training and communication

The administrative liability regime laid out by the law and the Organisational, Management and Control Model adopted by the Bank form an overall system which must be reflected in the operational conduct of the Bank's Staff.

To obtain appropriate Staff response it is essential to implement a communication and training activity for the purpose of disseminating the contents of the Legislative Decree and of the Organisational model adopted, including all its various components (the corporate instruments underlying the Model, the aims of the Model, its structure and key components, the powers and delegation system, identification of the Surveillance Body, information flows to the Surveillance Body, etc.). The purpose is to ensure that knowledge of the subject matter and compliance with the rules arising from it become an integral part of each staff member's professional culture.

Based on these overarching aims, the internal communication and training plan was designed as a multi-annual plan, addressed to all the Staff, in order to create widespread knowledge and a corporate culture embracing the issues in questions, having regard to the specific activities carried out, so as to mitigate the risk of offences taking place.

6.1 Internal communication

On being hired, new staff members receive, together with the required recruitment documents, a copy of the Group's Model, Code of Ethics and Internal Code of Conduct. By signing a declaration, staff members confirm they have received the documents and have read them fully, and undertake to comply with the rules they contain.

The Regulations section of the company's Intranet contains and makes available for consultation the various internal communications, as well as the Bank's Organisational, Management and Control Model and associated rules (in particular the Group's Code of Ethics and Internal Code of Conduct).

The documents published on this site are regularly updated to incorporate any intervening changes in the legislation and in the Organisational model. The “Internal News” website, also available on the Intranet and the Web TV, both Live and On Demand, provides the Staff with real-time updates on all new matters; the Web TV also features video clips lasting about ten minutes each, including interviews with the various department Heads, providing additional information on applicable legislation, “sensitive” activities, training actions, etc..

Moreover, the house organ has regular features addressing specific matters in depth, which are also prepared with the help of experts.

In summary, all the instruments mentioned above, together with the in-house communications and circular notices, ensure that all Staff members receive exhaustive and prompt information at all times.

6.2 Training

The purpose of the training plan is to make the new Model known and, in particular, to appropriately support those who are involved in “sensitive” activities.

To ensure it would be effective, the plan was designed taking into account the many variables present in the reference context; in particular,

- target (the addressees of the actions and their position and role in the organisation);
- contents (subjects covered, relevant to the individuals’ roles);
- training delivery tools (classroom setting, e-learning, Web TV);
- training planning and delivery time (the time needed to prepare and implement the training actions);
- the level of commitment required of the trainees (training time);
- the actions necessary to adequately support the training action (promotion, support by the Department heads).

The plan includes:

- baseline e-learning training module addressed to the whole Staff;
- specific classroom training modules designed for Staff members operating in the sectors at greater risk of unlawful conduct (in particular, those working in close contact with the Public Administration, those operating in the Procurement or Finance departments etc.);
- Short TV features addressed to the whole Staff, (about 10/12 minutes each), addressing the Protocols having the highest impact/exposure levels, internal rules, and the operating conduct to be adopted.

The e-learning training tool, of moderate length (about 1 hour), made attractive by its graphic design and interactive procedures, serves to disseminate promptly and extensively the contents to be known by the whole Staff – reference legislation (Legislative Decree no. 231/2001 and predicate offences), the Model and its operation, the contents of the Code of Ethics and of the Group’s Internal Code of Conduct – and includes a self-assessment test enabling each Staff member to assess the level of knowledge acquired.

The classroom training modules, which are implemented after using the e-learning product, are designed differently for each operational area. Their purpose is to disseminate knowledge of the offences, possible types of offences, and specific safeguards in place in different departments, and to refer to the proper application of the Organisational, Management and Control Model. The teaching method is strongly interactive and makes use of case studies.

The television video clips, which come after the e-learning training and classroom modules, enable all staff members, whether or not engaged in “sensitive” activities, to acquire additional information, remain constantly aware of the theme, consolidate their knowledge and increasingly incorporate the rules of conduct in all their daily activities.

The training contents are regularly updated having regard to the developments in external legislation and in the Model. Whenever substantial changes take place (e.g. extension of the scope of the entity’s administrative liability to include new types of offences), training contents are suitably supplemented and delivered.

All staff targeted by the various training actions are required to participate in the training. Participation is monitored by the competent Human Resources department, assisted by the various department/office Heads, who will in particular be responsible to ensure that their subordinates actually use the distance learning tools.

The Human Resources department shall collect the attendance data relating to the various training programmes and keep such data in dedicated records.

The Surveillance Body shall monitor the progress of the training plan also by means of the information forwarded by the Compliance function, and may request periodic checks on the Staff’s level of knowledge of the Decree, of the Model and of its operational implications.
Chapter 7 – Predicate offences - Areas, activities and associated rules of conduct and control

7.1 Identification of the sensitive areas

Article 6, paragraph 2, of the Legislative Decree no. 231/2001 provides that the Model shall “identify the activities within which offences may be committed”.

Therefore, as described in paragraph 2.4, the types of predicate offences covered by the Decree have been analysed and for each category the Bank’s corporate areas at risk for such offences have been identified.

For each area, the various sensitive activities have been identified and the control principles and rules of conduct to be applied by all the persons assigned to those areas have been defined.

The Model is fully implemented in the Company’s operations by connecting each area and “sensitive” activity with the corporate structures concerned and with the dynamic management of the processes and of the relevant reference rules.

Under the provisions of the law currently in force, the sensitive areas identified by the Model concern, in general:

- Sensitive area concerning offences against the Public Administration;
- Sensitive area concerning offences of forgery of money (and valuables);
- Sensitive area concerning corporate offences;
- Sensitive area concerning crimes with the purpose of terrorism or subversion of the democratic order, organised crime, transnational crimes and crimes against the person;
- Sensitive area concerning receipt of stolen goods, money laundering and use of unlawfully obtained money, goods or benefits;
- Sensitive area concerning crimes and administrative offences relating to market abuse;
- Sensitive area concerning workplace health and safety offences;
- Sensitive area concerning computer crimes;
- Sensitive area concerning crimes against industry and trade and crimes involving breach of copyright.
- Sensitive area concerning offences against the environment,
7.2 Sensitive area concerning offences against the Public Administration

7.2.1 Offences

Introduction
Articles 24 and 25 of the Decree concern a series of offences laid down in the Criminal Code which have in common the identity of the legal asset they protect, which is the impartiality and sound management of the Public Administration.

For the purposes of criminal law a Public Administration Body is defined as being any legal person that pursues and/or implements and manages public interests and which is engaged in legislative, jurisdictional or administrative activity, governed by provisions of public law and which is implemented through instruments issued by the authorities.

Purely by way of example, and with reference to the entities typically having relations with the Bank, the following can be identified as being Public Administration Bodies: i) the State, the Regions, the Provinces, the Municipalities; ii) Ministries, Departments, Committees; (iii) Non-economic Public Entities (INPS, ENASARCO, INAIL, ISTAT).

Among the types of criminal offences considered here, extortion in office, as well as bribery, in its various forms, assume the involvement of a natural person who, for the purposes of criminal law, holds the position of “Public Official” and/or of “Person in Charge of a Public Service”, as defined respectively in Articles 357 and 358 of the Criminal Code.

In short, it should be noted that the distinction between the two profiles is in many cases debatable and blurred, and that it is defined by the above-mentioned provisions according to criteria referring to the objective function performed by such persons.

The title of Public Official is given to those who perform a legislative, judicial or administrative public function. The exercise of an administrative public function is usually associated with those who have decision-making responsibilities or concur to the decision making process of a public body or who represent the public body in dealings with third parties, and with those exercising “authoritative powers” or “certification powers”.

Purely by way of example, we may mention the following persons, who have been identified by case law as being Public Officials: court bailiffs, court-appointed technical experts, tax collectors attached to municipal companies, university assistants, postmen, officials at the ACI (Italian Automobile Club) branch offices, municipal councillors, municipal surveyors, public school teachers, health service officials, notaries and employees of INPS (Italian Social Security Agency).

1 The concept of “authoritative powers” includes not only coercive powers, but also any discretionary activity carried out in respect of persons who are not on the same level as the authority (see Court of Cassation, Joint Sections, ruling no. 181 of 11 July 1992). The concept of certification powers covers all the activities relating to the issue of documentation having the power of proof under the law, whatever their level.
The title of Person in Charge of a Public Service is assigned by exclusion, as it goes to those who perform public interest activities, not consisting of simple or merely material tasks, governed in the same manner as public function, but which do not entail the powers typically assigned to a Public Official.

Purely by way of example, we may mention the following persons, who have been identified by case law as being Person in Charge of a Public Services: payment collectors of the National Electricity Company (Enel), gas and electricity meter readers, post office clerks tasked with sorting correspondence, employees of the Italian State Mint, security guards responsible for cash consignments.

It should be noted that under the law, for the purpose of being classified as a Public Official or a Person in Charge of a Public Service, a person does not necessarily have to be an employee of a Public body: this because in certain particular cases, a public function or public service may also be performed by a private person. With reference to Bank operations, certain specific activities - in particular those concerning the placement of public debt securities, tax collection, treasury services for a Public Body, investment financing, special or soft loans, can, according to case law, take on public service relevance to the point that the Bank’s employees and managers may, in performing those activities, take on the title of Person in Charge of a Public Service, with the consequence that they would become indictable for those offences whose existence is based on possession of this title by the person who engages in the punished conduct. Of these offences, only bribery and extortion in office are included among the “predicate offences” for which the Bank may be held liable under Legislative Decree no. 231/2001.

It should be noted in particular that, under Article 322-bis of the Criminal Code, the conduct of the bribe-giver is a punishable criminal offence not only when its recipients are Public Officials and Persons in Charge of a Public Service within the Italian Public Administration, but also when: i) it is pursued towards persons holding corresponding functions or performing corresponding activities within European Community institutions, or within Entities established on the basis of the Treaties establishing the European Communities, or, lastly, within the other European Union Member States; ii) it is implemented towards persons holding corresponding functions or performing corresponding activities within other third countries or international public organisations, provided that, in this case, the bribe-giver pursues an undue benefit for himself or others with reference to an international economic transaction or acts in order to obtain or maintain an economic or financial activity (for example, in order to avoid termination of a supply/works contract or the issue of a measure negatively affecting his economic activity).

The criminal offences laid down in Articles 24 and 25 of the Decree are summarised below.
Embezzlement to the detriment of the State (Article 316-bis of the Criminal Code)
This type of offence occurs when, after lawfully receiving loans, subsidies or grants from the Italian Government or the European Union for the implementation of works or activities in the public interest, a party does not use the funds so obtained for the purposes for which they were granted. For banks, this type of offence can occur either where the subsidies are directly granted to the Bank for its benefit, or where the Bank takes part in the funding process in favour of private beneficiaries who are responsible for the diversion of those funds from their intended public purposes, and aid and abet such beneficiaries in perpetration of the offence.

Unlawful receipt of public grants to the detriment of the State (Article 316-ter of the Criminal Code)
The offence is committed in the cases in which – by using or submitting false statements or documents, or by omitting due information – a party obtains grants, financing, subsidised loans or other similar contributions granted or issued by the State, by other Public Authorities or by the European Union without being entitled to them. This offence is committed regardless of the use to which the contributions are put, as the crime arises at the time when the contributions are obtained. This offence, too, can occur either where the beneficiary of the grants is the Bank itself or where the Bank acts as a intermediary in favour of customers responsible for the false declarations and aids and abets them.

Fraud (Article 640, paragraph 2, no. 1, of the Criminal Code)
This type of offence occurs when an unfair profit is obtained by means of artifices or deceits aimed at misleading and causing a damage to the State or any other Public Body. This offence occurs, for instance, when, in preparing the documents or data required for participating in a tender procedure, the tenderer provides the Public Administration with false information supported by forged documents in order to be awarded the contract.

Aggravated fraud for the purpose of obtaining public funds (Article 640-bis of the Criminal Code)
This type of offence occurs when the fraud is carried out for the purpose of unduly obtaining public funds from the State, other Public bodies or the European Union. The distinguishing features of this offence are the following: compared with the generic fraud offence (Article 640, paragraph 2, no. 1, of the Criminal Code), this offence is characterised by its specific material object, which is obtaining public funds, howsoever named; compared with the unlawful receipt of public grants (Article 316-ter of the Criminal Code), this offence is characterised by the additional use of some artifices or deceits to mislead the granting authority.
Computer fraud (Article 640-ter)
Computer fraud consists of altering the functioning of an IT or telecommunications system or of tampering with the data or software contained therein, obtaining unfair profit. This type of offence is relevant for the purposes of Legislative Decree no. 231/2001 only where it is committed to the detriment of the State or other Public Bodies.
By way of example, such an offence may occur in the event that, once a loan has been obtained, the IT system is tampered with for the purpose of changing the amount of the loan to an amount higher than that lawfully obtained, or where, the entries of a current account held by a Public Body are changed by unlawfully breaking into a home banking system.

Extortion in office (Article 317 of the Criminal Code)
This type of offence occurs when a Public Official or a Person in Charge of a Public Service, abusing of his/her position, forces someone to provide him or a third party with money or other undue benefits. The victim of the extortion is not considered to be a party to the offence, but rather as a victim of it, and is accordingly exempted from any criminal penalties.
Liability of legal persons under Legislative Decree no. 231/2001 in the case of extortion in office would seem to arise only in the event that a manager or an employer of the legal person (acting in the interest or for the benefit of such legal person) aids and abets the Public Official or the Person in Charge of a Public Service author of the extortion.
However, as stated in the Introduction, where a bank employee performs activities that can be qualified as public services, according to case law such employee takes on the title of Person in Charge of a Public Service or of Public Official: in this case, where such person engages in extortive conduct by attempting to obtain money or other benefits for performing such activities (for example: to approve the disbursement of a subsidised loan), he might become guilty of this offence, and where the other conditions are met, the Bank would also be held liable.

Bribery
In general, bribery consists of an agreement between a Public Official or a Person in Charge of a Public Service and a private party, by which the former accepts from the latter undue remuneration for performing an act which is contrary to his official duties (direct bribery) or which is in line with his duties (indirect bribery).
Bribery occurs where the two parties, being on an equal footing, enter into a fully fledged agreement, whereas extortion in office occurs where the person holding the public office exploits his superior position vis-à-vis the private party who is in a state of inferiority.
In bribery, two separate offences are distinguished: one is committed by the person receiving the bribe, who holds the public office (passive bribery), the other is committed by the bribe-giver (active bribery). The Bank may be liable for this type of offence committed by its employees or managers also in its interest or for its benefit in the case of both active and passive bribery. Indeed, as stated in the Introduction, where a bank employee performs activities that can be qualified as public services, such employee may take on the title of Person in Charge of a Public Service or of Public Official.

The following types of bribery are covered by Legislative Decree no. 231/2001.

Bribery relating to official duties (Article 318 of the Criminal Code)

Bribery relating to acts contrary to official duties (Article 319 of the Criminal Code)

This type of offence occurs when a Public Official or a Person in Charge of a Public Service receives, for his/her own benefit or for the benefit of others, money or other advantages for performing, omitting or delaying his/her official duties (thus determining a benefit for the offeror). The activity of the Public Official can concern either a required act (for example: fast-tracking a procedure which comes under his responsibility) or an act contrary to his official duties (for example: a Public Official who accepts money to ensure the award of a contract in a competitive tendering procedure).

Pursuant to Article 320 of the Criminal Code, a Person in Charge of a Public Service may be indicted for the offence referred to in Article 319 of the Criminal Code regardless of whether such person is also a public employee; on the other hand, to be indicted for the offence set out in Article 318 of the Criminal Code, a Person in Charge of a Public Service must also be a public employee.

Bribery in judicial proceedings (Article 319-ter, paragraph 1, of the Criminal Code)

In this type of offence, the conduct of the bribed person or of the bribe-giver is characterised by the specific aim of favouring or damaging one of the parties to criminal, civil or administrative proceedings.

Incitement to bribery (Article 322 of the Criminal Code)

This offence is committed by a private party whose offer or promise or money or of other benefits for performance of an official duty (Article 318 of the Criminal Code) or of an act contrary to official duties (Article 319 of the Criminal Code) is rejected. The same offence applies to a Public Official or a Person in Charge of a Public Service who solicits such offer or promise without obtaining it.
7.2.2 Sensitive company activities

The sensitive activities identified by Model which involve the highest risks of unlawful conduct in relations with the Public Administration are the following:

- Signing contracts with the Public Administration;
- Managing contracts with the Public Administration;
- Management of the activities relating to the request for authorisation or fulfilment of requirements towards the Public Administration;
- Management and use of the Group’s IT systems and Information assets;
- Management of public subsidy schemes;
- Management of funded training;
- Management of litigation and out-of court settlements;
- Management of relations with the Supervisory Authorities;
- Management of the procedures for the procurement of goods and services and for the appointment of professional consultants;
- Management of gifts, entertainment expenses, donations to charities and sponsorships;
- Management of the staff selection and recruitment process;
- Management of the real-estate assets and of the movable property having artistic value.

With reference to the sensitive activity concerning Management and use of the Group’s computer systems and Information Assets, see protocol 7.9.2.1; we reproduce hereunder the protocols laying down the control principles and rules of conduct applicable to the other above-mentioned sensitive activities and which are supplemented by the detailed corporate regulations governing such activities.
7.2.2.1. Signing contracts with the Public Administration

Introduction
This protocol applies to all the Bank Structures involved in the signing of any type of contracts with Public Administration bodies, concerning transactions such as, but not limited to:

- treasury contracts and management, collection and payment services, bank contracts and contracts for the rendering of investment services;
- contracts/agreements for the disbursement/management of soft financing transactions and/or credit facilities;
- direct financing to Public Bodies;
- conclusion of lease contracts with Public Bodies which act as lessors;
- conclusion of agreements with Public Bodies concerning the offer of banking, investment and insurance products and services to public employees;
- conclusion of agreements with SACE and SIMEST;
- conclusion of corporate contractual relationships and shareholders’ agreements with Public Bodies, for the purpose of establishing and managing equity investments.

Pursuant to Legislative Decree no. 231/2001, the related contract signing process could present potential opportunities for perpetration of the offences of “bribery”1 and “fraud to the detriment of the State”.

The contents of this protocol are aimed at ensuring that the Bank complies with the current legislation and the principles of transparency, correctness, objectivity and traceability in the performance of the activity in question.

Process description
The process for the conclusion of contractual relationships with the Public Administration comprises the following steps:

1 As already stated, under Article 322-bis of the Criminal Code, the conduct of the bribe-giver is a punishable criminal offence not only when its recipients are Public Officials and Public Service Providers within the Italian Public Administration, but also when: i) it is pursued towards persons holding corresponding functions or performing corresponding activities within European Community institutions, or within Entities established on the basis of the Treaties establishing the European Communities, or, lastly, within the other European Union Member States; ii) it is implemented towards persons holding corresponding functions or performing corresponding activities within other third countries or international public organisations, provided that, in this case, the bribe-giver pursues an undue benefit for himself or others with reference to an international economic transaction or acts in order to obtain or maintain an economic or financial activity (for example, in order to avoid the termination of a supply/works contract or the issue of a measure negatively affecting his economic activity).
commercial development activity and identification of business opportunities; management of pre-contractual relations with the Public Administration also in view of the conclusion of ad hoc Agreements between the Public Administration and the Bank; participation (where required) in public tendering procedures for the award of the services including:
  o preparing and approving the documentation and forms necessary for participating in the tender procedures;
  o submitting the application for participation in the tender procedure to the Public Body of reference;
  o preparing and approving the documentation and forms necessary for submission of the commercial offer to the Entities;
  o submission of the technical and economic offers to the Public Body of reference;
• conclusion of the contract with the Entity (preparing all the information necessary for the subsequent management of the contract).

The operating procedures for management of the process are governed by the internal rules, which are developed and updated by the competent Structures, and which form an integral and substantive part of this protocol.

Control principles

The control system for monitoring the process described above must be based on the following elements:

- Authorisation levels defined within each operating step of the process. Specifically:
  o all persons involved in the management of the pre-contractual relations with the Public Administration shall be identified and authorised by the Head of the reference Structure by means of internal delegation, to be kept on file by the same Structure;
  o all acts which involve a contractual commitment on the part of the Bank must be signed solely by duly appointed persons;
  o the power and delegation system establishes management autonomy levels according to type of expenditure and size of the commitment, including in contracts with the Public Administration; the internal rules illustrate the above-mentioned authorisation mechanisms, indicating the corporate officials who hold the necessary powers.

- Segregation of duties between the different persons involved in the process of defining the contractual agreement with the Public Bodies. Specifically:
the commercial development activities shall be carried out by different structures from those which manage operationally the delivery of the products/services covered by the contract;

- definition of the agreement is exclusively entrusted to the Head of the Corporate structure which is competent by reason of the subject of the contract or to duly empowered persons; formal conclusion of the contract shall take place in accordance with the current power and delegation system;

- the persons tasked with preparing the documentation for submission of the technical and economic offer, or for participation in public calls for tenders, shall be different from those who sign such offers or tenders.

Control activities:

- the documentation relating to conclusion of the contractual relationships shall be submitted for review to the Head of the Corporate structure which is competent by reason of the subject of the contract or to duly empowered persons who, for the purpose of defining new types of contracts, shall avail themselves of the advice of the competent Structure with regard to legal aspects;

- all the documentation prepared by the Bank for participation in public calls for tenders must be checked, for material and formal truthfulness and congruence, by the Head of the Corporate structure competent by reason of the subject of the contract or by duly empowered persons.

Process traceability including both the information system and the paper trail:

- each relevant stage of the agreements with the Public Administration must be recorded in specific written documents;

- any agreement/convention/contract with Public Bodies shall be formalised in a document, which shall be duly signed by persons holding the required powers under the current power and delegation system;

- in order to allow reconstruction of the responsibilities and of reasons for the choices made, each Structure shall be responsible for filing and storing the documentation falling under its competence, also in telematic or electronic format, as well as the final agreements/covenants/contracts as part of the activities relating to the process of entering into contracts with the Public Administration.

Reward and incentive systems: the reward and incentive systems must be able to ensure consistency with the provisions of the law, with the principles set out in this protocol, and with the provisions of the Code of Ethics, also by including appropriate corrective mechanisms to address any non-compliant conduct.

Rules of conduct

The Bank’s structures howsoever involved in the activities relating to the conclusion of contractual relationships with the Public Administration, shall comply with the procedures set out in this protocol, the applicable provisions of the law, the internal rules and any provisions of the Group's Code of Ethics and Internal Code of Conduct. Specifically:

- all persons that, during the phase of commercial development and identification of new business opportunities, enter into relations with the Public Administration on behalf of the Bank, must be expressly authorised;
- the persons involved in the process that are responsible for signing acts or documents which are relevant outside the Bank, such as contracts for the sale of services, must be expressly appointed;
- staff members cannot accept and must immediately report for appropriate action to their Head any request for inappropriate benefits or attempts at extortion in office by an official of the Public Administration they might receive or simply become aware of; the Head so informed must in turn forward the report received to the Internal Audit function for assessment and further action;
- if third parties are to be involved in the process for the conclusion of the contractual relationships with the Public Administration, the contracts entered into with such persons shall contain a specific declaration that they know the provisions of Legislative Decree no. 231/2001 and undertake to comply with them;
- the corporate procedures shall define the criteria and the cases in which the participation of third parties must be first submitted to an independent function for assessment;
- the payment of fees or remuneration to any employees or external consultants involved is subject to prior authorisation to be issued by the organisational unit which is competent to assess the quality of service and the consequent appropriateness of the remuneration requested; in any case, no remuneration shall be payable to employees or external consultants where it is not adequately justified by the type of work performed or to be performed.

In any case, it is forbidden to engage in, collaborate with or induce conduct which may belong to one of the types of offences covered by Legislative Decree no. 231/2001; more specifically, purely by way of example and without limitation it is forbidden to:
• present incomplete documents and/or communicate false or altered data;
• adopt deceitful conduct which might lead Public Bodies into error in their choice of procuring services from the Bank or in respect to the characteristics of bank and financial products/services;
• threaten the participants in public tendering procedures with causing them unfair damage in order to discourage them from tendering or in order to become apprised of such tenderers' offers for the purpose of formulating a better offer and obtaining the contract;
• ask or induce members of the Public Administration to grant preferential treatment or omit due information in order to improperly influence the decision to conclude agreements/covenants/contracts with the Bank;
• promise or pay/offer sums of money, gifts or free benefits outside the scope of company practice or the practices of the operating context (for example festivities, local customs and traditions, standard market or business practices) and grant advantages of any kind to representatives of the Public Administration on a personal basis in order to further or favour the Bank’s interests. Examples of such improper advantages include, without limitation, the promise to hire family members and relatives, and, more in general, all the banking or financial transactions which generate a loss for the Bank and a profit for the Public Official (e.g. cancelling a debt position and/or applying conditions not in line with market parameters);
• award appointments to any external consultants without following substantiated and objective criteria addressing competitiveness, benefits, price, integrity, reliability and the ability to provide effective ongoing assistance. In particular, the rules for the selection of consultants shall refer to the criteria of clarity and availability of documentary evidence laid down in the Group’s Code of Ethics and Internal Code of Conduct; this in order to prevent the risk of commission of bribery offences which could arise from the possible choice of parties who are “close” to persons linked to the Public Administration and to the consequent possibility of facilitating the establishment/development of relationships aimed at award of the appointment.

1 As already stated, under Article 322-bis of the Criminal Code, the conduct of the bribe-giver is a punishable criminal offence not only when its recipients are Public Officials and Public Service Providers within the Italian Public Administration, but also when: i) it is pursued towards persons holding corresponding functions or performing corresponding activities within European Community institutions, or within Entities established on the basis of the Treaties establishing the European Communities, or, lastly, within the other European Union Member States; ii) it is implemented towards persons holding corresponding functions or performing corresponding activities within other third countries or international public organisations, provided that, in this case, the bribe-giver pursues an undue benefit for himself or others with reference to an international economic transaction or acts in order to obtain or maintain an economic or financial activity (for example, in order to avoid the termination of a supply/works contract or the issue of a measure negatively affecting his economic activity).
Process description

The management of subsidies and facilities comprises the following steps:

- receiving the applications for subsidies and/or financing;
- examining the applications for subsidies and/or financing;

- concluding the contracts, where applicable;
- obtaining the documents necessary for the disbursements;

- management, were applicable, of repayments and of the debt recovery.

The operating procedures for management of the process are governed by the internal rules, which are developed and updated by the competent Structures, and which form an integral and substantive part of this protocol.

Control principles

The control system for monitoring the process described above must be based on the following elements:

- Authorisation levels defined within each operating step of the process. Specifically:
  - all persons howsoever involved in the management of facilities shall be identified and authorised by the Head of the reference Structure by means of internal delegation, to be kept on file by the same Structure;
  - all approvals of acts involving the acceptance of obligations by the Bank shall be issued by specifically appointed persons; the internal rules illustrate the above-mentioned authorisation mechanisms, indicating the corporate officials who hold the necessary authorisation powers.
• Segregation of duties between the different persons involved, in order to ensure that a maker and checker mechanism is in place in all stages of the process. In particular, where granting of the financing is decided by the Bank, the financing application must be assessed by a different person from the one responsible for issuing the financing decision, except for any exceptions expressly set out in the internal rules applicable from time to time. Furthermore, the persons empowered to grant the financing shall have different decision-making powers according to the customer’s creditworthiness ranking (probability of default).

• Control activities: the line controls that must be performed by the Structure competent for the financing granted under Ministerial funds for research and development projects include:
  o evaluation and approval, by the heads of the offices/operational teams, of the application assessment reports and of the progress reports on the investments, including the final report;
  o use of IT systems dedicated to the operations, which will include, where possible, appropriate automated control systems.

As to the Structures responsible for managing the other facilities, the line control activity includes in particular:
• verification, by the examiners in the operations offices, of the economic and capital capacity of applicants, of the technical, economic and financial viability of the projects and of the soundness of the financial plans under assessment;
• use of IT systems dedicated to operations, which shall include automated control systems (data checks, error warnings, etc.);
• implementation of signing-off procedures for the main project documents;
• verification, by the proposing body, that the requirements of eligibility, appropriateness of expenditure and soundness of the financial plan are met;
• technical check, also by third parties, of the fairness of documented expenditure and of no obstacle to disbursement of the facility;
• existence of final checks/controls on the correctness of the documentation annexed to each application, by the competent team/operations office;
• any periodic checks to be performed under specific control and monitoring obligations set out in the agreement with the Public Body.
Furthermore, each Structure involved in accounting/administrative activities relating to performance of the processes covered by this protocol shall ensure correct performance of the line control, and checks on the regularity of the transactions and on the completeness, the correctness and prompt recording of the accounting entries, which must be constantly supported by maker and checker mechanisms.

- Process traceability including both the electronic and the paper trail:
  - in order to allow reconstruction of responsibilities and the reasons for the choices made, the Structure from time to time concerned shall be responsible for filing and storing, also in telematic or electronic format, all the documentation it produced relating to performance of the requirements during management of the facilities.
- Reward and incentive systems: the reward and incentive systems must be able to ensure consistency with the provisions of the law, with the principles set out in this protocol, and with the provisions of the Code of Ethics, also by including appropriate corrective mechanisms to address any non-compliant conduct.

Rules of conduct

The Bank’s structures howsoever involved in management of the facilities shall comply with the procedures set out in this protocol, the applicable provisions of the law, the internal rules and any provisions of the Group's Code of Ethics and Internal Code of Conduct.

Specifically:

- all persons that, in the application stage or during management of the subsidised loans or grants engage in relations with the Public Administration on behalf of the Bank and those who are responsible for signing acts or documents having external relevance (e.g. application files, requests for funds, etc.) must be expressly authorised;
- staff members cannot accept and must immediately report for appropriate action to their Head any request for inappropriate benefits or attempts at extortion in office by an official of the Public Administration they might receive or simply become aware of; the Head so informed must in turn forward the report received to the Internal Audit function for assessment and further action;
- if third parties are to be involved in preparation of the financing application/management documents or in the subsequent performance of activities linked to the financed projects/programmes, the contracts/letters of appointment entered into with such persons shall contain a specific declaration that they know the provisions of Legislative Decree no. 231/2001 and undertake to comply with them;
the payment of fees or remuneration to any employees or external consultants involved is subject to prior authorisation to be issued by the organisational unit which is competent to assess the quality of service and the consequent appropriateness of the remuneration requested; in any case, no remuneration shall be payable to employees or external consultants where it is not adequately justified by the type of work performed or to be performed.

for reasons of incompatibility with the public law role played by the Bank, subsidised loans/capital grants and/or grants for interest relief issued to the enterprises benefiting from the facilities cannot be paid in advance or transferred by the beneficiaries to the Bank responsible for examining the application. Therefore it is strictly prohibited to approve loans or advances with irrevocable payment order or to assign facilities payable to the enterprises whose application is processed by the Bank;

the Heads of the Structures concerned must ensure, in their respective departments, the ongoing updating and awareness-raising of staff on the reference external legislation and ensure that the staff takes part in the training activities provided by the Bank’s central Structures;

all relations with and obligations towards the Public Administration, or its representatives/Officials, shall be carried out with the highest transparency, diligence and professionalism, supplying clear, accurate, complete, faithful and truthful information, and always reporting any conflicts of interest following the established procedure.

In any case, it is forbidden to engage in, collaborate with or induce conduct which may belong to one of the types of offences covered by Legislative Decree no. 231/2001; more specifically, purely by way of example and without limitation it is forbidden to:

- knowingly accept and/or present incomplete documents and/or communicate false or altered data;
- adopt deceitful conduct which might lead Public Bodies into error;
- ask or induce members of the Public Administration to grant preferential treatment or omit due information in order to improperly influence the management of the relationship with the Bank;
- use grants, subsidies, and public financing granted to the customers for other than their intended purpose in order to procure an advantage for the Bank, also by offsetting said facilities against receivables or by not passing them on;
- promise or pay/off er sums of money, gifts or free benefits outside the scope of company practice or the practices of the operating context (for example festivities, local customs and traditions, standard market or business practices) and grant advantages of any kind to the Public employee on a personal basis in order to further or favour the Bank’s interests. Examples of such improper advantages include, without limitation, the promise to hire family members and relatives, and, more in general, all the banking or financial transactions which generate a loss for the Bank and a profit for the Public Official (e.g. cancelling a debt position and/or applying conditions not in line with market parameters);

- accept gifts, advantages of any kind or sums of money from enterprises, yield to recommendations and pressures from said enterprises, in order to facilitate processing of the application and/or ensure granting of the requested facility;
- award appointments to any external consultants without following substantiated and objective criteria addressing competitiveness, benefits, price, integrity, reliability and the ability to provide effective ongoing assistance. In particular, the rules for the selection of consultants shall refer to the criteria of clarity and availability of documentary evidence laid down in the Group’s Code of Ethics and Internal Code of Conduct; this in order to prevent the risk of commission of bribery offences which could arise from the possible choice of parties who are “close” to persons linked to the Public Administration and to the consequent possibility of facilitating/influencing the relationship with the Bank.

7.2.2.5. Management of funded training

Introduction

This protocol applies to all the Bank Structures involved in the management of the funded training.

Through the management of funded training the Bank, where the requirements are met, obtains training financing, subsidies and grants issued by national and foreign public entities including, by way of example and without limitations, the following instruments:

- European Social Fund (financing for the training of employed/unemployed persons – Community, Regional and Provincial grants);
- Fon.Dir. (National inter-professional fund for the ongoing training of services sector executive employees);
- F.B.A. (Fondo Banche e Assicurazioni [Banks and Insurances Fund] );
- Solidarity Fund for income and employment support and for the professional conversion and professional retraining of credit sector employees.

Pursuant to Legislative Decree no. 231/2001, the related process could present potential opportunities for commission of the offences of “bribery”¹, “aggravated fraud for the purpose of obtaining public funds ” and “embezzlement”.

The contents of this protocol are aimed at ensuring that the Bank complies with the current legislation and the principles of transparency, correctness, objectivity and traceability in the performance of the activity in question.

¹ As already stated, under Article 322-bis of the Criminal Code, the conduct of the bribe-giver is a punishable criminal offence not only when its recipients are Public Officials and Public Service Providers within the Italian Public Administration, but also when: i) it is pursued towards persons holding corresponding functions or performing corresponding activities within European Community institutions, or within Entities established on the basis of the Treaties establishing the European Communities, or, lastly, within the other European Union Member States; ii) it is implemented towards persons holding corresponding functions or performing corresponding activities within other third countries or international public organisations, provided that, in this case, the bribe-giver pursues an undue benefit for himself or others with reference to an international economic transaction or acts in order to obtain or maintain an economic or financial activity (for example, in order to avoid the termination of a supply/works contract or the issue of a measure negatively affecting his economic activity).
Process description

The process involves the following stages:

- identification of initiatives eligible for financing;
- preparation and submission of the financing/grant application to Public Body, accompanied, where provided for, by the memorandum of understanding signed with the competent local trade unions;
- implementation of the funded projects;
  - management of the operations relating to the funded initiative;
  - management of the resources provided for by the project/initiative (economic and technical, internal and external);
- cost reporting;
  - collection of accounting data, preparation and drafting of the report;
- management of relations with the Financing Bodies during checks and inspections performed by them;
- management of grant received.

The operating procedures for management of the process are governed by the internal rules, which are developed and updated by the competent Structures, and which form an integral and substantive part of this protocol.

Control principles

The control system for monitoring the process described above must be based on the following elements:

- Authorisation levels defined within each operating step of the process. Specifically:
  - all persons who, in the “management of funded training”, engage in relations with the funding Bodies shall be identified and authorised by the Head of the reference Structure by means of internal delegation, to be kept on file by the same Structure;
  - the financing/grant applications shall be signed by the Head of the competent Structure specifically and formally empowered under the current power and delegation system; the internal set of rules illustrates these authorisation mechanisms, indicating the company staff members to whom the necessary powers are assigned;
  - when the services of external consultants are procured, the appointment process shall take place in accordance with the procedure set up in the dedicated section of this Model (protocol on: “Management of the procedures for the procurement of goods and services and for the appointment of professional consultants”). In any case, consultants shall be selected by collecting a suitable number of offers and choosing among them on the basis of objective and codified criteria.

- Segregation of duties between the different persons involved, in order to ensure that maker and checker mechanism is in place in all stages of the process. In particular, the competent Structure shall assign to each office under its organisational responsibility specific operational and control activities ensuring the separation of roles between the individuals handling the funded training application process and those in charge of the checks.

- Control activity by each competent Structure and in particular:
  - verifying that the contents of the training project are in line with the guidelines set out in the funding call;
  - checking the formal correctness of the documents to be submitted to the Funding Entity in order to participate in the funding call;
  - keeping an attendance record during delivery of the training projects and using supporting IT systems for staff management, recording detailed information on attendance and activities carried out;
  - monitoring the expenditure reporting process throughout, by:
    - collecting and checking the attendance registers, fully completed by participants in the training actions;
    - collecting the documents on the costs for the company of the participating employees/teachers, based on the hourly consideration calculated by the competent office also in view of the participants in the initiative;
    - collecting and checking the fees/invoices concerning the costs incurred for the initiative;
    - verifying the prompt and correct recording of the grants received.

- Process traceability including both the electronic and the paper trail: all the phases of the process are documented, in accordance with the provisions of the funding calls. In particular, each Structure involved in the funded training process shall be responsible for filing and storing, the documentation it is competent for, including the documents sent to the Public financing Entity also by telematic or electronic means.
Rules of conduct

The Bank’s Structures which are howsoever involved in management of the funded training shall comply with the procedures set out in this protocol, the applicable provisions of the law, the internal rules and any provisions of the Group’s Code of Ethics and Internal Code of Conduct. Specifically:

- all persons that, during the subsidised financing or grant application and management process engage in relations with the Public Administration on behalf of the Bank, must be expressly authorised;
- the persons involved in the process and who are responsible for signing acts or documents which are relevant outside the Bank (e.g. application files, feasibility studies, project plans, etc.) must be specifically appointed;
- staff members cannot accept and must immediately report for appropriate action to their Head any request for inappropriate benefits or attempts at extortion in office by an official of the Public Administration they might receive or simply become aware of; the Head so informed must in turn forward the report received to the Internal Audit function for assessment and further action;
- if third parties are to be involved in preparation of the financing application/management documents or in the subsequent performance of activities linked to the financed programmes, the contracts entered into with such persons shall contain a specific declaration that they know the provisions of Legislative Decree no. 231/2001 and undertake to comply with them;
- the payment of fees or remuneration to any employees or external consultants involved is subject to prior authorisation to be issued by the organisational unit which is competent to assess the quality of service and the consequent appropriateness of the remuneration requested; in any case, no remuneration shall be payable to employees or external consultants where it is not adequately justified by the type of work performed or to be performed.

In any case, it is forbidden to engage in, collaborate with or induce conduct which may belong to one of the types of offences covered by Legislative Decree no. 231/2001; more specifically, purely by way of example and without limitation it is forbidden to:

- present incomplete documents and/or communicate false or altered data;
- adopt deceitful conduct which might lead Public Bodies into error in the technical-economic assessment of the documents submitted;
• use public grants, subsidies and financing for other than the purpose they have been granted for;
• promise or pay/offer sums of money, gifts or free benefits outside the scope of company practice or the practices of the operating context (for example festivities, local customs and traditions, standard market or business practices) and grant advantages of any kind to representatives of the Public Administration on a personal basis in order to further or favour the Bank’s interests in obtaining the funding. Examples of such improper advantages include, without limitation, the promise to hire family members and relatives, and, more in general, all the banking or financial transactions which generate a loss for the Bank and a profit for the Public Official (e.g. cancelling a debt position and/or applying conditions not in line with market parameters);
• award appointments to any external consultants without following substantiated and objective criteria addressing competitiveness, benefits, price, integrity, reliability and the ability to provide effective ongoing assistance. In particular, the rules for the selection of consultants shall refer to the criteria of clarity and availability of documentary evidence laid down in the Group’s Code of Ethics and Internal Code of Conduct; this in order to prevent the risk of commission of bribery offences which could arise from the possible choice of parties who are “close” to persons linked to the Public Administration and to the consequent possibility of facilitating/fast tracking the application assessment process.

The Heads of the Structures concerned have an obligation to put in place all systems necessary to ensure the effectiveness and the concrete implementation of the control and conduct principles described in this protocol.

The rules of conduct set out in this protocol shall also apply, mutatis mutandis, to any other corporate process concerning the application for and management of public grants/incentives granted to the Bank for any other purpose.
7.2.2.6. Management of litigation and out-of-court settlements;

Introduction

This protocol applies to all the Bank Structures involved in the management of judicial and out-of-court litigation (administrative, civil, criminal, tax, labour and social security litigation) and out-of-court settlements with Public Bodies.

Pursuant to Legislative Decree no. 231/2001, the related contract signing process could present potential opportunities for commission of the offences of “bribery”¹, “bribery in judicial proceedings” and “fraud to the detriment of the State” as well as of the offence of “inducing someone not to make declarations to the Judicial Authority or to make false declarations”².

The contents of this protocol are aimed at ensuring that the Bank complies with the current legislation and the principles of transparency, correctness, objectivity and traceability in the performance of the activity in question.

Process description

The litigation management process comprises the following stages, which are pursued under the responsibility of the Structures competent for litigation, in coordination with the Structure concerned by the dispute and with any external professionals appointed:

- opening the judicial or out-of-court litigation;

² This offence, punished by Article 377-bis of the Criminal Code, is a predicate offence of the liability of entities pursuant to Article 25-novies of the Decree. Moreover, pursuant to Article 10 of Law no. 146/2006 it can entail the same liability also where the offence is of transnational scope. An offence is considered to be transnational and is punished with a term of imprisonment whose maximum duration shall be of not less than four years, where it involves an organised criminal group and:
  - it was committed in more than one Country; or
  - it was committed in one Country, but a significant part of preparing, planning, managing or controlling it took place in another Country; or
  - it was committed in a Country, but it involved an organised criminal group which pursues criminal activities in more than one Country; or
  - it was committed in one Country, but had a significant impact on another Country.
collecting the information and documents relating to the dispute;
o analysing, assessing and submitting evidence;
o drafting pleas and briefs and any supplementary documents, directly or in collaboration with the external professionals;

- managing the dispute;
- receiving, analysing and assessing the acts relating to the dispute;
- preparing case files;
- participating in the case, where useful or necessary, in the event of court proceedings;
- liaising constantly with the appointed external professionals, if any, who must be entered in the relevant professional register;
- adopting decisions to:
  o determine the allocations to the Provision for Risks and Charges, concerning the disputes in which the Bank is a defendant, and reporting of the event as operating risk;
  o making payments and reaching out-of-court settlements;
- closing the dispute.

The out-of-court settlement management process covers all the activities necessary to prevent or resolve a dispute through agreements or mutual renunciations and concessions, in order to avoid or close judicial proceedings.

The process involves the following stages:

- analysing the event which gave rise to the dispute and assessing whether there are grounds for reaching an out-of-court settlement;
- managing negotiations aimed at identifying and formalising the transaction;
- preparing, signing and implementing the out-of-court settlement.

The operating procedures for management of the process are governed by the internal rules, which are developed and updated by the competent Structures, and which form an integral and substantive part of this protocol.

Control principles

The control system for monitoring the process described above must be based on the following elements:

- Expressly defined authorisation levels: the setup for managing the disputes and out-of-court settlements with the Public Administration includes centralising the guidance and/or management and monitoring of individual process phases under different Bank structures depending on whether the nature of the disputes are in the areas of administrative, civil, criminal, fiscal, labour or social security law. Moreover, within each operational phase of the process:

- the power and delegation system includes clear allocation of powers to settle the disputes, as well as levels of autonomy in respect of litigation management, including in disputes with the Public Administration; the internal rules illustrate the above-mentioned authorisation mechanisms, indicating the corporate officials who hold the necessary powers.
- appointment of legal consultants not included in the list prepared and approved by the competent Structure is subject to authorisation by the Head of the Structure or a duly delegated staff member;
- the competent Structure shall constantly monitor the developments of the dispute, also with a view to promptly identifying and assessing any opportunities for reaching an out-of-court settlement.

- Segregation of duties: by means of a clear and formalised procedure for the allocation of duties and responsibilities in performance of the activities relating to the management of disputes and out-of-court settlements with the Public Administration. In particular, the corporate procedures set out specific value thresholds beyond which individual out-of-court settlements transactions must be authorised by functions different from the business functions that handled the relationship with the Public Administration.

- Control activities:
  - periodic detection and monitoring of pending disputes;
  - periodic verification of the regularity, completeness and correctness of all the requirements relating to disputes/out-of-court settlements, which shall be supported by maker and checker mechanisms.

- Process traceability including both the electronic and the paper trail:
  - each relevant stage of the process must be recorded in specific written documents;
  - in order to allow reconstruction of responsibilities and the reasons for the choices made, the Structure from time to time concerned shall be responsible for filing and storing, also in telematic or electronic format, all the documentation under its competence concerning performance of procedures and activities in the management of disputes and out-of-court settlements with the Public Administration.
Rules of conduct

The Bank Structures howsoever involved in management of disputes and out-of-court settlements with the Public Administration shall comply with the procedures set out in this protocol, the applicable provisions of the law, the internal rules and any provisions of the Group’s Code of Ethics and Internal Code of Conduct.

Specifically:

- the persons involved in the process and who are responsible for signing acts or documents which are relevant outside the Bank must be expressly appointed;
- if third parties are to be involved in the management of litigation and out-of-court settlement with the Public Administration, the contracts/letters of appointment entered into with such persons shall contain a specific declaration that they know the provisions of Legislative Decree no. 231/2001 and undertake to comply with them;
- the payment of fees or remuneration to any employees or external consultants involved is subject to prior authorisation to be issued by the organisational unit which is competent to assess the quality of service and the consequent appropriateness of the remuneration requested; in any case, no remuneration shall be payable where it is not adequately justified by the type of work to be performed and/or the value of the dispute in relation to applicable professional fees.
- staff members cannot accept and must immediately report for appropriate action to their Head any request for inappropriate benefits or attempts at extortion in office by an official of the Public Administration they might receive or simply become aware of; the Head so informed must in turn forward the report received to the Internal Audit function for assessment and further action.

In any case, it is forbidden to engage in, collaborate with or induce conduct which may belong to one of the types of offences covered by Legislative Decree no. 231/2001; more specifically, purely by way of example and without limitation it is forbidden to:

- engage in conduct contrary to the Laws, to the Group’s Code of Ethics, to the Group’s Internal Code of Conduct, during both formal and informal meetings, also where acting through external professionals and third parties, to induce Judges or Members of Arbitration Boards (including assistants and Court or Board-appointed experts) to unduly favour the Bank’s interest;
- engage in conduct contrary to the Laws, to the Group’s Code of Ethics and the Group’s Internal Code of Conduct, in all stages of proceedings, also where acting through external professionals, to:
  - overstep constraints or thresholds in order to protect the Bank’s interests;
unduly favour the Bank’s interests by using violence or threats or, alternatively, by offering or promising money or other benefits to induce persons to be questioned by the judicial authority and whose statements may be used in criminal proceedings to refrain from answering or to lie;

- engage in conduct contrary to the Laws, to the Group’s Code of Ethics and the Group’s Internal Code of Conduct, at the time of checks/controls/inspections by the Public Bodies or by persons appointed by the Adjudicating Body, also where such conduct is engaged in through external professionals, in the attempt to influence such inspectors’ judgment/opinion towards the Bank:

- engage in conduct contrary to the Laws, to the Group’s Code of Ethics and the Group’s Internal Code of Conduct, in respect of the issue of rulings on the dispute/arbitration, also where such conduct is engaged in through external professionals, in order to improperly influence the decisions of the Adjudicating Body or the Public Administration’s position when the latter is the adverse party in the dispute;

- ask or induce members of the Public Administration to grant preferential treatment or omit due information in order to improperly influence the management of the relationship with the Bank;

- appoint external professionals without following substantiated and objective criteria addressing competitiveness, benefits, price, integrity, reliability and the ability to provide effective ongoing assistance. In particular, the rules for the selection of professionals shall refer to the criteria of clarity and availability of documentary evidence laid down in the Group's Code of Ethics and Internal Code of Conduct; this in order to prevent the risk of commission of a bribery offence which could arise from the possible choice of parties who are “close” to persons linked to the Public Administration and to the consequent possibility of facilitating/influencing the relationship with the Bank.

7.2.2.7. Management of relations with the Supervisory Authorities

Introduction

This protocol applies to all the Bank Structures involved in the management of relations with the Supervisory Authorities, and concerns all types of activity implemented in respect of remarks, requirements, communications, requests and inspections.

Pursuant to Legislative Decree no. 231/2001, the related process could present potential opportunities for commission of the offences of “bribery”\(^1\) and “hindering exercise of the functions of Public Supervisory Authorities” (Article 2638 of the Civil Code).

The contents of this protocol are aimed at ensuring that the Bank complies with the current legislation and the principles of transparency, correctness, objectivity and traceability in handling relations with the Supervisory Authorities, which include:

- the Bank of Italy;
- Consob;
- ISVAP;
- the Data Protection Authority;
- the Italian Competition Authority (AGCM);
- COVIP.

The rules of conduct set out in this protocol shall also apply, in terms of general conduct guidelines, to relations with foreign Supervisory Authorities.

Process description

The activities relating to the management of relations with the supervisory authorities can be broken down as follows:

\(^1\) As already stated, under Article 322-bis of the Criminal Code, the conduct of the bribe-giver is a punishable criminal offence not only when its recipients are Public Officials and Public Service Providers within the Italian Public Administration, but also when: i) it is pursued towards persons holding corresponding functions or performing corresponding activities within European Community institutions, or within Entities established on the basis of the Treaties establishing the European Communities, or, lastly, within the other European Union Member States; ii) it is implemented towards persons holding corresponding functions or performing corresponding activities within other third countries or international public organisations, provided that, in this case, the bribe-giver pursues an undue benefit for himself or others with reference to an international economic transaction or acts in order to obtain or maintain an economic or financial activity (for example, in order to avoid termination of a supply/works contract or the issue of a measure negatively affecting his economic activity).
preparing/submitting occasional or periodic reports to the Supervisory Authorities; submitting requests/applications for approvals and/or authorisations; providing replies and performing requirements in response to requests/demands of the Supervisory Authorities; handling relations with Officials of the Supervisory Authorities during inspections.

The operating procedures for management of the process are governed by the internal rules, which are developed and updated by the competent Structures, and which form an integral and substantive part of this protocol.

Control principles

The control system for monitoring the process described above must be based on the following elements:

- Authorisation levels defined within each operating step of the process. Specifically:
  - except for site inspections, relations with the Supervisory Authorities shall be handled by the Head of the reference Structure or by persons appointed by him by means of an internal delegation, which shall be kept on file by the Structure;
  - all acts which involve a contractual commitment on the part of the Bank must be signed solely by duly appointed persons.

- Segregation of duties between the different persons involved in the process of managing relations with the Supervisory Authorities. Specifically:
  - with reference to the management of relations not relating to the ordinary operations of the Bank’s structures, all correspondence sent to the Supervisory Authorities in respect of findings or remarks on corporate operations shall be checked by the competent Legal and Compliance function before being sent;
  - the Head of the Structure concerned by the site inspection, after ascertaining the subject-matter of the inspection, shall designate the human resources responsible for handling relations with the Public Officials during their visit to the Bank. The competent Legal function, the Internal audit function, the Compliance function and, in especially important cases the Surveillance Body must be promptly informed of the inspection under way and of any requests or findings of the Authority.
Control activities:
- the controls concerning the completeness, correctness and accuracy of the information provided to the Supervisory Authorities by the Structure concerned as to the activities falling under its competence must be supported by maker and checker mechanisms;
- legal controls on compliance with the reference legislation applicable to the requested report/communication;
- automated system controls concerning periodic reports.

Process traceability including both the electronic and the paper trail:
- all the Bank’s structures which are howsoever involved in preparing and transmitting communications and required documents to the Supervisory authorities, must file and store the relevant documentation produced in the course of their relations with the Authority, including all documents submitted to the Authority by electronic means. This documentation must be made available on demand to the Legal, Internal Audit and Corporate Secretariat functions;
- every communication to the Supervisory Authorities concerning important data and/or information on the Bank’s operations shall be documented/recorded in electronic format and kept on file by the competent Structure;
- except where the Supervisory Authority is not required to immediately issue an inspection report, the staff member of the Structure concerned who was present at the inspection shall assist the Public Official in preparing the report of the inspection and findings; the Bank’s staff member shall reserve the right to submit any objections, and shall sign the inspection report prepared by the Public Official, to confirm having read the report together with all annexes;
- for every inspection made by Officials representing the Supervisory Authorities the Head of the Structure concerned shall send to the competent Company Departments/Services/Offices a copy of the inspection report issued by the Public Official complete with its annexes. Where no immediate issue of an inspection report by the Supervisory Authority is provided for, the Head of the Structure concerned by the inspection or the person delegated by him shall prepare a summary report of the inspection visit and shall send it to the competent Company Departments/Services/Offices. Such documentation shall be kept on file by the Head of the Structure concerned by the inspection.
Rules of conduct

The Bank Structures howsoever involved in the management of relations with the Supervisory Authorities shall comply with the procedures set out in this protocol, the applicable provisions of the law, the internal rules and any provisions of the Group's Code of Ethics and Internal Code of Conduct.

Specifically:

- the persons involved in the process that are responsible for signing acts or documents which are relevant outside the Bank must be expressly appointed;
- staff members cannot accept and must immediately report for appropriate action to their Head any request for inappropriate benefits or attempts at extortion in office by a member of the Supervisory Authority they might receive or simply become aware of; the Head so informed must in turn forward the report received to the Internal Audit function for assessment and further action;
- the periodic reports to the Supervisory authorities must be submitted in a timely manner and any requests/demands from the same Authorities must be promptly acted on;
- when Officials attached to the Authorities carry out inspections at the Bank's offices, except where the inspectors ask to speak directly with named Bank staff members, the meetings with the inspectors shall be held by at least two persons, if they belong to the Structure concerned by the inspection; otherwise, where the inspection is followed by Structures other than the one concerned by the verification (for example: Staff, Organisation, Legal and Audit) only one person shall participate in the meetings with the Officials.

In any case, it is forbidden to engage in, collaborate with or induce conduct which may belong to one of the types of offences covered by Legislative Decree no. 231/2001; more specifically, purely by way of example and without limitation it is forbidden to:

- present incomplete documents and data and/or communicate false or altered data;
- adopt deceitful conduct which might lead the Supervisory Authorities into error;
- ask or induce representatives of the Supervisory Authorities to grant preferential treatment or omit due information in order to hinder performance of Supervisory duties;
- promise or pay/offer sums of money, gifts or free benefits outside the scope of company practice or the practices of the operating context (for example festivities, local customs and traditions, standard market or business practices) and grant advantages of any kind to representatives of the Supervisory Authorities on a personal basis in order to further or favour the Bank's interests. Examples of such improper advantages include, without limitation, the promise to hire family members and relatives, and, more in general, all the banking or financial transactions which generate a loss for the Bank and a profit for the Public Official (e.g. cancelling a debt position and/or applying conditions not in line with market parameters).

The Heads of the Structures concerned have an obligation to put in place all systems necessary to ensure the effectiveness and the concrete implementation of the control and conduct principles described in this protocol.
7.2.2.8. Management of the procedures for the procurement of goods and services and for the appointment of professional consultants.

Introduction

This protocol applies to all the Bank Structures involved in the management of the procedures for the procurement of goods and services.

The term goods shall also include intellectual works, the term services shall also include all types of intellectual services (e.g. legal, fiscal, technical, labour consultancy, administrative, organisational, etc.), including professional or consultancy appointments.

Pursuant to Legislative Decree no. 231/2001, the related process could represent a possible instrument for the commission of “bribery” and “bribery in judicial proceedings”.

Indeed, non-transparent process management might allow the commission of such offences, for example by creating “slush funds” after paying prices exceeding the actual value of the good/service obtained.

The aim is also to prevent the risk of acquiring goods or services of unlawful provenance, in particular, to prevent involvement in crimes against industry and trade and in crimes involving breach of copyright.

Process description

Management of the procedures for the purchase of goods and services includes the following processes:

1 Pursuant to Article 2575 of the Civil Code, intellectual works protected by copyright are those belonging to literature (including scientific and educational literature), music, the figurative arts, architecture, theatre, and film, irrespective of their form of expression. Computer software and data banks which by their choice of arrangement of materials constitute an intellectual work of their author are also ranked pari passu with literary works and enjoy the same protection.

2 As already stated, under Article 322-bis of the Criminal Code, the conduct of the bribe-giver is a punishable criminal offence not only when its recipients are Public Officials and Public Service Providers within the Italian Public Administration, but also when: i) it is pursued towards persons holding corresponding functions or performing corresponding activities within European Community institutions, or within Entities established on the basis of the Treaties establishing the European Communities, or, lastly, within the other European Union Member States; ii) it is implemented towards persons holding corresponding functions or performing corresponding activities within other third countries or international public organisations, provided that, in this case, the bribe-giver pursues an undue benefit for himself or others with reference to an international economic transaction or acts in order to obtain or maintain an economic or financial activity (for example, in order to avoid termination of a supply/works contract or the issue of a measure negatively affecting his economic activity).

3 On this point, see Chapter 7.10.
• preparing and managing the budget;
• procurement management;
• purchasing cycle management;
• supplier management.

The operating procedures for management of the processes are governed by the internal rules, which are developed and updated by the competent Structures, and which form an integral and substantive part of this protocol.

Control principles

The control system for monitoring the processes described above must be based on the following elements:

- Expressly defined authorisation levels:
  - pursuant to the Articles of Association, the Bank’s budget is prepared and approved by the Management Board;
  - approval of the purchase request, supplier selection, conclusion of the contract and issue of the order shall be exclusively carried out by persons specifically empowered under the existing power and delegation system, which defines levels of operational autonomy by type and amount of expenditure. The internal set of rules illustrates these authorisation mechanisms, and indicates the corporate officials who hold the necessary powers;
  - the choice of the suppliers of goods and services and of freelance professionals is made from lists of suppliers selected on the basis of criteria identified in the internal set of rules, except for occasional needs/supplies. Such suppliers must ensure and, on demand, must be able to prove by submitting adequate documentation – having regard to the use of trademarks or distinctive marks and to the sale of goods or services – that they comply with the industrial property rights and copyright legislation and, in any case, the lawful origin of the goods supplied;
  - any subcontracting of supplies of services/activities by the Bank’s suppliers to third parties shall be contractually conditional on prior approval by the Bank structure which signed the contract;
  - authorisation to pay invoices shall be issued by the Heads of the Structures responsible for the relevant budget and powers of expenditure (Centres of Responsibility) or by persons delegated by them; authorisation to pay may be denied where the Structures find the supply to be substandard/non-compliant, and issue a formal complaint, which shall be appropriately detailed and accompanied by supporting documents;
  o the invoices shall be paid by a specific dedicated Corporate structure.

- Segregation of duties between the different persons involved in the procurement procedure management process. Specifically:
  o the activities relating to the different phases of the process must be carried out by different and clearly identifiable persons, and must be supported by a maker and checker mechanism.

- Control activities: the reference internal set of rules identifies the controls that must be performed by each Structure concerned in each phase of the process:
  o verification of expenditure limit and of appropriateness of the expenditure;
  o checks on the regularity, completeness, correctness and prompt recording of the accounting entries;
  o verification of the compliance with the criteria identified by the corporate regulations for the choice of suppliers and freelance professionals, including guarantees on the authenticity and lawful origin of the goods supplied.

Finally, as concerns acquisition of professional commissions and consultancies involving a direct relationship with the Public Administration (for instance, legal expenses litigation, fees paid to freelance professionals for building permits, consultants’ fees for preparing public grant applications, etc.) the Heads of the Structures concerned must:
  o ensure that a list of freelance professionals/consultants, indicating the object of their commission and the consideration payable, is kept updated and available at all times;
  o regularly check the above-mentioned list to identify any abnormal situations.

- Process traceability including both the electronic and the paper trail:
  o use of IT systems supporting the operations, to ensure that the data and information relating to the procurement process are recorded and kept on file;
  o each process phase shall be documented, paying particular attention to the phase of selection of the goods and/or service supplier or the freelance professional, also through competitive bidding procedures, providing reasons for the selection and justifying the appropriateness and congruence of the price. The internal rules indicate in which cases goods and/or service suppliers or professionals must be selected by means of a competitive bidding procedure or in any event by requesting several offers;
in order to allow reconstruction of responsibilities and the reasons for the choices made, the Structure from time to time concerned shall be responsible for filing and storing, also in telematic or electronic format, all the documentation it produced in performance of the requirements relating to management of the goods and services procurement process.

Rules of conduct

The Bank Structures howsoever involved in the management of goods and service procurement procedures or in the professional commission award process shall comply with the procedures set out in this protocol, the applicable provisions of the law, the internal rules and any provisions of the Group's Code of Ethics and Internal Code of Conduct.

Specifically:

- the contractual documents governing the award of supply contracts/professional commissions must contain an ad hoc declaration that the party knows the provisions of Legislative Decree no. 231/2001 and undertakes to comply with them;
- the payment of fees or remuneration to any employees or external consultants involved is subject to prior authorisation to be issued by the organisational unit which is competent to assess the quality of service and the consequent appropriateness of the remuneration requested; in any case, no remuneration shall be payable to employees or external consultants where it is not adequately justified by the type of work performed or to be performed.

In any case, it is forbidden to engage in, collaborate with or induce conduct which may be instrumental to commission of one of the types of offences covered by Legislative Decree no. 231/2001; more specifically, purely by way of example and without limitation it is forbidden to:

- award goods/services supply contracts and professional commissions where no expenditure authorisation has been issued, or where the necessary requirements of professionalism, quality and cost-effectiveness of the goods or services supplied are not met;
- attest to the regularity of the goods/services upon receiving them, without having carefully assessed their actual quality and congruence;
- authorise the payment of goods/services without having checked that they match contract terms and specifications;
- authorise the payment of professionals' fees without having carefully checked the amount of such fees against the quality of the service received;
- make payments to Bank suppliers which are not justified by the contractual relationship in force with them;
threaten suppliers with retaliation if they provide services to or use the services of competitors of the Bank.

7.2.2.9. Management of gifts, entertainment expenses, donations to charities and sponsorships

Introduction

This protocol applies to all the Bank Structures involved in the management of gifts, entertainment expenses, donations to charities and sponsorships.

For the purposes of this protocol, the following definitions shall apply:

- gifts means goods having a low value which are offered at no charge, in the framework of normal business relations, in order to promote the Bank’s business;
- entertainment expenses means the expenses incurred by the Bank in pursuing commercial relations, for the purpose of promoting and improving the Bank’s image (for example: costs for lunches and refreshments, expenses for welcome and hospitality activities, etc.);
- charitable contributions means money donations which the Bank makes exclusively to non-profit organisations;
- sponsorships means the promotion, enhancement and strengthening of the Bank’s image by concluding atypical agreements (free-form agreements, asset agreements, mutual services agreements) with external organisations (e.g.: sports clubs associations, including amateur associations, non-profit organisations, local agencies and local bodies, etc.).

Pursuant to Legislative Decree no. 231/2001, the related process could represent a possible instrument for the commission of “bribery” and “bribery in judicial proceedings”.

This because non-transparent management of the processes relating to gifts, entertainment expenses, donations to charities and sponsorships could enable the commission of such offences, for example by giving/granting advantages to members of the Public Administration in order to favour the Bank’s interests or by creating funds that can be used to commit such offences.

1 As already stated, under Article 322-bis of the Criminal Code, the conduct of the bribe-giver is a punishable criminal offence not only when its recipients are Public Officials and Public Service Providers within the Italian Public Administration, but also when: i) it is pursued towards persons holding corresponding functions or performing corresponding activities within European Community institutions, or within Entities established on the basis of the Treaties establishing the European Communities, or, lastly, within the other European Union Member States; ii) it is implemented towards persons holding corresponding functions or performing corresponding activities within other third countries or international public organisations, provided that, in this case, the bribe-giver pursues an undue benefit for himself or others with reference to an international economic transaction or acts in order to obtain or maintain an economic or financial activity (for example, in order to avoid termination of a supply/works contract or the issue of a measure negatively affecting his economic activity).
The contents of this protocol are aimed at ensuring that the Bank complies with the current legislation and the principles of transparency, correctness, objectivity and traceability in the performance of the activity in question.

Process description

The processes relating to management of gifts and entertainment expenses concern goods intended to be freely given for commercial courtesy purposes to third parties, such as, for example, customers, suppliers, Public Administration Bodies, public institutions or other organisations. Such goods are purchased in accordance with the operational rules set out in the internal regulations on expenditure in the protocol “Management of the procedures for the procurement of goods and services and for the appointment of professional consultants”.

The processes relating to the management of expenses for charity donations and sponsorships comprise the following steps:

- receipt of the request, submitted by the Entities, for grants and donations to charities or sponsorships for projects, initiatives, events;
- identification of the companies/organisations to which the donations will be made;
- performance of the Bank's due diligence activity\(^1\);
- review/assessment of the proposed initiative/project;
- authorisation of expenditure and, if applicable, conclusion of the agreement/contract;
- disbursement of the donations by the Bank.

The operating procedures for management of the processes are governed by the internal rules, which are developed and updated by the competent Structures, and which form an integral and substantive part of this protocol.

Control principles

The control system for monitoring the processes described above must be based on the following elements:

- Expressly defined authorisation levels:

\(^1\) Search for relevant information on the requesting Entity including, for instance and without limitation, its name, legal form and date of establishment, details of its registered office and main operating office (if different from the registered office), website address if any, name of the legal representative, information on the entity and its key strategies, its size (number of employees and/or collaborators, number of partners), on the main projects implemented in the last two years in the sector addressed by the proposed initiative, summary of the key financial data contained in the approved financial statements of the last two years, etc..
with regard to the purchases of goods for gifts and entertainment expenses, approval of the purchase request, supplier selection, conclusion of the contract and issue of the order shall be exclusively carried out by persons specifically empowered under the existing power and delegation system, which defines levels of operational autonomy by type and amount of expenditure. The internal set of rules illustrates these authorisation mechanisms, and indicates the corporate officials who hold the necessary powers;

- all donation disbursements must be approved by persons duly empowered under the current power and delegation system;
- different user profiles are defined for accessing IT procedures, matching specific authorisation levels based on assigned functions;
- with regard to gifts and entertainment expenses intended, albeit not exclusively, for members of the Public Administration, the corporate procedures set out appropriate limits to the value of such gifts/expenses.

- Segregation of duties: between the different persons involved in the processes. Specifically:
  - the activities relating to the different phases of the processes must be carried out by different and clearly identifiable persons, and must be supported by a maker and checker mechanism.

- Control activities:
  - The internal set of rules defines the value threshold above which the disbursement of donations to charities and sponsorships must be preceded by a due diligence activity to be carried out by the Structure concerned, covering:
    - analysis and verification of the type of organisation and of its statutory objects;
    - all disbursements must be checked and approved by the Head of the Structure concerned;
    - total disbursements shall be established annually, by a specific budget approved by the competent Bodies, which shall include value limits and number of disbursements in the year for each beneficiary, save for express derogations formally approved by the competent levels;
  - with regard to sponsorships, proper performance of the agreed service by the sponsored entity shall be verified, by acquiring appropriate documentary evidence of such performance.

Furthermore, the Heads of the Structures concerned must:
ensure that the list of beneficiaries is kept updated and available at all times, including the value of the disbursements or of the gifts distributed, and the dates/occasions of the donations. This requirement does not apply to “marked” gifts, i.e. those bearing the Bank’s logo (such as pens, desk items, etc.), and the standard gifts prepared by the central Structures (for example, for the end of the year);
regularly check the above-mentioned list to identify any abnormal situations.

- Process traceability including both the electronic and the paper trail:
  - to ensure full traceability of both the documentary trail and of the management process in place for gifts, entertainment expenses, donations to charities and sponsorships, the Structures concerned shall, inter alia, prepare reports on disbursements made/contracts entered into;
  - in order to allow reconstruction of responsibilities and the reasons for the choices made, the Structure from time to time concerned shall be responsible for filing and storing, also in telematic or electronic format, all the documentation it produced in performance of the requirements relating to management of gifts, entertainment expenses, donations to charities and sponsorships.

Rules of conduct

While expenses for gifts are allowed, provided they are of limited value and, in any case, not such as to compromise the integrity and reputation of either of the parties and not such as to influence the beneficiary’s independent judgment, the Bank’s structures, howsoever involved in the management of gifts, entertainment expenses, donations to charities and sponsorships are required to comply with the procedures set out in this protocol, the applicable provisions of the law, the internal rules and any provisions of the Group’s Code of Ethics and Internal Code of Conduct. Specifically:
- the Bank may make disbursements in the form of donations to charities or sponsorships to support the initiatives of lawfully established Entities whose activities are not in conflict with the Bank’s ethical principles;
- any initiatives falling under one of the categories eligible for “sponsorships” cannot at the same time benefit from charitable contributions.

In any case, it is forbidden to engage in, collaborate with or induce conduct which may belong to one of the types of offences covered by Legislative Decree no. 231/2001; more specifically, purely by way of example and without limitation it is forbidden to:
• make disbursements for charity or sponsorship initiatives, in favour of organisations that are party to notorious judicial cases, or are engaged in practices involving the infringement of human rights, vivisection or damage to the environment. Likewise, no charitable contributions or sponsorships may be given to political parties and movements and their subsidiary organisations, trade unions and welfare associations (patronati), clubs (e.g. Lions, Rotary, etc.), recreational associations and groups, private schools, private schools legally equivalent to public schools and/or legally recognised schools, except for particular initiatives of special social, cultural or scientific value;

• make donations/gifts to Entities/members/representatives of the Public Administration, Supervisory Authorities or other public institutions or to other organisations/persons linked to such bodies thereby infringing this protocol;

• promise or pay sums of money, promise or grant goods in kind or other advantages to Entities members/representatives of the Public Administration, Supervisory Authorities or other public institution or to other organisations in order to further or favour the Bank’s interests, also yielding to unlawful pressures. Staff members cannot accept and must immediately report for appropriate action to their Head any request for inappropriate benefits or attempts at extortion in office by an official of the Public Administration they might receive or simply become aware of; the Head so informed must in turn forward the report received to the Internal Audit function for assessment and further action;

• make a gift of goods whose lawful origin has not been verified nor their compliance with the provisions on intellectual property rights, trademark and industrial property right in general and geographic indications and protected designations of origin.

7.2.2.10. Management of the staff selection and recruitment process

Introduction

This protocol applies to all the Bank Structures involved in the management of the staff selection and recruitment process.

Pursuant to the above-mentioned Legislative Decree, the process in question could constitute a possible instrument for the commission of “bribery”\(^1\) and “bribery in judicial proceedings”.

This because non-transparent management of the staff selection and recruitment process could allow the commission of such offences through the promise of hiring made to representatives of the Public Administration, or to persons indicated by them, in order to influence their independence of judgment or to ensure a benefit for the Bank.

The contents of this protocol are aimed at ensuring that the Bank complies with the current legislation and the principles of transparency, correctness, objectivity and traceability in the performance of the activity in question.

Process description

The staff selection and hiring process comprises the following steps:

- Staff selection:
  - needs analysis and request for new hirings;
  - identification of the required candidate profile;
  - recruitment of candidates;
  - candidate selection;
  - choice of the candidates to be hired.

- Formalisation of the hiring

\(^1\) As already stated, under Article 322-bis of the Criminal Code, the conduct of the bribe-giver is a punishable criminal offence not only when its recipients are Public Officials and Public Service Providers within the Italian Public Administration, but also when: i) it is pursued towards persons holding corresponding functions or performing corresponding activities within European Community institutions, or within Entities established on the basis of the Treaties establishing the European Communities, or, lastly, within the other European Union Member States; ii) it is implemented towards persons holding corresponding functions or performing corresponding activities within other third countries or international public organisations, provided that, in this case, the bribe-giver pursues an undue benefit for himself or others with reference to an international economic transaction or acts in order to obtain or maintain an economic or financial activity (for example, in order to avoid the termination of a supply/works contract or the issue of a measure negatively affecting his economic activity).
If the process concerns people with disabilities, candidates shall be recruited from the lists of persons belonging to protected groups, to be requested from the local Labour Office.

The Company Structures so empowered shall handle directly the selection and hiring process concerning specialised and highly qualified staff or top managers (direct hiring).

The operating procedures for management of the process are governed by the internal rules, which are developed and updated by the competent Structures, and which form an integral and substantive part of this protocol.

Control principles

The control system for monitoring the processes described above must be based on the following elements:

- Expressly defined authorisation levels:
  - the staff selection and recruitment process is centrally managed by the competent Structure which receives formal requests for the hiring of new staff from the Structures concerned and assesses them consistently with the budget and internal development plans;
  - authorisation to hiring new personnel can only be given by duly empowered staff expressly empowered under the current power and delegation system;
  - the candidates judged to be suitable and whose hiring has been authorised are then hired by the competent Organisational units within each Structure.

- Segregation of duties between the different persons involved in the process. In particular the final approval of the hiring is issued by different structures, chosen in accordance with the importance of the position to be filled within the corporate organisation.

- Control activities:
  - during the selection process, each candidate has to fill specific forms, to ensure that the candidates’ details are collected in a uniform manner.

- Process traceability including both the electronic and the paper trail:
  - in order to allow reconstruction of responsibilities and the reasons for the choices made, the Structure from time to time concerned shall be responsible for filing and storing, also in telematic or electronic format, all the documentation it produced (including standard documents such as tests, application forms, employment contracts, etc.) relating to performance of the requirements in the course of the staff selection and hiring process.
Rules of conduct

The Bank’s structures howsoever involved in management of the staff selection and hiring process, shall comply with the procedures set out in this protocol, the applicable provisions of the law, the internal rules and any relevant provisions of the Code of Ethics and of the Group’s Internal Code of Conduct.

Specifically:

- staff members cannot accept and must immediately report for appropriate action to their Head any request for inappropriate benefits or attempts at extortion in office by an official of the Public Administration they might receive or simply become aware of; the Head so informed must in turn forward the report received to the Internal Audit function for assessment and further action;
- if third parties are to be involved in the management of the staff selection and hiring process, the contracts entered into with such persons shall contain a specific declaration that they know the provisions of Legislative Decree no. 231/2001 and undertake to comply with them;
- the payment of fees or remuneration to any employees or external consultants involved is subject to prior authorisation to be issued by the organisational unit which is competent to assess the quality of service and the consequent appropriateness of the remuneration requested; in any case, no remuneration shall be payable to employees or external consultants where it is not adequately justified by the type of work performed or to be performed.

In any case, it is forbidden to engage in, collaborate with or induce conduct which may belong to one of the types of offences covered by Legislative Decree no. 231/2001; more specifically, purely by way of example and without limitation it is forbidden to:

- promise to hire, or accede to requests to hire representatives/members of the Public Administration or persons indicated by them, in order to influence their independence of judgment or to induce them to grant the Bank any advantages.

7.2.2.11. Management of real-estate assets and of movable property having artistic value

Introduction

The management of real estate assets and of movable property having artistic value concerns any type of activity carried out by the Bank’s structures aimed at enhancing and optimising the Group’s real estate assets – both owned and leased by it – and at enhancing, planning actions for and managing the Bank’s movable property having artistic value.

Pursuant to Legislative Decree no. 231/2001, the process in question could constitute a possible instrument for the commission of “bribery”\(^1\) and “bribery in judicial proceedings”.

This because non-transparent management of the process relating to the management of real estate assets and immovable property having artistic value could enable the commission of such offences, through the giving/granting of advantages to members of the Public Administration in order to further the Bank’s interests.

The contents of this protocol are aimed at ensuring that the Bank complies with the current legislation and the principles of transparency, correctness, objectivity and traceability in the performance of the activity in question.

Process description

The management of the Bank’s real-estate assets and movable property having artistic value comprises the following processes:

- planning dispositions;
- administrative and accounting management of the real estate properties;
- managing the lease contracts;
- managing running expenses and tax charges.

\(^1\) As already stated, under Article 322-bis of the Criminal Code, the conduct of the bribe-giver is a punishable criminal offence not only when its recipients are Public Officials and Public Service Providers within the Italian Public Administration, but also when: i) it is pursued towards persons holding corresponding functions or performing corresponding activities within European Community institutions, or within Entities established on the basis of the Treaties establishing the European Communities, or, lastly, within the other European Union Member States; ii) it is implemented towards persons holding corresponding functions or performing corresponding activities within other third countries or international public organisations, provided that, in this case, the bribe-giver pursues an undue benefit for himself or others with reference to an international economic transaction or acts in order to obtain or maintain an economic or financial activity (for example, in order to avoid termination of a supply/works contract or the issue of a measure negatively affecting his economic activity).
Management of the real-estate assets:
identifying and selecting investment/disposal opportunities;
purchasing and selling the real estate properties;
optimising the real estate assets currently held;
plan the Bank’s long term real estate strategy.

Management of art assets

managing the lease/use contracts of the goods having artistic value; managing the goods having artistic value.

The operating procedures for management of the processes are governed by the internal rules, which are developed and updated by the competent Structures, and which form an integral and substantive part of this protocol.

Control principles

The control system for monitoring the processes described above must be based on the following elements:

- Expressly defined authorisation levels:
  - all persons involved in the management of pre-contractual relations shall be identified and authorised by Head of the reference Structure by means of internal delegation, to be kept on file by the same Structure;
  - all the decisions relating to purchases and sales and to leases shall be taken exclusively by persons duly empowered under the current power and delegation system, which sets out the level of decision-making autonomy according to type and amount of expenditure. The internal set of rules illustrates these authorisation mechanisms, and indicates the corporate officials who hold the necessary powers.

- Segregation of functions: between the different persons involved in the process. Specifically:
  - the activities relating to the different phases of the process must be carried out by different and clearly identifiable persons, and must be supported by a maker and checker mechanism.

- Control activities:
- checking the appropriateness of the lease payments to be made or received for all new lease contracts or contract renewals, having regard to current market prices or in compliance to the provisions of a public bidding procedure;
- performing a due diligence on the contractual counterparty;
- checking that the purchase/sale price of the real estate or movable property having artistic value is in line with market levels, also by commissioning independent experts' reports each time the counterparty is a Public Administration or one of its members;
- verifying in detail all the data contained in the purchase and sale contracts and, in particular, checking the consistency between the preliminary sale agreement and the final agreement;
- preparing and updating the register of current leases, with detailed entries for new leases and those renewed in the reference period;
- preparing and updating the register of movable property having artistic value.

- Process traceability including both the electronic and the paper trail:
  - each major phase of dispositions (purchase and sales, leases, loans for use) must be recorded in specific written documents;
  - each disposition (purchase and sales, leases, loans for use) shall be formalised in a document, which shall be duly signed by persons holding the required powers under the current power and delegation system;
  - in order to allow reconstruction of responsibilities and the reasons for the choices made, the Structure from time to time concerned shall be responsible for filing and storing, also in telematic or electronic format, all the documentation it produced relating to performance of the requirements relating to management of the real estate assets and movable property having artistic value.

- Reward and incentive systems: the reward and incentive systems must be able to ensure consistency with the provisions of the law, with the principles set out in this protocol, and with the provisions of the Code of Ethics, also by including appropriate corrective mechanisms to address any non-compliant conduct.

Rules of conduct

The Bank howsoever involved in management of the Bank's real-estate assets and movable property having artistic value shall comply with the procedures set out in this document, the applicable provisions of the law, the internal rules and any provisions of the Code of Ethics and of the Group's Internal Code of Conduct.
Specifically:

- Staff members cannot accept and must immediately report for appropriate action to their Head any request for inappropriate benefits or attempts at extortion in office by an official of the Public Administration they might receive or simply become aware of; the Head so informed must in turn forward the report received to the Internal Audit function for assessment and further action;

- If third parties are to be involved in the management of the Bank’s real-estate assets and movable property having artistic value, the contracts entered into with such persons shall contain a specific declaration that they know the provisions of Legislative Decree no. 231/2001 and undertake to comply with them;

- The payment of fees or remuneration to any employees or external consultants involved is subject to prior authorisation to be issued by the organisational unit which is competent to assess the quality of service and the consequent appropriateness of the remuneration requested; in any case, no remuneration shall be payable to employees or external consultants where it is not adequately justified by the type of work performed or to be performed.

In any case, it is forbidden to engage in, collaborate with or induce conduct which may be instrumental to commission of one of the types of offences covered by Legislative Decree no. 231/2001; more specifically, purely by way of example and without limitation it is forbidden to:

- Promise or supply real estate assets or movable property having artistic value to Public Administration Bodies, public institutions or persons indicated by them on non-market conditions;

- Authorise the payment of invoices payable for the purchase/lease of real estate assets and movable property having artistic value without having carefully and thoroughly checked the stated amount payable;

- Award appointments to any external consultants without following substantiated and objective criteria addressing competitiveness, benefits, price, integrity, reliability and the ability to provide effective ongoing assistance. In particular, the rules for the selection of consultants shall refer to the criteria of clarity and availability of documentary evidence laid down in the Code of Ethics and Group’s internal Code of Conduct; this in order to prevent the risk of commission of bribery offences which could arise from the possible choice of parties who are “close” to persons linked to the Public Administration and to the consequent possibility of facilitating/influencing the management of the contractual relationship with the Bank.

7.3 Sensitive area concerning the counterfeiting of money (and valuables)

Introduction
Article 25-bis of the Decree covers a series of offences listed in the Criminal Code, the aim being to protect public trust, that is society’s reliance on the genuineness and integrity of certain specific symbols, which is essential to ensure the safe and timely performance of economic exchanges. The criminal conduct punished concerns coins, banknotes, cards and bearer’s coupons issued by Governments or authorised Institutes – official stamps, watermark paper and instruments or objects intended for counterfeiting currency\(^1\).

In particular, the following types of crimes are identified.

Counterfeiting money, spending and introducing counterfeit money into the country, in conspiracy with others (Article 453 of the Criminal Code)

Alterning money (Article 454 of the Criminal Code)

Counterfeiting of money occurs when a person manufactures counterfeit money, whereas altering, which is a different offence, consists of making money appear to have a higher value than its true one.

In both types of offences, the law punishes both the author of the counterfeiting or the altering, and the person that, in cooperation with the author of the counterfeiting or altering, or with an intermediary of such person, introduces into the territory of the State, holds or howsoever puts into circulation the money thus counterfeited or altered; lastly, the law also punishes any person that obtains such counterfeit or altered money in order to put it into circulation, from either the author of the counterfeiting or alteration or from his intermediary.

The possibility that bank staff members might engage in the altering or counterfeiting of money, alone or in conspiracy with others in the bank’s own interest seems highly unlikely; greater risks may concern the offence of circulating the counterfeit currency and receiving it order to put it into circulation.

Spending and introducing counterfeit money into the country, not in conspiracy with others (Article 455 of the Criminal Code)

Unknowingly passing counterfeit money (Article 457 of the Criminal Code)

The type of offence covered by Article 455 of the Criminal Code, which is much rarer than those covered by the two preceding Articles, assumes in any case that the person engaging in the conduct was aware or suspected from the start that the coins were not authentic, despite the lack of any agreement with the person that falsified them.

---
\(^1\) Law no. 99/2009 amended Article 25-bis, adding to currency counterfeiting offences the counterfeiting of marks, logos, patents and models (Articles 473 and 474 of the Criminal Code), which are covered in Chapter 7.10 of this document.

In the types of offences referred to in Article 457 of the Criminal Code, on the contrary, the essential and distinctive element is the initial good faith of the person that engages in the criminal conduct; this good faith only ceases at the time of spending or, in general, of putting into circulation the counterfeit or altered currency.

This offence might therefore apply to a bank teller who uses counterfeit banknotes for transactions with customers, also where he has received them in good faith, in order to prevent the bank from incurring damage or quite simply to avoid the problems inherent in acknowledging and reporting the counterfeit nature of the banknotes.

Counterfeiting official stamps, introducing into the country, purchasing, possessing or circulating counterfeit official stamps (Article 459 of the Criminal Code)

Counterfeiting of watermark paper for producing banknotes or official stamps (Article 460 of the Criminal Code)

Making or possessing watermarks or instruments for the purpose of counterfeiting money, official stamps or of watermark paper (Article 461 of the Criminal Code)

Using counterfeit or altered official stamps (Article 464 of the Criminal Code)

In the light of the peculiar character of the material subject of the offences in question, the likelihood that such offences might be committed by bank staff seems to be very remote.

7.3.2 Sensitive company activities

The sensitive activity identified by Model where the risk for money counterfeiting offences is highest is the following:

- Management of valuables

We reproduce below the protocol laying down the control principles and rules of conduct applicable to this activity, as well as the detailed corporate regulations governing this activity.
7.3.2.1. Management of valuables

Introduction

The management of valuables includes all activities relating to the handling of valuables of any kind, with particular reference to banknotes, coins and official stamps which are legal tender in Italy and abroad.

Pursuant to Legislative Decree no. 231/2001, the related process might potentially offer opportunities for commission of the offences of “Counterfeiting money, spending and introducing counterfeit money into the country, in conspiracy with others” (Article 453 of the Criminal Code), “Altering money” (Article 454 of the Criminal Code), “Spending and introducing counterfeit money into the country, not in conspiracy with others” (Article 455 of the Criminal Code), and “Unknownly passing counterfeit money” (Article 457 of the Criminal Code).

Although the Bank’s traditional activity is centred on the management of the valuables, the likelihood that Bank staff would, alone or in conspiracy with others, and acting in the Bank’s interest engage in the altering or counterfeiting of valuables seems remote.

A higher level of risk might concern, on the other hand, the putting into circulation of counterfeit and/or altered valuables, since the Bank may incur administrative liability where, while not conspiring with the authors of the counterfeiting, a bank employee, who doubts the authenticity of certain valuables on receiving them, but is not absolutely sure of their being counterfeit, puts them into circulation in order to prevent the Bank from incurring damage or quite simply avoiding the problems inherent in recognising and reporting the falsity of the valuables to the competent Authorities.

The contents of this protocol are aimed at ensuring that the Bank complies with the current legislation and the principles of transparency, correctness, objectivity and traceability in the performance of the activity in question.

Process description

The process involves the following stages:

- handling of the valuables (cashier’s transactions, night safe, ATM operation, transfer of valuables to the Branches and payments to the Bank of Italy, external transactions);
- monitoring and examination of the valuables;
- management of the valuables and in particular of any suspicious banknotes (withdrawing the banknotes, preparing a report, submitting the report and the banknotes to the competent Authorities and filing the documentation).
The operating procedures for management of the process are governed by the internal rules, which are developed and updated by the competent Structures, and which form an integral and substantive part of this protocol.

Control principles

The control system for monitoring the process described above must be based on the following elements:

- Authorisation levels defined within each operating step of the process. Specifically:
  - all persons involved in the process of handling valuables shall be identified and authorised by the Head of the reference Structure by means of internal delegation, to be kept on file by the same Structure;
  - the conclusion of contractual relationships with intermediaries tasked with processing of the valuables must be authorised by persons duly empowered under the current power and delegation system.

- Segregation of duties between the different persons involved in the process.

- Control activities: the reference internal regulation identifies the line controls that must be performed by each Structure/Operating Point concerned when handling valuables relating to performance of the process subject of this protocol. Specifically:
  - under the responsibility of the Head of the Structure/Operating Point Manager, the valuables handled by all operators shall be checked every six months (this control shall not coincide with transfers of duties);
  - with reference to the night safe/collection of valuables through intermediaries, the opening of the armoured equipment and the checks on the containers and the valuables must be performed by two employees working together without interruption;
  - with reference to the management of ATMs, the opening of the armoured equipment, uploading of banknotes, check of the valuables, recovery of debit cards captured by the machine and clearance of accounts must be performed by two employees working together without interruption;
  - the Head of the Structure/Operating Point Manager, or an employee designated by them shall, at least once a month carry out spot checks on the quantitative and qualitative content of the wads being delivered, recording the checks carried out and their results.

- Process traceability including both the electronic and the paper trail:
in implementing the operations required for putting valuables into circulation, supporting IT systems shall be used to ensure traceability of the operations performed.

- in order to enable reconstruction of responsibilities, the Structure from time to time concerned shall be responsible for filing and storing, also in telematic or electronic format, all the documentation it produced in performing activities associated with the process of managing the valuables, including the transfer of suspicious banknotes to the Bank of Italy.

Rules of conduct

The Bank’s structures howsoever involved in the management of valuables shall comply with the procedures set out in this protocol, the applicable provisions of the law, the internal rules and any provisions of the Group’s Code of Ethics and Internal Code of Conduct.

In particular all persons whose duties include the handling of valuables for whatever reason:

- must be specifically authorised;
- have an obligation to operate with honesty, integrity, correctness and good faith;
- have an obligation to pay special attention to dealings with customers who are not sufficiently known to them, or to transactions concerning substantial amounts;
- must thoroughly check the valuables they receive, in order to identify any suspicious valuables. For identification purposes, banknote selection and acceptance equipment may also be used, making it possible to check both the banknotes’ authenticity and their suitability for circulation, or only their authenticity; alternatively, the authenticity checks can be carried out by trained staff, by means of manual checks without using selection and acceptance devices;
- must, where they detect banknotes which they suspect of being counterfeit, promptly prepare a report of withdrawal from circulation of such suspicious banknotes and report the finding to the competent Authority (UCAMP, Bank of Italy) in accordance with the procedures and time limit set out in the internal regulation;
- must hold the banknotes suspected of being counterfeit and for which the specific report was prepared in appropriate safes for the period between the date of detection/withdrawal of the banknote from circulation up to its forwarding to the Bank of Italy;
- must immediately report for appropriate action to their superior any attempt to circulate banknotes or valuables suspected of being counterfeit on the part of customers or third parties and of which the staff was the target or simply became aware of. The superior shall in turn forward the report received to the Internal Audit Structure for appropriate assessment.

Moreover:
• if third parties are to be involved in the handling of valuables, the contracts entered into with such persons shall contain a specific declaration that they know the provisions of Legislative Decree no. 231/2001 and undertake to comply with them;
• the payment of fees or remuneration to any service providers involved is subject to prior authorisation to be issued by the organisational unit which is competent to assess the quality of service and the consequent appropriateness of the remuneration requested; in any case, no remuneration shall be payable to service providers where it is not adequately justified by the type of work performed or to be performed.

In any case, it is forbidden to engage/collaborate in or induce conduct which may belong to one of the types of offences covered by Legislative Decree no. 231/2001; more specifically, purely by way of example and without limitation it is forbidden to:
• put valuables into circulation, alone or in conspiracy with others. An employee who receives a banknote in good faith and subsequently suspects it of being counterfeit, shall not attempt to put such suspicious banknote back into circulation or to return it to the person that gave it to him, cut it in half or destroy it;
• infringe the provisions of the current rules and legislation on the withdrawal from circulation and forwarding to the Bank of Italy of the euro denominated banknotes suspected of being counterfeit.

7.4 Sensitive area concerning corporate offences

7.4.1 Types of offences

Introduction
Article 25-ter of Legislative Decree no. 231/2001 covers the greatest part of corporate offences, not specifically referable to the exercise of banking activity and which therefore qualify as general offences.

The corporate offences considered concern various areas, and relate in particular to the preparation of the financial statements, external communications, certain capital transactions, obstructing controls and hindering the performance of supervisory functions. All these types of offences have been defined for the common purpose of ensuring transparency in accounting documents and in corporate management and the provision of sound information to shareholders, third parties and the market in general.

With regard to the types of criminal offences in respect of accounting documents and the controls to be performed by the Supervisory Authorities, it should be noted that the Bank – also in its capacity as a listed company – is well placed to put in place effective prevention measures to soundly implement legislative provisions, as it is governed by special legislation requiring it to formalise the whole process of preparing accounting reports, and it must fulfil a series of obligations and requirements towards the Authorities. As a consequence, the procedures for managing the risk of offences outlined in this document reflect actions which are already well established in banking practice, or which derive in any way from the application of the primary legislation and regulation in force.

The types of offences laid down in Articles 25-ter of the Decree are listed below.

False corporate reporting (Article 2621 of the Civil Code)
False corporate reporting causing damage to companies, shareholders or creditors (Article 2622 of the Civil Code)

These offences are committed where the financial statements, reports or other corporate disclosures required by law, addressed to the shareholders, the creditors or the general public, contain untrue material facts, albeit subject to assessment, and such as to mislead the intended recipients with regard to the profit and loss, balance sheet or cash flow situation of the Company or of the Group it belongs to for the purpose of deceiving the shareholders, the creditors or the public; or where said corporate reports omit, for the same purpose, information on the corporate situation whose disclosure is required by the law.

It should be noted that:
the conduct must be aimed at securing an unfair gain for the perpetrators or others;
the false or omitted information must be substantial – i.e. it must exceed certain thresholds laid down by law - and must be such as to substantially alter the view of the profit and loss, balance sheet or cash flow situation of the Company or of the Group it belongs to. If the alterations are less than the substantial thresholds, the natural persons who engaged in the conduct shall in any case be liable for monetary administrative penalties as well as disqualifying sanctions; liability also occurs where the information concerns assets held or administered by the company on behalf of third parties;
the offence referred to in Article 2622 of the Civil Code is characterised by the additional circumstance that the false or omitted information caused financial damage to the company, its shareholders or its creditors. Moreover, such offence is not automatically prosecutable but only where the victim lodges a complaint, unless it concerns listed companies; Law no. 262/2005 (“Savings Law”) extended the range of people who may commit the offences referred to in Articles 2621 and 2622 of the Civil Code to “the executives responsible for preparing corporate accounting documents”; moreover, it lengthened the detention sentences provided for by Article 2622 of the Civil Code for those instances in which the criminal conduct causes severe harm to investors.

False reports or communications from the audit firm (Article 27 of Legislative Decree no.
39/2010)
Before the amendments introduced by law 262/2055 (the so-called “Law on Savings”) the captioned offence was only ruled by art. 2624 of the Civil Code mentioned in art. 25 ter of Legislative Decree 231/2001. Such law has subsequently ruled the same type of offence (by introducing art. 174-bis of the Consolidated Law on Finance) with specific reference to the auditing of listed companies, their subsidiaries and companies issuing financial instruments having wide public circulation. Legislative Decree no. 39/2010, which reorganised the provisions on statutory auditing, repealed, effective from 7 April 2010, both Article 2624 of the Civil Code and art. 174 bis of the Consolidated Law on Finance, replacing them with the new type of offence set out in Article 27 of Legislative Decree no. 39/2010.
The offence occurs where the persons in charge of the auditing process make false statements or conceal information on the profit and loss, balance sheet or cash flow situation of the audited company, in order to obtain an unfair gain for themselves or others, with full awareness of the falsity of the statements and with the intention of deceiving the recipients of the communications.
This offence is punished more severely where: it causes financial damage to the recipients of the communications; it concerns the auditing of certain entities defined by the Decree as being "of public interest" (including listed companies, the issuers of financial instruments having wide public circulation, banks, certain insurance companies, stock brokerage companies (SIM), asset management companies (SGR), UCITS, the financial intermediaries referred to in Article 107 of the Banking Law; it is committed in exchange for money or other benefit; it is committed in conspiracy with members of the audited company.

The main offenders in this type of crime are the heads of the audit firm (offence connected to their office). However, Article 27 has extended liability to any person who gives or promises money or benefits, and to the general managers and the members of the administrative organ and of the supervisory body of the public interest entities who aid and abet in commission of the offence. Since Article 25-ter of Legislative Decree no. 231/2001, which refers to Article 2624 of the Civil code, has not been amended neither as a consequence of the introduction of art. 174 bis of the Consolidated Law on Finance, nor with regard to the new type of offence referred to in the above mentioned art. 27, there are serious doubts as to whether entities may still be held liable for the conduct in question.

The matter has been resolved upon by the Joint Criminal Sections of the Court of Cassation which, with judgment no. 34476 of 23 June 2011, held that the crime of false statutory audit as currently set forth by Legislative Decree no. 39/2010 no longer falls within the scope of application of the entities' administrative liability, granted that the relevant cases are no longer referenced in the list of crimes provided for by Art. 25-ter of Legislative Decree no. 231/2001 and as such may not constitute grounds for the said liability. Indeed, according to the Court, the imputation criterion that enables an individual's conduct to be attributed to an entity, in the interest/benefit of which the former has acted, by virtue of the principle of legality presupposes the perpetration of an offence within the scope of cases mandatorily provided for by the legislator, since it is not possible to resort to hypotheses of regulatory integration from the current instance by way of a possible so-called "dynamic" reference (rinvio mobile).

Obstruction of controls (Article 2625 paragraph 2 of the Civil Code and Article 29 of Legislative Decree no. 39/2010)

The offence referred to in Article 2625 paragraph 2 of the Civil Code occurs where the directors conceal documents or otherwise act so as to prevent or hinder performance of the control activities legally vested in the shareholders or other Corporate bodies, thereby causing damage to the shareholders. The offence is prosecutable on the complaint of the injured party, and the sentence shall be harsher if the offence involves a listed company or issuers whose financial instruments are widely circulated among the public.

Article 2625 of the Civil Code originally also included obstruction by the company’s directors of the auditing activity performed by the audit firm. This offence was eliminated from Article 2625 of the Civil Code by Legislative Decree no. 39/2010, which reorganised the rules on statutory auditing, and is now prosecutable under Article 29 of the same Decree, in force from 7 April 2010, which introduces prosecutability ex officio and harsher sentences if damage is caused to shareholders or third parties, or where the statutory auditing concerns public interest entities.

Since Art. 25-ter of Legislative Decree no. 231/2001 was not consequently amended with the inclusion of a reference to the aforesaid Art. 29 as well, on the basis of the principle stated by the Joint Sections of the Court of Cassation with reference to the crime of “false relations or communications of the auditing firm” (see above), it would appear possible to claim that the crime in question no longer amounts to an underlying crime for the purposes of the entities' administrative liability.

Undue repayment of contributions (Article 2626 of the Civil Code)
In its typical form, this offence, apart from cases of lawful share capital reductions, occurs where the shareholders’ contributions are returned to them, also by means of simulated transactions, or where the shareholders are exempted from the obligation to make such contributions.

Unlawful distribution of profits and reserves (Article 2627 of the Civil Code)
This offence consists of distributing profits or advances on profits not actually made, or which under the law should be appropriated to reserves, or of distributing reserves, including those not created through profits, which are legally non-distributable.
It should be noted that returning the profits or re-establishing the reserves before the time-limit specified for approval of the financial statements extinguishes the offence.

Unlawful dealing in the stocks or shares of the company or its parent company (Article 2628 of the Civil Code)
This offence is committed by the purchase or the subscription, apart from the cases permitted by law, of stocks or shares in the company itself or in its parent company, which cause damage to the integrity of the share capital or of non-distributable reserves.
It should be noted that if the share capital or the reserves are restored before the time limit for approval of the financial statements for the period in which the event took place the offence is extinguished.

Transactions prejudicial to creditors (Article 2629 of the Civil Code)
This offence is committed when, in breach of the provisions of the law protecting creditors, reductions in share capital or mergers with other companies or demergers are carried out, such as to cause damage to the creditors.
It should be noted that compensating the creditors for the damage incurred before the judgement is a means of extinguishing the offence.
Failure to disclose conflicts of interest (Article 2629-bis of the Civil Code)
This offence occurs where a director or a member of the Management Board (where the dual system is adopted) of a company listed on an Italian or EU regulated market or whose shares are widely distributed among the public, or of a company subject to supervision pursuant to the Consolidated Law on Banking, the Consolidated Law on Financial Intermediation or to legislation on insurance activities or supplemental pension funds fails to notify, in the manner and within the deadline set out in Article 2391 of the Civil Code the body he belongs to or the company and in any case the Board of Directors, of any interest they might have personally or on behalf of third parties in a given transaction of the company in question, or, in the case of Managing Director, he does not abstain from carrying out the transaction, thereby causing a damage to the company or to third parties.

Fictitious capital formation (Article 2632 of the Civil Code)
This offence takes place where the directors and shareholders making capital contributions falsely form or increase the company’s capital by assigning a number of stocks or shares for an overall value exceeding the amount of the share capital, by mutual underwriting of stocks or shares, by substantially overvaluing contributions made in kind or through receivables or by overvaluing the company’s assets in the event of company transformation.

Improper distribution of the company’s assets by its liquidators (Article 2633 of the Civil Code)
The offence occurs where the liquidators distribute the company’s assets among the shareholders before paying off the company’s creditors or before appropriating the sums necessary to satisfy creditors’ claims, thereby causing damage to the creditors.
It should be noted that compensating the creditors for the damage incurred before the judgement is a means of extinguishing the offence.

Unlawfully influencing the shareholders’ meeting (Article 2636 of the Civil Code)
The typical conduct involves obtaining a majority in the shareholders’ meeting by simulation or fraud, in order to achieve an unfair profit for the offender or for others.

Market rigging (Article 2637 of the Civil Code)
This offence is committed by spreading false information or setting up simulated transactions or the use of other devices likely to significantly alter the price of financial instruments which are not listed and for which no application for listing on a regulated market has been made, or likely to have a significant impact on public confidence in the financial stability of banks or banking groups.
Obstruction of the duties of the Public Supervisory Authorities (Article 2638 of the Civil Code)

This offence occurs when submitting mandatory communications to the public supervisory authorities, if untrue material facts are declared, albeit the subject of estimates, or facts that should have been reported are totally or partially concealed by fraudulent means, concerning the company’s profit and loss, balance sheet or cash flow situation, for the specific purpose of obstructing the Supervisory Authority’s activity.

This offence is also generated by any active or omissive conduct having the effect of hindering performance of the Supervisory Authorities’ duties.

The penalty is increased if the offence involves a listed company or issuers whose financial instruments are widely distributed among the public.

False statements in prospectuses (Article 173-bis of Legislative Decree no. 58/1998)

Law 262/2005 (known as the “Law on Savings”) repealed Article 2623 of the Civil Code, concerning False statements in prospectuses, replacing it with a new type of offence set out in the new legislative framework provided by the Consolidated Law on Financial Intermediation, adopted by Legislative Decree no. 58/1998 (hereinafter, the Consolidated Law on Finance).

The new Article 173-bis of the Consolidated Law on Finance punishes the conduct of any person who includes false information or conceals data or news in the prospectuses required for public offerings or for admission to trading on regulated markets, or in the documents required for public purchase or exchange offers.

For this conduct to constitute an offence, the person engaging in it must act with the intention of deceiving the recipients of the prospectuses, in order to obtain an unfair profit for himself or others. Moreover, the false or omitted information must be such as to lead their recipients into error.

Since the Law on Savings has not amended the text of Article 25-ter of Legislative Decree no. 231/2001, expressly replacing the reference to Article 2623 of the Civil Code it contains with a reference to Article 173-bis of the Consolidated Law on Finance, pursuant to the principle affirmed by the Sezioni Penali Unite of the Court of Cassation with reference to the offence of “false reports or communication from the audit firms” (see above) it seems to appear that the captioned offence does no longer constitute a crime with regard to the entities’ administrative liability.

7.4.2 Sensitive company activities

The sensitive activities identified by Model which involve the highest risks of corporate offences are the following:
- Management of relations with the Supervisory Board and the Independent Auditors;
- Management of periodic reporting;
- Preparation of the prospectuses;
- Management of relations with Supervisory Authorities.

We reproduce below, for the first three above-mentioned sensitive activities, the protocols laying down the control principles and rules of conduct applicable to these activities, as well as the detailed corporate regulations governing the activities. The last activity above is covered by the protocol reproduced in chapter 7.2.2.7, which has the specific purpose of preventing, both the offence of bribery and the corporate offence referred to in Article 2638 of the Civil Code.
7.4.2.1. Management of relations with the Supervisory Board and the Independent Auditors

Introduction

This protocol applies to the members of the Management Board and to all the Bank’s Bodies and Structures involved in the management of relations with the Supervisory Board and with the Independent Audit Firm at the time of checks and audits performed to fulfil legal requirements.

Pursuant to Legislative Decree no. 231/2001, the process in question might potentially offer opportunities for commission of the offence of “Obstruction of controls”, pursuant to Article 2625 of the Civil Code and of the offences referred to in Article 27 of Legislative Decree no. 39/2010 (with regard to the offence of false reporting or communications by the persons responsible for auditing, committed in conspiracy with bodies of the audited company) and in Article 29 of the same Decree (concerning the offence preventing or hindering the performance of statutory auditing activities), which are taken into account for the purposes of this protocol, notwithstanding the principle affirmed by the Court of Cassation mentioned, in paragraph 7.4.1 above.

The contents of this protocol are aimed at ensuring that the Bank complies with the current legislation and the principles of transparency, correctness, objectivity and traceability in the management of the relations in question.

Process description

In the area of the monitoring activities vested in the Supervisory Board – which are also carried out through Committees set up within the Board itself (hereinafter, “Committees”), in particular through the Control Committee – and those vested in the Independent audit firm, management of relations with such bodies can be broken down as follows:

- submission of the required periodic reports;
- submission of corporate information and data and provision of documentation, based on specific requests.

The operating procedures for management of the process are governed by the internal rules, which are developed and updated by the competent Structures, and which form an integral and substantive part of this protocol.
Control principles

The control system for monitoring the process must be based on the following elements:

- Authorisation levels defined within each operating step of the process. In particular, relations with the Supervisory Board, the Committees and the Independent audit firm shall be managed by the Head of the reference structure or by the persons specifically appointed by him.

- Segregation of duties is ensured between the different persons involved in the process of managing relations with the Supervisory Board, the Committees and the Independent Audit Firm, in order to guarantee that a maker and checker mechanism is in place in all stages of the process.

- Regular and ongoing participation of the Control Committee in Management Board meetings, to ensure that the Supervisory Board is effectively informed of the Bank’s and the Group’s operational choices.

- All requests for specific documents made by the Supervisory Board and the Committees in pursuit of their monitoring and control duties are promptly and fully met, also through the Supervisory Board's General Secretariat.

- All requests for specific documents made by the Independent audit firm in performance of its audit, monitoring and administrative-accounting process assessment activities are promptly and fully met by the competent structures: each Structure shall collect and organise the information requested and deliver it, in accordance with the contractual obligations set out in the audit engagement contract. Records shall be maintained of all the documents provided in response to specific information requests formally made by the auditors.

- The structures concerned shall promptly and fully make available to the Independent Audit Firm the documentation they possess relating to the control activities and operational processes implemented, to enable the auditors to carry out their verifications.

- Process traceability including both the electronic and the paper trail:
  - all the monitoring and control activities carried out by the Supervisory Board and the Committees shall be systematically recorded and kept on file;
the supporting declarations for preparation of the Representation Letter, issued to the Independent audit firm, shall be checked and filed, and shall be signed by the Executive in charge of preparing the corporate accounting documents and by the Managing Director;

in order to allow reconstruction of responsibilities and of the reasons for the choices made, the Structure from time to time concerned shall be responsible for filing and storing, also in telematic or electronic format, all the documentation it has produced relating to performance of the requirements relating to management of relations with the Supervisory Board, the Committees and the Independent audit firm.

Rules of conduct

The Banks Structures and Bodies howsoever involved in the management of relations with the Supervisory Board, the Committees and the Independent Audit Firm, have an obligation to act with the highest diligence, professionalism, transparency, collaboration and availability and to fully respect the institutional role of said governance bodies, promptly and accurately meeting all provisions and performing any requirements set out in this protocol, in compliance with the applicable provisions of law and with any relevant provisions of the Group’s Code of Ethics and Internal Code of Conduct.

Specifically:

- the periodic reports to the Supervisory Board, the Committees – also through the Supervisory Board’s General Secretariat - and the Independent audit firm shall be submitted in a timely manner, and all requests and demands received from the same bodies shall be promptly replied to;

- The members of the Management Board and the employees who are for whatever reason involved in a request to submit documents or information made by the Supervisory Board or by any of its members or by the Committees – through the Supervisory Board’s General Secretariat – and of the Independent Audit Firm shall act with the highest correctness and transparency and shall in no way hinder monitoring and/or auditing activities;

- all data and documents shall be made available in a precise manner and using clear, objective and exhaustive language, so as to provide accurate, complete, faithful and truthful information;

- each Corporate structure shall be responsible for filing and keeping all the documents formally shown and/or delivered to the members of the Supervisory Board and of the Committees and to the Auditors, within the sphere of their activity, including all documents submitted in electronic format;
In any case, it is forbidden to engage/collaborate in or induce conduct which may be identified in one of the types of offences covered by Legislative Decree no. 231/2001; more specifically, purely by way of example and without limitation it is forbidden to:

- present incomplete documents and data and/or communicate false or altered data;
- adopt deceitful conduct which might lead the Supervisory Board, the Committees and the Independent audit firm into error in the technical-economic assessment of the documents submitted;
- promise or give sums of money or other benefits to members of the Supervisory Board or of the Independent audit firm, with the purpose of promoting or furthering the Bank’s interests.

7.4.2.2. Management of periodic reporting

Introduction

This protocol applies to all the Bank Structures involved in the preparation of the documents that contain communications to shareholders and/or to the market concerning the Bank’s profit and loss, balance sheet and financial situation.

Pursuant to Legislative Decree no. 231/2001, the process of preparing such documents might present potential opportunities for commission of the offence of “false corporate reporting”, as set out in Articles 2621 and 2622 of the Civil code.

The process of preparing the documents in question is governed by guidelines contained in the Company’s Regulation approved by the Management Board, with the Supervisory Board’s favourable opinion, in response to the indications set out in Law 262/2005 and in particular in Article 154-bis of the Consolidated Law on Finance, which introduced the role of “Manager responsible for preparing a company's financial reports” assigning the incumbent specific responsibilities aimed at ensuring a truthful and fair representation of Group’s profit and loss, balance sheet and financial situation.

The Regulation, entitled “Guidelines for administrative and financial governance”, sets out the reference principles and the roles and responsibilities assigned to the Bank’s structures in respect of the process covered by Protocol, of which it forms and integral part. The Regulation provides, in particular, that the sensitive procedures relating to financial disclosures shall be formalised and verified, in order to assess their compliance with the requirements of Article 154-bis of the Consolidated Law on Finance; therefore, the procedures set out in the regulation constitute the detailed operational rules of this protocol.

The contents of this protocol are aimed at ensuring that the Bank complies with current legislation and the principles of transparency, correctness, objectivity and traceability in the performance of the activity in question.

Process description

Within the sensitive processes relating to financial reporting, a particularly important role is played by the activities required for preparation of the annual financial statements, the consolidated financial statements and the quarterly and half-yearly statements, calculation of fiscal charges and fulfilment of direct and indirect tax obligations. Such activities fall under the following corporate processes:

- Management of the accounts and of supervisory communications;
- Management of the individual companies' financial statements and of the Group's consolidated financial statements;
- Management of tax obligations;

The operating procedures for management of the process are governed by the internal rules, which are developed and updated by the competent Structures, and which form an integral and substantive part of this protocol.

Control principles

The documents containing communications to the shareholders and/or to the market concerning the Bank's profit and loss, balance sheet and financial situation must be prepared in accordance with the specific corporate procedures, practices and systems in force which:

- identify in a clear and exhaustive manner the functions concerned and the data and information they must provide;
- identify criteria for recognising corporate events in the accounts and for determining the value of individual accounting entries;
- define the deadlines, the matters to be communicated and disclosed, organisation of the related flows of information and any request for the issue of specific declarations;
- provide for the transmission of data and information to the Structure responsible for collecting them through a system that ensures the traceability of the individual transactions and identification of the persons that enter the data into the system;
- establish criteria and procedures for processing the data of the consolidated financial statements and for the forwarding of such data by the companies belonging to the scope of consolidation.

The control system for monitoring the process described above must be based on the following elements:

- Specifically defined roles and responsibilities
  - Each Structure is responsible for the processes that contribute to generating accounting items and/or for the valuation activities assigned to it, and for any comments to the financial statements falling within its sphere of competence;
o the power and delegation system establishes the degree of operational autonomy in respect of the activity in question, in particular with regard to the recognition of losses;

o Different user profiles are defined for accessing IT procedures, matching specific authorisation levels based on assigned functions;

o the adequacy of the sensitive processes relating to accounting and financial reporting and of the related controls shall be monitored by a specific structure reporting to the Manager responsible for preparing the company’s financial reports, and by the internal audit function in performance of its activity;

- Segregation of functions
  o The process of preparing the documents containing communications to shareholders and/or to the market concerning the Banks’ profit and loss, balance sheet and financial situation involves several Structures, which operate in the different phases of the process in accordance with the instructions provided in the “Guidelines for administrative and financial governance”.

- Control activities
  o The activities of preparing the documents containing communications to the shareholders and/or to the market concerning the Bank’s profit and loss, balance sheet and financial situation shall be carefully and thoroughly checked for completeness and accuracy, using both automated and manual systems. The main controls performed by the individual Structures are as follows:
    - periodic checks of the balances of the accounting items in general, in order to ensure the clearance of the accounts;
    - verification, at pre-established intervals, of all balances of work in progress, temporary accounts and similar accounts, to ensure that the Units concerned which have fed the accounts make the necessary entries under the appropriate headings;
    - existence of maker and checker controls ensuring that the person executing the transaction is different from the person who authorised it after checking its appropriateness;
    - for all transactions recorded in the accounts a duly validated first accounting entry is made, and the associated supporting documents are provided;
    - any changes are analysed by comparing the accounting data for the current period with that recorded in the previous periods;
a control on the merit is carried out when opening new accounts and updating the account plan;

- harmonisation of the final version of the financial statements with the accounting data.

- Verification of the adequacy of the sensitive processes for accounting and financial reporting purposes and of the effective application of the associated controls comprising the following phases:
  - verifying the design of the controls;
  - testing actual application of the controls;
  - identifying problem areas and defining corrective action plans;
  - monitoring the progress and effectiveness of the corrective actions undertaken.

- Process traceability including both the electronic and the paper trail:
  - the decision-making process for preparing the documents containing communications to the shareholders and/or to the market concerning the Bank’s profit and loss, balance sheet and financial situation is guaranteed by the complete traceability of each accounting operation, both via the IT system and on paper support;
  - all the adjusting entries made by the individual Structures with regards to the accounts under their competence or by the Structure responsible for the management of the Financial Statements shall be supported by appropriate documentation indicating the criteria adopted and providing an analytical view of the development of calculations;
  - all the documentation concerning the periodic controls carried out shall be kept on file by each Structure involved in respect of the accounting items under its competence;
  - all the documents supporting preparation of the financial statements shall be kept on file by the Structure responsible for management of the Financial Statements and/or by the structures involved in the financial reporting process.

Rules of conduct

The Bank’s structures howsoever involved in bookkeeping activities and in the subsequent preparation/filing of corporate reports on the Bank’s profit and loss and asset situation (annual financial statements, consolidated financial statements, reports on operations, quarterly and half-yearly reports, etc.) are required to comply with the procedures set out in this document, with the applicable provisions of law, with the “Guidelines for administrative and financial governance” and with the procedures governing the activity in question; all such rules are based on principles of transparency, accuracy and completeness in financial reporting, for the purpose of producing fair and timely views of the profit and loss, asset and financial situation, also in accordance and for the purpose of Articles 2621 and 2622 of the Civil Code. In particular, the Bank’s structures shall adopt at all times a correct, transparent and cooperative approach, in compliance with the rules of law and with internal corporate procedures, in all the activities targeting preparation of the financial statements and of the other corporate reports, in order to provide shareholders and third parties with a true and fair view of the Bank's profit and loss, balance sheet and financial situation.

In any case, it is forbidden to engage/collaborate in or induce conduct which may be classified as belonging to one of the types of offences covered by Legislative Decree no. 231/2001; more specifically, purely by way of example and without limitation it is forbidden to:

- recognise or transmit for processing and recognition in financial statements, reports and prospectuses or in other corporate communications, false, incomplete or howsoever inaccurate data on Bank’s and Group’s profit and loss, balance sheet and financial situation;
- omit data and information imposed by the law on the Bank’s and the Group’s profit and loss, balance sheet and financial situation.

7.4.2.3. Preparation of the prospectuses

Introduction

This protocol applies to all the Bank Structures involved in preparation of the Prospectuses\(^1\) required for public offerings or for admission to trading on regulated markets, or in the documents to be published when the Bank launches public purchase or exchange offers. The related process could present potential opportunities for commission of the offence of “False statements in prospectuses”, set out in Article 173-bis of the Consolidated Law on Finance, and implies clear connections with the procedures in place for the prevention of market abuse conduct; although there are serious doubts as to whether the offence of “False statements in prospectuses” might involve the administrative liability of Entities, as stated in the section illustrating the types of offences (paragraph 7.4.1), it is nevertheless advisable to put in place specific control and conduct principles to monitor such process. The Prospectus contains the information “that, depending on the characteristics of the financial products and the Issuers, is necessary for investors to make an informed assessment of the Issuer’s assets and liabilities, profits and losses, financial position and prospects and of the financial products and related rights”. In the event of public offers to buy or exchange financial instruments, the Document shall contain “the information that is necessary for investors to make an informed assessment of the offer”.

The contents of this protocol are aimed at ensuring that the Bank complies with current legislation and the principles of transparency, correctness, objectivity and traceability in the performance of the activity in question.

Process description

In compliance with current legislation, the prospectus preparation process comprises the following phases:

- collecting the information necessary to prepare the prospectuses from the competent Structures;
- preparing and signing the prospectuses;
- statement by the Manager Responsible for preparing the company’s financial reports, pursuant to Article154-bis of the Consolidated Law on Finance;

The Prospectuses referred to are both those relating to issues in the domestic market and those relating to the issue of securities in the international markets.
- forwarding of the prospectuses and management of relations with the competent Authorities.

The operating procedures for management of the process are governed by the internal rules, which are developed and updated by the competent Structures, and which form an integral and substantive part of this protocol.

Control principles

The control system for monitoring the process described above is based on the following elements:

- Expressly defined authorisation levels:
  - the Bank, taking into account the provisions of Article 154-bis, paragraph 3 of the Consolidated Law on Finance, shall identify the Structures responsible for preparing and drafting the various Sections of the Prospectuses, identifying, within their respective missions or through formal delegation, the Structures responsible for preparing, signing and forwarding the prospectuses to the Authorities;
  - the relations with the competent Authorities shall be held by duly empowered persons, in compliance with the rules of conduct laid down in the protocol “Management of relations with the Supervisory Authorities”;
  - securities issuance or listing transactions must be approved by the statutory governance bodies of the Bank.

- Segregation of duties:
  - the Prospectus preparation process sees the participation of several Bank Structures, which are responsible, each within the scope of its competences, for organising the information and drafting the documents necessary for preparing the Prospectuses.

- Control activity by each competent Structure and in particular:
  - controls on the completeness, correctness and accuracy of the information provided in the documents falling under each Structure’s competence, which must be supported by maker and checker mechanisms;
  - legal controls on compliance with the reference legislation;

- Process traceability including both the electronic and the paper trail:
  - each relevant stage of the Prospectus drafting process must be recorded in specific written documents;
in order to allow reconstruction of responsibilities and of the reasons for the choices made, the Structure from time to time concerned shall be responsible for filing and storing, also in telematic or electronic format, all the documentation it produced relating to performance of the requirements associated with preparation of the Prospectuses.

Rules of conduct

The Bank’s Structures howsoever involved in preparation of the Prospectuses shall comply with the procedures set out in this protocol, with the applicable provisions of law, the internal rules and any provisions of the Group's Code of Ethics and Internal Code of Conduct.

In particular all Bank Structures involved have an obligation to:

- maintain at all times correct, transparent and co-operative conduct in order to ensure protection of investors’ savings;
- employ the maximum attention and accuracy in each activity aimed at collecting, processing and presenting data and information on the financial products necessary for investors to make an informed assessment on the Bank's and the Group’s profit and loss, balance sheet and financial situation;
- if third parties are to be involved in preparation of the Prospectuses, the contracts entered into with such persons shall contain a specific declaration that they know the provisions of Legislative Decree no. 231/2001 and undertake to comply with them.

For the correct management of the information underlying issue of the Prospectuses, reference is also made to the rules of conduct contained in the protocol reproduced in Chapter 7.7.2.1, concerning the “Management and disclosure of information for the purposes of preventing criminal and administrative offences in the area of market abuse”.

In any case, it is forbidden to engage/collaborate in or induce conduct which may be assessed as belonging to one of the types of offences covered by Legislative Decree no. 231/2001; more specifically, purely by way of example and without limitation it is forbidden to:

- prepare Prospectuses or offer documents that are incomplete and/or contain false or altered data.

The Heads of the Structures concerned have an obligation to put in place all measures necessary to ensure the effectiveness and concrete implementation of the control and conduct principles described in this protocol.
7.5 Sensitive area concerning crimes with the purpose of terrorism or subversion of the democratic order, organised crime, transnational crimes and crimes against the person

7.5.1 Types of offences

Introduction
Through a series of legislative acts, the framework of the administrative liability of Entities has been expanded to include various categories of offences, with the common aims of combating types of crime which raise particular concern at international level, specifically crimes of political terrorism, organised crime, including international organised crime, and crimes which violate fundamental human rights.

The banking industry - and our Bank’s policy in line with it – has always paid particular attention and has always been strongly committed to cooperation in the prevention of criminal phenomena in the financial market and to the fight against terrorism; the Bank’s commitment stems also from the aim of protecting sound and prudent management, transparency and correct behaviour and the proper functioning of the overall system. Furthermore, banking activity is especially exposed to the risk of making available to customers belonging to or close to criminal organisations services, financial resources or other economic means which may be instrumental to the pursuit of illegal activities.

The types of crimes in question are summarised below.

Crimes for the purposes of terrorism or subversion of the democratic order
Under Article 25-quater of the Decree an entity shall be punishable, where there are appropriate grounds, in the event that the crimes for the purpose of terrorism or subversion of the democratic order provided for by the Criminal Code, the special laws and by the International Convention for the Suppression of the Financing of Terrorism adopted in New York on 9.12.1999, are committed in the interest of or for the benefit of the entity.

This provision sets out no fixed or mandatory list of crimes, but refers to any criminal offence whose author specifically pursues aims of terrorism or subversion of the democratic order.

1 Article 270-sixies considers as having terrorist purposes those conducts which can cause considerable damage to a Country or international organization and are committed in order to intimidate the population or force public authorities or an international organization to perform or restrain from performing any deed or destabilize or destroy fundamental political, constitutional, economic and social structures, as well as the other conducts defined as terrorist or committed for the purpose of terrorism by conventions or other international law provisions which are binding for Italy. According to case law (Criminal Court of Cassation, judgment no. 39504/2008) the expression “subversion of the democratic order” cannot be limited to the concept of violent political action alone, but should rather refer to the Constitutional order, and
The main types of such offences which might apply are listed below.

A) Crimes for the purpose of terrorism and subversion of the democratic order provided for by the Criminal Code or by special criminal laws.

These are political crimes, i.e. crimes against the State’s domestic and international personality, against citizens’ political rights and against foreign countries, their heads and their representatives. The types of offences presenting a higher risk of occurrence during performance of banking activity are those of “Participation in financing the enemy” (Article 249 of the Criminal Code), “Kidnapping for purposes of terrorism or for subversion of the democratic order” (Article 289-bis of the Criminal Code) and the offence set out in Article 270-bis of the Criminal Code, concerning “Associations for the purpose of terrorism, including international terrorism, or of subversion of the democratic order”. In particular, this last offence also concerns any type of financing of associations which intend carrying out violent acts for the purpose of terrorism or subversion of the democratic order.

Attention should also be focused on financial offences, in particular money laundering and use of money, goods or other assets of unlawful origin, naturally if such offences are instrumental to the pursuit of the aims of terrorism or subversion of the democratic order.

In addition to the provisions of the Criminal Code, other relevant offences are set out in special laws covering a broad range of criminal activities (e.g. concerning weapons, drug trafficking, environmental protection, etc.) and in laws adopted in the 1970s and 1980s to combat terrorism (e.g. laws on the security of air and sea travel, etc.).

B) Crimes for the purpose of terrorism addressed by the 1999 New York Convention.

The reference to this provision clearly aims at avoiding any gaps in the overall legislative framework, and therefore intends to strengthen and complete the scope of offences covered also by reference to international legal instruments.

* * *

Organised crime offences

Article 24-ter of the Decree, inserted by Law no. 94/2009, firstly sets out a group of offences relating to the various forms of criminal organisations, namely:

- Generic Criminal association (Article 416 of the Criminal Code, paragraphs 1 - 5);
• Mafia-type criminal association – including foreign organised crime association – and vote exchange in elections (Articles 416-bis and 416-ter);

• Criminal association for the purpose of committing the crimes relating to slavery, human trafficking and the smuggling of migrants (Article 416 of the Criminal Code, paragraph 6);

• Association for the purpose of illicit trafficking in narcotic or psychotropic drugs (Article 74 of Presidential Decree no. 309/1990).

With reference to the types of criminal association listed above, it should be noted that the offence consists in promoting, establishing and participating in a criminal association consisting of three or more persons, and is therefore punishable per se regardless of whether or not the crimes pursued by the association are actually committed (any such crimes being punished separately). Consequently, the intentional participation of a representative or employee of the entity in a criminal association might of itself give rise to the entity’s administrative liability, provided, of course, that participation in or support for such criminal association is also in the entity's interest or gives an advantage to it. Moreover, the association must involve at least some form of stable organisation and a common plan to carry out an indefinite series of crimes. In other words, an occasional agreement for the commission of one or more specific crimes does not constitute the offence of criminal association. Under case law moreover, the offence of aiding and abetting a criminal association is committed by a person who, while not being a member of such association, contributes in a significant manner, albeit occasionally, to its existence or to the pursuit of its objectives.

The mafia-type criminal association (Article 416-bis of the Criminal Code) differs from the generic criminal association in that its participants exploit the intimidating power of their association and the resulting condition of submission and silence to commit crimes or – even without committing crimes, yet by use of the mafia method – to directly or indirectly acquire control over economic activities, concessions, authorisations, public contracts and services, or to obtain unlawful profits or advantages for themselves or for others, or with a view to preventing or limiting the freedom of vote, or to obtain votes for themselves of for others on the occasion of an election.

This provision also applies to the 'camorra' and other criminal organisations, howsoever named, including foreign crime syndicates, possessing the above-mentioned mafia-type characteristics. The crime of vote exchange in elections is committed by a person who obtains the promise of votes against the payment of a sum of money.

Lastly, the other two types of criminal association are characterised by their being set up to pursue specific crimes, namely: respectively, the offences relating to reducing into slavery, human trafficking and the smuggling of immigrants (punished by Articles 600, 601 and 602 of the Criminal Code and by Article 12 paragraph 3-bis of Legislative Decree no. 286/1998) and the offences of unlawful production, trafficking or possession of drugs of abuse or psychotropic substances. These specific purpose-oriented offences (except for drug offences) are in themselves autonomous predicate offences giving rise to the Entity’s liability, as discussed in greater detail below, in the section on crimes against the person and transnational crimes.

Article 24-ter also includes the generic category of any type of crime committed using mafia methods or in order to further the activity of a mafia-type association; in this case too, the Entity can be held liable only where the crime was aimed at pursuing its interest or giving it an advantage.

The first circumstance occurs when the perpetrator, while not belonging to the criminal organisation or aiding and abetting it, engages in specific intimidating conduct, for example making threats by exploiting the “reputation” of criminal organisations operating in a specific territory. The case of an offence furthering the activity of a mafia-type association occurs when the perpetrator acts with this specific aim in mind and his conduct is likely to achieve the intended result, for example where a money laundering offence is committed in the awareness of the fact that the operation concerns a mafia-type organisation.

Lastly, Article 24-ter also refers the following offences, which are usually, albeit not necessarily, committed by criminal organisations.

Kidnapping for ransom (Article 630 of the Criminal Code).

The offence consists of kidnapping a person in order to secure for oneself or others unlawful gain in exchange for release of the kidnapped person. The benefit may also consist in a non-financial advantage. In particular cases, this offence might also apply to persons who did not take part in the kidnapping but took steps to ensure that the kidnappers would obtain the ransom, by contributing to the lengthening of the negotiations and consequently of the kidnapped person’s deprivation of liberty, or by helping the kidnappers obtain the ransom. Moreover, the offence of money laundering could apply to any persons playing a role in the transfer, circulation or use of sums of money or other goods, knowing that such sums were obtained through the offence in question.

Crimes relating to weapons and explosives (Article 407 paragraph 2, point a), no. 5 c.c.p. code of criminal procedure).

These are offences laid down by the special laws on the subject (in particular Law no. 110/1975 and Law no. 895/1967), which punish the unlawful manufacturing, introduction into the country, sale, supply, possession and unauthorised carrying of explosives, weapons of war and common firearms, with the exception of firearms used on shooting ranges, and of gas or compressed-air firearms. In this case too, similarly to the previous offence, any type of collusion by the bank operators with the perpetrators of such offences, or the performance of activities such as, for instance, the granting of financing, with the awareness of favouring such offences, even merely indirectly, could give rise to the offence of aiding and abetting such crimes, or to other offences, e.g. money laundering.

* * *

Transnational offences
The liability of Entities for this category of offence is laid down in Law no. 146/2006, in order to enhance the effectiveness of the fight against transnational organised crime.
An offence is considered to be transnational and is punished with a term of imprisonment of not less than four years, where it involves an organised criminal group and:
- was committed in more than one Country, or
- was committed in one Country, but a significant part of its preparation, planning, management or control took place in another Country, or
- was committed in one Country, but involved an organised criminal group which pursues criminal activities in more than one Country;
- was committed in one Country, but had significant impact in another Country.

We describe below the criminal offences which may give rise to the Entity’s liability where the twofold conditions of the entity’s interest or advantage and of the translational nature of the crime (of which the offender must have been aware) are met.

Criminal associations under Articles 416 and 416-bis of the Criminal Code criminal associations for the smuggling of foreign tobacco products (Article 291-quater of Presidential Decree no. 43/1973) or for trafficking in drugs of abuse (Article 74 of Presidential Decree no. 309/1990)
The basic characteristics of the conduct constituting criminal association are described above in the paragraphs on criminal association offences. We believe that, where such offences are of a transnational nature, the only penalties that might be applicable to the entity are those set out in Law no. 146/2006 but not those set out in Article 24-ter of the Decree.

Offences relating to the smuggling of migrants (Article 12, paragraphs 3, 3-bis, 3-ter and 5 of Legislative Decree no. 286/1998)
Article 12 punishes the illegal transport of foreigners into the territory of the State, as well as the promotion, coordination, organisation or financing of such transport, and other acts aimed at facilitating the illegal entry of foreigners into the territory of Italy or of another country different from their country of origin or habitual residence. However, at least one of the five conditions listed in the Article must be met for this offence to take place 1.

The punishment is increased where at least two of the above-mentioned conditions are met at the same time, or where the acts were committed for specific aims such as: the recruitment of persons to be destined for prostitution; sexual or labour exploitation; the exploitation of minors, or, in general, in order to obtain a profit, even indirectly.

Lastly, paragraph 5 punishes complicity in the permanence of a foreigner in order to obtain an unfair gain from such foreigner’s illegal status. Unfair gain is deemed to occur when the balance of services is altered as a consequence of the fact that the offender is aware of the foreigner’s illegal status and exploits to his advantage.

Inducement not to make or to make false statements to judicial authorities (Article 377-bis of the Criminal Code)

This offence occurs when anyone uses violence or threats, or offers or promises money or other benefit to induce not to make statements, or to make false statements any person who is called before the judicial authorities to make statements in connection with criminal proceedings, if such person has the right to remain silent.

This offence can entail the Entity’s liability even where the transnational element is absent, since it is referred to not only by Law no.146/2006, but also by Article 25-decies of the Decree.

Aiding a fugitive (Article 378 of the Criminal Code)

This offence consists of helping the author of a crime punishable by life imprisonment or a prison sentence – after the deed, and without having aided and abetted its commission – to avoid investigation by the authorities or arrest. The offence occurs even if the person so assisted cannot be charged with the crime or is found not to have committed it. The penalty is increased when the crime in question is that of participation in a mafia-type association.

It should be noted that according to prevailing case law, this offence is also committed by those who give false replies on being questioned by the Judicial authorities.

1 In brief: a) the act concerns the illegal entry or residence in Italy of five or more persons; b) the smuggled persons’ life or safety were endangered; c) the smuggled persons were subjected to inhumane or degrading treatment; d) the act was committed by three or more persons acting in association with one another or utilising international transport services or documents that are forged or altered or were in any way illegally obtained; e) the act was committed by persons possessing arms or explosives.
Crimes against individuals

Article 25-quinquies of the Decree lists certain offences against individuals set out in the Criminal Code in order to forcefully combat new forms of slavery such as prostitution, human trafficking, the exploitation of children and forced begging, which are all activities strongly associated with the spread of organised crime and new criminal organisations.

Lastly, it should be noted that Article 25-quater 1 provides for the administrative liability of the Entity for the crime against the individual referred to in Article 583-bis of the Criminal Code (female genital mutilation practices).

The risk of the entity being liable for the above-mentioned crimes can only be deemed to be significant in the event that a Bank representative or employee acts in conspiracy with the material author of the offence. The type of conspiracy where risk is greatest is linked to financing by the Bank of organisations or of persons that commit any of the above-mentioned offences.

7.5.2 Sensitive company activities

The risk of the commission of crimes with the purpose of terrorism or subversion of the democratic order, organised crime, transnational crimes and crimes against the individual mainly concerns, for banking operations, the establishment of relations with customers, the transfer of funds, “teller” transactions and, in particular, the credit granting process, an activity which, to ensure prevention of the offences in question, must be based on the fundamental principle of appropriate knowledge of the customers. This principle represents one of the key requirements established by Legislative Decree no. 231/2007 concerning prevention of the use of the financial system for the purpose of money laundering and of financing terrorism.

The activities identified above are those where the risk of money laundering offences is also higher. Consequently, the control and conduct principles set out in the protocol concerning the financial fight against terrorism and money laundering are considered to be appropriate also for the purpose of preventing the above-mentioned offences.
Furthermore, with regard to the offence of inducement not to make or to make false statements to judicial authorities, the company activity considered to be most sensitive in this respect is the management of disputes and their settlement.

Accordingly, for this offence reference is made to the protocols contained respectively in Chapter 7.2.2.6 on the “Management of disputes and out-of-court settlements”, and in Chapter 7.6.2.1, on the “Financial fight against terrorism and money laundering”.
7.6 Sensitive area concerning receipt of stolen goods, money laundering and use of money, goods or benefits of unlawful origin.

7.6.1 Types of offences

Introduction
Legislative Decree no. 231 of 21.11.2007, (hereinafter, the anti-Money Laundering Decree) and Legislative Decree no. 109 of 22.6.2007, which transposed Community law (Directive 2005/60/EC, “third Anti-Money Laundering Directive”) have comprehensively reorganised the legislation on the prevention of the use of the financial system for the purpose of money laundering and on the fight against the financing of terrorism.

Article 25-octies of Legislative Decree no. 231/2001, introduced by the anti-money laundering Decree, extended the Entity’s liability to cover the receipt of stolen goods, money laundering and unlawful use, regardless of whether these acts are committed for terrorist purposes or for subversion of the democratic order (covered by Chapter 7.5) and also where they do not have the transnational characteristics provided for in the preceding provisions\(^1\).

The aim of reinforcing legislation on the administrative liability of Entities is that of preventing and combating more effectively the phenomenon of the introduction into lawful economic circuits of money, goods or other assets which are the proceeds of crime, as this hinders the activities of the justice system in detecting offences and prosecuting offenders, and in general damages the economic order, market integrity and free competition, by reason of the unfair competitive advantage enjoyed by those operators who have at their disposal financial resources of unlawful origin.

On a different plane, albeit still for the purpose of combating money laundering and of the financing of terrorism, but from another perspective, the anti-Money Laundering Decree establishes specific requirements for banks and financial intermediaries in general (appropriate checks on customers; recording and storage of transaction documents; reporting of any suspicious transactions; notification of any infringements of the prohibitions concerning cash and bearer securities; reporting by the Entity’s control and Audit Bodies of any infringements identified). Infringement of said obligations is punishable of itself but does not give rise to the Entity’s administrative liability

\(^1\) It should be noted that pursuant to paragraphs 5 and 6 of Article 10 of Law no. 146/2006, repealed by the anti-money laundering Decree, money laundering and unlawful use of money were considered to be offences giving rise to the liability of Entities only if the transnational characteristics laid down in Article 3 of the same Law were met.
under Legislative Decree no. 231/2001, since such offences are not included in the list of the so-called predicate offences (i.e. the offences giving rise to the Entity’s administrative liability).

The anti-money laundering Decree, which introduced sanctions for infringement of such obligations, intended to establish preventive safeguards, irrespective of whether money laundering offences are materially committed, to ensure compliance in all cases with the fundamental principles of in-depth knowledge of customers and the traceability of transactions, to avoid any danger that financial intermediaries might be unwittingly involved in the receipt of stolen goods, money laundering or the illegal use of money.

It should be noted that if the bank operator fails to perform his obligations being fully aware of the illegal origin of the goods subject of the transactions, he could be indicted for such offences, and consequently the Bank might incur administrative liability under Legislative Decree no. 231/2001.

The constituent elements of the offences in question are briefly illustrated below.

Receipt of stolen goods (Article 648 of the Criminal Code)
This offence occurs when any person, for the purpose of obtaining a profit for himself or for others, purchases, receives or conceals money or goods deriving from any crime whatsoever, in whose commission he did not participate, or in any case concurs in their purchase, receipt or concealment. In order for this offence to occur, the perpetrator must act with malice, i.e. knowingly and with the intent of obtaining a profit for himself or others, by purchasing, receiving or concealing stolen goods.
Moreover, the offender must also be aware of the criminal origin of the money or the goods; the presence of this psychological condition can be signalled by serious and concurring circumstances: for instance the quality and the characteristics of the goods, the unusual economic and contractual terms and conditions of the transaction, the personal condition or employment of the holder of the goods – leading to the conclusion that the author of the act must have been certain of the illegal origin of the money or the goods.

Money laundering (Article 648-bis of the Criminal Code)
This offence occurs where a person, who did not aid and abet commission of the underlying crime, substitutes or transfers money, goods or other assets deriving from an intentional offence or carries out other transactions in respect of such money, goods or assets, so as to obstruct identification of their criminal origin.
The purpose of this provision is to punish those who – being aware of the criminal origin of the money, goods or other assets – perform the above-mentioned transactions, in such a way as to materially hinder discovery of the illegal origin of the goods in question.
For the offence to occur, the culprit needs not have acted for the purpose of obtaining some gain or of helping the perpetrators of the underlying crime to secure the proceeds of their crime. Money laundering consists of dynamic actions aimed at putting the goods into circulation, whereas their mere receipt or concealment could give rise to the offence of receipt of stolen goods. With regard to bank relationships, for example, the mere acceptance of a deposit could give rise to the replacement conduct which is typical of money laundering (replacement of cash with bank money, irrespective of the balance of the deposit).

Similarly to the offence of receipt of stolen goods, the offender's awareness of the illegal origin of the goods can be determined on the basis of any serious and univocal objective circumstance.

Use of money, goods or assets of illegal origin (Article 648-ter of the Criminal Code)

This offence occurs when any person uses money, goods or other proceeds in economic or financial activities, with the exclusion of cases in which the perpetrator was also complicit with the underlying crime and with the exception of the offences set out in Article 648 (Receipt of stolen goods) and Article 648-bis (Money laundering) of the Criminal Code.

Compared with the offence of money laundering, while the same subjective element of awareness of illegal origin of the goods applies, Article 648-ter restricts the scope of this offence to cases in which such proceeds of crime are employed in economic or financial activities. However, given the comprehensiveness of the definition of the money laundering offence, it is hard to imagine any use of goods of unlawful origin which would not fall under the scope of Article 648-bis of the Criminal Code.

Remarks applying to the three offences.

Material subject.

The material subject of these offences can consist of any asset having appreciable economic value and which may be exchanged, such as money, credit securities, means of payment, credit entitlements, precious metals/gems, tangible and intangible assets in general. These goods or assets must originate from the crime, i.e. they must be the product (the result or benefit obtained by the offender by committing the crime), the proceeds (monetary gain or economic benefit obtained from the offence) or the price (amount paid to induce, instigate, or lead someone to commit the offence). In addition to the crimes typically aimed at the creation of illegal capital, (e.g.: extortion in office, bribery, embezzlement, arms or drug trafficking, usury, fraud against EU funds, etc.) and tax offences could also give rise to proceeds which are then laundered.

Conduct and subjective element.

It should be noted that under the Italian legal system the offence of receipt of stolen goods, money laundering or use of the proceeds of crime does not exist if the conduct corresponding to the three offences is carried out by the same person who committed the offence which generated the proceeds (a case known as “self-laundering”), as in this case the above activities are considered to be a “normal” development of the original crime, to reap the benefits of the crime or secure its results; the offence of money laundering/receipt of stolen goods/illegal use can only be prosecuted where it is committed by a third party not involved in the original crime and who cooperates with the author of such original crime. However, in this instance the third party would not be guilty of money laundering, but of conspiracy in the crime which originated the goods if he promised to assist in the laundering of the proceeds of the crime before it was committed, thereby strengthening the criminal intent of the original offender.

With specific regard to banking and financial activity, for the purpose identifying the types of transactions at risk for money laundering, it should be noted that the anti-Money Laundering Decree defines as “transaction” the transmission or processing of means of payment”. Article 2 of the same Decree provides a very extensive list of conduct which can qualify as money laundering for the sole purposes of the Decree, i.e. in essence, for the purpose of identifying those cases giving rise to an obligation to report any suspicious transactions. Such cases also include self-laundering which, as stated, under Italian criminal law does not constitute an offence. Moreover, some of the conducts included in the above-mentioned list, besides being relevant for the purposes of the anti-Money Laundering Decree, concern acts which might give rise to aiding and abetting the offences in question, and therefore, if such acts are committed by the entity’s employees or managers, they might also give rise to the entity’s administrative liability. Finally, the above-mentioned list also includes atypical conduct relating to other offences, such as aiding and abetting an offender (Article 378 of the Criminal Code) which, where it is of a transnational nature (on this point see Chapter 7.5) can constitute a predicate offence for the administrative liability of Entities.

As to the subject element, as already stated, the offences in question must be marked by awareness of the fact that the goods in question are the proceeds of crime. According to a particularly strict interpretation, the offence may also occur if the person dealt with the goods while harbouring suspicions as to their illegal origin, accepting such risk (“dolus eventualis” or indirect intention). With reference to banking operations, it should be noted that the presence of anomaly indicators or anomalous conducts as set out in the Bank of Italy’s measures and in the patterns issued by UIF (Unità di Informazione Finanziaria - Finance Intelligence Unit) in specific concrete situations might, if the particularly strict interpretation mentioned above is adopted, be considered as a serious and univocal objective circumstance which should give rise to doubts as to the illegal origin of the goods.
7.6.2 Sensitive company activities

The risk of the commission of money laundering offences in a banking environment appears indeed more pronounced, being a typical risk of the banking and financial circuit, basically with reference to relationships with customers; in particular, it concerns:
- the establishment and management of ongoing relations with customers\(^1\);
- the transfer of funds;
- bank teller operations.

The risk of such offences is less relevant with regard to those bank operations typical of a “company”, i.e. in those areas where the bank, apart from its core activities, carries out instrumental transactions, makes equity investments or carries out operations on its own capital. These areas are far less vulnerable thanks to the widespread presence of safeguards and procedures already set out in sector legislation.
Prevention activity is based on in-depth knowledge of customers and counterparties and on compliance with the legal requirements relating to the fight against money laundering and the financing of terrorism.

We reproduce below the protocol laying down the control principles and rules of conduct applicable to the management of the risks relating to the financial fight against terrorism and money laundering. This protocol is completed by the detailed corporate regulations governing operations. It should also be noted that the protocols regulating other sensitive activities – such as the Management of disputes and of out-of-court settlements (Chapter 7.2.2.6), the Management of the procedures for the procurement of goods and services and for the appointment of professional consultants (Chapter 7.2.2.8); the Management of gifts, entertainment expenses, donations to charities and sponsorships (Chapter 7.2.2.9); the Management of real-estate assets and movable property having artistic value (Chapter 7.2.2.11) and the Management of valuables (Chapter 7.3.2.1) – also include certain control and conduct principles based on the same criterion of thorough assessment of suppliers, consultants and contractual counterparties in general, and which can also help prevent the offences addressed in this section.

\(^1\) Under Article 1, paragraph 1 letter s) of Legislative Decree no. 231/2007, ongoing relationships with customers mean any open-ended relationship falling under the exercise of the Bank’s institutional activities, giving rise to a number of transactions of payment, withdrawal or transfer of means of payment and which does not consist of one transaction only.
7.6.2.1. Financial fight against terrorism and money laundering

Introduction

The purpose of this protocol is to define the roles, operational responsibilities and control and conduct principles relating to the financial fight against terrorism and money laundering. The current corporate provisions are also incorporated by reference, in particular the “Guidelines for combating money laundering and the financing of terrorism and for managing embargoes”, the “Rules on the subject of Anti-money laundering and Combating the Financing of Terrorism” and the “Rules for managing Embargoes”.

This protocol applies to all the Bank Structures involved in the sensitive activities identified above and in the control of the risks linked to anti-money laundering legislation.

The contents of this protocol are aimed at ensuring that the Bank complies with current legislation and the principles of transparency, correctness, objectivity, traceability and confidentiality in performance of the activity in question.

Process description

For the purposes of combating the financing of terrorism and money laundering, the following operational areas are pertinent:

- identifying and knowing the customers and the persons on behalf of whom they operate, assessing their risk profile, i.e. the likelihood of exposure to phenomena of money laundering activities financing terrorism by means of a specific profiling procedure\(^1\). Risk assessment is based on knowledge of the customers and takes into account, in particular, objective aspects (which type of activity the customers carry out, which transactions they perform and which instruments they use\(^2\)) and subjective aspects (persons subject to strengthened control requirements; persons established in Countries/areas having privileged tax or anti-money laundering regimes such as those identified by the FATF as being “non-cooperative”, etc.). Particular attention must be paid to detecting any possible involvement in transactions or in relationships with persons (both natural and legal persons) that are included in public lists published both at national and international level (UN, EU,

\(^1\) Carried out in accordance with the provisions of Article 20 of Legislative Decree no. 231/2007.

\(^2\) For instance, the interposition of third parties, the use of corporate, associative or trust instruments likely to limit transparency with regard to the ownership and management structure; use of cash or bearer instruments.
OFAC lists and MEF (Ministry of Economics and Finance), ABI-UIF lists, hereinafter collectively referred to as “the Black Lists”;

- opening of new ongoing relationships and updating/review of the information on existing customers, to ensure compliance with the principle of the “know your customer” rule;
- granting and management of credit lines to customers (credit process);
- monitoring of operations and ongoing assessment of the risk of money laundering or financing of terrorism, based on specific timelines and procedures defined according to risk profile levels;
- assessment of the transactions ordered by customers with persons/Countries/goods which are subject to financial restrictions (freezing of assets and resources, prohibition of financial transactions, restrictions on export credit or investment) and/or commercial restrictions (general or specific trade sanctions, bans on imports and exports - for example an arms embargo);
- discharge of regulatory obligations concerning recording of ongoing relationships and of transactions ordered by the customers and storage of associated information;
- external reporting to the Supervisory Authorities\(^1\) and internal reporting for the purpose of preparing the external reports.

The operating procedures for management of the above mentioned processes are governed by the internal rules, which are developed and updated by the competent Structures. Such internal rules form an integral and substantive part of this protocol.

Control principles

The control system for monitoring the processes described above is based on the following elements:

- Clearly defined responsibilities:
  - the internal set of rules identifies the individuals and Structures responsible for initiating/managing/controlling the processes described above;

\(^1\) Such reports include:
- submitting to the Financial Information Unit (UIF) reports on suspicious transactions pursuant to Articles 41 and 42 of Legislative Decree no. 231/2007;
- submitting to the UIF reports on the blockage or freezing of funds pursuant to Legislative Decree no. 109/2007;
- submitting to the Ministry of the Economy and Finance reports on infringements of the limits to the use of cash and bearers’ securities pursuant to Article 51 of Legislative Decree no. 231/2007;
- submitting to the Supervisory Authorities and the Ministry of the Economy and Finance the reports provided for by Article 52 of Legislative Decree no. 231/2007.
Segregation of duties:

- as to ongoing relationships relating to the disbursement of credit, the credit application assessment procedure shall be performed by different individuals from those empowered to approve granting of the financing, excluding those exceptions expressly set out in the internal rules applicable from time to time;
- in the situations defined by law and by the internal rules where strengthened obligations to carry out thorough customer assessment apply, the opening of new relationships, maintaining of existing relationships and the performance of transactions shall be subject to issue of authorisation by a different Structure from the operational one;
- with regard to the monitoring of operations in order to identify potentially suspicious transactions, segregation of duties shall be organised as follows:
  - the operators of Local Branches or other operational Structures shall monitor the transactions falling under their remit, and shall report any suspicious transactions to their respective Structure Manager for further assessment and/or reporting;
  - the operational Structure Manager, based on the information available to him, or on reports received from his collaborators, from Managers of other non-operational Structures or from the Gianos procedure (“unexpected” transactions) shall, if the transaction is found to be suspicious, report it to the Manager in charge of reporting on suspicious transactions;
  - such Manager shall analyse the report so received and shall autonomously carry out the necessary investigations on the suspicious transaction, deciding whether or not the reports should be forwarded to the competent Authority.

Control activities: the control system for monitoring the processes described above is based on the following elements:

- as part of comprehensive customer profiling, at the time of entering into a contractual relationship, the Head of each operational Structure shall verify the correctness and completeness of customer identification details, and shall check the information acquired on the customer’s economic activity; this information must be periodically updated, with reference to the economic reasons for requested or executed transactions;
- at the time of recording the customers’ identification details and then on a periodical basis, their names shall be checked against the updated specific “Black Lists” to ensure they do not appear thereon;
- as part of the procedures for granting and managing credit lines to customers, the consistency between the requested financing and the customer’s economic-financial profile shall be checked, in order to assess any (potential) exposure to money laundering or terrorism financing phenomena;
medium and long-term monitoring by the competent operational Structures to provide cross-checks between the customer’s subjective profile, the type of transaction, the frequency and manner of execution, the reference geographical area (with particular regard to operations from/to Countries at risk) as well as the risk level assigned to the product subject of the transaction, the funds used, the timeframe of the investment, the conduct adopted by the customer at the time of executing the transaction (if the transaction is performed in the customer’s presence);

- monitoring and control by the Structures tasked with internal controls of the precise performance of the operational Structures’ activities concerning:
  - acquiring the information necessary to identify and profile customers;
  - assessing the transactions highlighted by the Gianos procedure (or by other IT procedures in use);
  - detecting and assessing any other indicators of abnormality which might occur in actual operations;
  - detecting any infringements of the regulatory limits on the use of cash and bearer securities;
  - recording relationships and transactions in the Financial Transaction Database (AUI - Archivio Unico Informatico) and filing documents and information;

- all ongoing contractual relationships and transactions involving the transmission of means of payment must be processed with methods enabling their procedural recording in the Financial Transaction Database with correct and complete data, also using automated data quality controls. To this end, any transactions or relationships that are listed as “suspended” must be “supplemented” and “regularised” within the time limits required by the procedures and in any case within the time limits set out in applicable laws or regulations;

- the correct performance of all requirements shall also be monitored in respect of the activities of foreign branches;

- computer control systems are adopted to prevent operations from concerning persons/Countries/goods which are subject to financial restrictions (freezing of assets and resources, prohibition of financial transactions, restrictions on export credit or investment) and/or commercial restrictions (general or specific trade sanctions, bans on imports and exports - for example an arms embargo).

- Process traceability including both the electronic and the paper trail:
  - in order to allow reconstruction of responsibilities and of the reasons for the choices made, the Structure from time to time concerned shall be responsible for filing and storing, also in telematic or electronic format, all the documentation it produces relating to performance of the requirements associated with the process described; in particular:
the Branch manager or the customer relationship manager shall keep in confidential and orderly files all the documentation pertaining to customer identification and profiling;

- all the documentation pertaining to operations and to the periodic checks carried out on customers' accounts shall be systematically filed by the competent operational Structures;

- full records shall be kept of the decisions and of any stated underlying reasons for altering a customer profile and for a consequent decision on whether or not to report a transaction as suspicious.

- Information shall be kept confidential, in particular that concerning identification of real account holders, customer profiling and the processes for monitoring transactions and reporting suspicious transactions, by adopting appropriate IT and physical measures ensuring such confidentiality.

- Training: activities specifically focused on continuous training of employees and collaborators in identifying the risk profiles associated with the legislation on anti-money laundering and combating terrorism financing shall be provided on a regular basis.

Rules of conduct

The Bank Structures which are howsoever involved in the financial fight against money laundering and financing of terrorism shall comply with the procedures set out in this protocol, the applicable provisions of law, the internal rules and any provisions of the Group's Code of Ethics and Internal Code of Conduct.

In particular the competent Structures have an obligation to:

- ensure the development and implementation of the applications used in the financial fight against terrorism and money laundering and in any case in all the activities based on “appropriate knowledge of customers”;

- verify and ensure the dissemination among the Bank's structures of the restrictive measures – containing operational limits in specific areas – issued by EU, OFAC - and of the updated “Black Lists”, together with the adoption of automatic detection procedures;

- ensure that customers operate in compliance with the restrictions and the authorizations provided for by the embargo measures or by the rules governing the export of particular types of goods and/or materials (eg. dual-use goods, hazardous chemical substances);

- establish detailed rules of conduct in the internal regulations/operating rules, supplementing and expanding on the external legislation and the principles laid down in this protocol;
where the customer or transaction assessment involves more than one operational Structure or Group company, the Structures or companies concerned shall co-operate with each other and, where allowed by current legislation, shall exchange information for the purpose of acquiring comprehensive and appropriate knowledge of the customer and of the typical transactions he engages in;

in relations with foreign correspondent banks, documentation shall be obtained whereby such correspondent banks declare they have fulfilled anti-money laundering obligations and/or the obligations set out in the laws of other Countries (in particular the United States of America);

ongoing and systematic training and updating shall be delivered to staff on anti-money laundering legislation and embargoes and on the aims pursued by such provisions;

the reference legislation and all updates thereof shall be disseminated to all employees, regardless of their actual duties.

Furthermore, all bank employees and collaborators (including Financial Advisors), acting in compliance with company procedures must:

- at the time of activating ongoing contractual relationships or executing transactions which exceed the legal threshold, even where they are split into several different transactions:
  - identify the customer and verify whether his name appears on the latest edition of the "Black Lists";
  - verify the identity of actual account holders, obtain information on the purpose and nature of the relationship or transaction and, where the customer is a company or an Entity, verify that the person requesting the transaction holds due authority to sign, and check the customer’s ownership and control structure;
  - carry out customer profiling;

- regularly update all data concerning ongoing relationships to allow continuing assessment of the customer’s economic and financial profile;

- perform the customer verification and profiling process where, regardless of any applicable amount threshold or exemption, suspicions of money laundering or of the financing of terrorism are harboured, or doubts arise as to the truthfulness or adequacy of already acquired identification details;

- keep information concerning the anti-money laundering risk level assigned to the customer and the relevant score calculated by the procedure strictly confidential; such information will not be disclosed to customers under any circumstance; actively participate in the processes of detecting and reporting suspicious transactions;

- consider whether to initiate a reporting process where abnormal indicators are detected, even if such abnormalities were not signalled by IT procedures, or where it is impossible to comply with the appropriate verification requirement;
• verify whether the customer’s name appears on the latest version of the “Black Lists” and block or, in any case, refrain from executing transactions concerning persons/Countries/goods subject to financial restrictions (freezing of assets and resources, prohibition of financial transactions, restrictions on export credit or investment) and/or commercial restrictions (general or specific trade sanctions, bans on imports and exports - for example an arms embargo) or which are howsoever suspected of having connections with money laundering or the financing of terrorism.

• report any infringements of the regulatory limits on the use of cash and bearer securities detected in customer transactions;

• strictly comply with the internal procedures on the recording relationships and transactions in the financial transaction database (AUI) and on the filing of documentation.

The Bank employees, whether they operate from the central Structures or the local branches, in charge of the assessment and authorization activities set forth by the anti-money laundering processes, must exert their discretionality according to professionality and reasonableness. In the event of personal or corporate conflicts of interest, even if potential, they must:

• Immediately report to their manager about the conflict of interest detailing its nature, terms, origin and relevance;

• Refrain from assessment/authorization activities, delegating decisions to their manager or to the appropriate Structure as defined by the internal regulations. By way of example, conflict of interest may occur if personal interests interfere (or seem to interfere) with the Company’s or the Group’s, thus hindering the effective and impartial performance of one’s activities, or if inappropriate personal benefits are pursued based on the position held within the Company or the Group.

Employees are furthermore forbidden to inform, even unintentionally, third parties (including their family members, close relations or their family’s close relations) about the result of any assessment/authorization activity in any circumstance not provided by the law for reasons other than those pertaining to office activity.

In any case, it is forbidden to engage/collaborate in or induce conduct which may belong to one of the types of offence covered by Legislative Decree no. 231/2001; more specifically, purely by way of example and without limitation it is forbidden to:

• set up ongoing relationships, or maintain existing ones, and execute transactions when it is impossible to fulfil the obligation of appropriately checking the customer's details, for instance when the customer refuses to provide requested information;
• execute transactions which are suspected of being linked to money laundering or terrorism financing schemes;

• receive or conceal money or assets obtained through any criminal act, or carry out any activity which may facilitate the purchasing, receipt or concealment of such proceeds of crime;

• replace or transfer money, goods or other assets originating from offences, or execute any other transactions in respect of such assets which might obstruct identification of their criminal origin;

• take part in one of the acts listed in the above bullet points, conspire with others to commit them, attempt to commit them, aid and abet, instigate or advise anyone to commit them or assist in their execution;

• make available to customers who belong to or are howsoever close to criminal organisations any services, financial resources or other economic means which may be instrumental to the pursuit of illegal activities.

The Heads of the Structures concerned have an obligation to put in place all methods necessary to ensure the effectiveness and the concrete implementation of the control and conduct principles described in this protocol.
7.7 Sensitive area concerning crimes and administrative offences relating to market abuse

Introduction
Law no. 62/2005 introduced in Articles 184 and 185 of Legislative Decree no. 58/1998 (Consolidated Law on Financial Intermediation, hereinafter the “Consolidated Law on Finance”), the offences of “insider trading” and of “market manipulation”, as well as two corresponding types of administrative offence, set out in Articles 187-bis and 187-ter of the Consolidated Law on Finance.

The entity’s administrative liability in respect of the criminal offences set out in Articles 184 and 185 of the Consolidated Law on Finance is established by Article 25-sexies of Legislative Decree no. 231/2001. It should also be noted that the corporate offences which may entail the liability of Entities also include the offence of market rigging (see above, paragraph 7.4.1) which also falls under the scope of market abuse in the broad sense, referred, in particular, to unlisted financial instruments or those for which no application for admission to trading in a regulated market has been submitted.

On the other hand, in the administrative breaches referred to in Articles 187-bis and 187-ter, the Entity’s liability arises from the provisions of Article 187-quinquies of the Consolidated Law on Finance, which refers to the same principles, conditions and exemptions set out in Legislative Decree no. 231/2001, yet places on the Entity the burden of proving that the perpetrator of the offence acted solely in his own or a third party’s interest.

The above-mentioned rules are aimed at ensuring the integrity, transparency, correctness and efficiency of the financial markets, in accordance with the principle that all investors should operate on a level playing field with regard to access to information, knowledge of the pricing mechanism and knowledge of the source of publicly available information.

It should be noticed that under Article 182 of the Consolidated Law on Finance, the offences punishable according to Italian law even if committed abroad (e.g. in a foreign Branch of the Bank), where these offences involve financial instruments admitted to trading, or for which admission to trading has been requested, on an Italian regulated market or on a regulated market of other European Union Member States, or financial instruments admitted to trading on an Italian multilateral trading facility, for which admission has been requested or authorised by the issuer. Where the offence was committed in Italy, the same conduct is sanctioned if it concerns financial instruments admitted to trading on an Italian regulated market or on a regulated market of another European Union Member State, or for which such admission to trading has been requested, or where it concerns financial instruments admitted to trading on an Italian multilateral trading facility. The highest risks of offences being committed can occur in the following scenarios: simulated transactions, other devices or insider trading on behalf of the Bank or in favour of Bank customers where the Bank itself is also set to gain from such acts, and dissemination of false or misleading news, especially concerning transactions carried out in the market before or after such dissemination.

Where the transactions requested by the customers give rise to suspicions that one of the offences of “Insider trading” or “market manipulation” might occur, under Article 187-nonies of the Consolidated Law on Finance the reporting obligation rests only with the intermediary; however, the Bank might also in theory become involved in the offence committed by the customer having regard to the concrete manner of performance of the Bank's activity.

The above-mentioned offences are described in detail below.

Insider trading (Article 184 of the Consolidated Law on Finance)
This criminal offence occurs when a person buys, sells, or carries out other transactions for his own account or for the account of a third party, on financial instruments using inside information he possesses by virtue of his membership of the administrative, management or supervisory bodies of the issuer or (ii) his holding in the capital of an issuer or (iii) the exercise of his employment, profession, duties, including public duties, or position. This offence can also be committed by those who have obtained inside information as a consequence of preparing or committing an offence (e.g. breaking into a computer system and extracting inside information).

This offence also occurs when such person discloses such information to others outside the normal exercise of his employment, profession, duties or position or when he recommends or induces others, on the basis of such information, to carry out certain of the transactions referred to above.

Under Article 181 of the Consolidated Law on Finance, inside information means “information of a precise nature which has not been made public, relating directly or indirectly to one or more issuers of financial instruments or one or more financial instruments and which, if it were made public, would be likely to have a significant effect on the prices of those financial instruments”.

Many activities which are part of normal banking operations are at risk for this offence, and might expose the Bank to administrative liability where the offence is committed solely or also in the Bank's interest, (for example, in proprietary trading activity, where the person ordering or executing the transaction takes advantage of inside information on a given issuer which the Bank obtained in performance of its activity, since it holds several different relationships with the issuer; another example is front running¹).

Market manipulation (Article 185 of the Consolidated Law on Finance)

This criminal offence occurs when any person disseminates false information or sets up sham transactions or employs other devices likely to produce a significant alteration in the price of the financial instruments listed in Article 182 of the Consolidated Law referred to in the introduction.

Administrative sanctions: insider trading and market manipulation (Article 187-bis and Article 187-ter Consolidated Law on Finance)

As stated above, specific administrative sanctions have been introduced to punish the same material acts which give rise to both types of criminal offence (Articles 184 and 185 of the Consolidated Law on Finance): on this point, it should be noted that whereas a criminal offence presupposes intentional wrongdoing, an administrative offence can also be unintentional.

More specifically, it should be noted that any conduct giving rise to the administrative breach of market manipulation has a broader scope than the types of criminal offence of the same name, given that the criminal offence implies the dissemination of false information or the setting up of sham transactions or other devices which are likely in concrete terms to produce a significant alteration in the price of financial instruments, whereas the administrative breach covers various types of conduct including for instance: dissemination, through the media, including the internet or any other medium, of information, rumours or news which contain or are likely to contain false or misleading indications on the offer, demand for or price of financial instruments or to fix the price of such instruments in an anomalous or artificial manner or which use devices or any other type of deception or guile; other devices likely to provide false or misleading indication on the offer, demand for or price of financial instruments.

7.7.2 Sensitive company activities

The sensitive activities identified by Model which involve the highest risks of crimes and administrative offences relating to market abuse are the following:

¹ Front running means exploiting inside information on still to be executed customer orders for the benefit of the intermediary or for the benefit of another customer while also pursuing the intermediary’s interest or benefit.
Management and disclosure of information and of external communications for the purposes of prevention of criminal and administrative offences in the area of market abuse;

Management of market transactions to prevent administrative and criminal offences linked to market abuse.

We reproduce below, for each of the above-mentioned sensitive activities, the protocols laying down the control principles and rules of conduct applicable to these activities, as well as the detailed corporate regulations governing such activities.
7.7.2.1. Management and disclosure of information and external communications for the purposes of prevention of criminal and administrative offences in the area of market abuse

Introduction

This protocol applies to all members of the Bank’s Corporate governance bodies and to all the Bank’s employees with access to inside information, in the meaning provided by current legislation and regulations, or who handle the Bank’s communications to the market and, in general, all external communications, including the publication of studies and recommendations and any dissemination of news, data or information in the framework of business relations, of marketing or promotional activities, relations with the media, as well as compulsory “price sensitive” communications.

The process of managing and handling inside information could present potential opportunities for the commission of the criminal offence of insider trading or of the corresponding administrative breach, set out respectively in Articles 184 and 187-bis of the Consolidated Law on Finance.

Sound management of this process also goes to prevent the offences of market rigging and market manipulation and their corresponding administrative breach - respectively set out in Article 2637 of the Civil Code and in Articles 185 and 187-ter of the Consolidated Law on Finance – with regard to “information manipulation”, ensuring adequate control of the potential risk of “dissemination of false or misleading information, rumours or news”.

As concerns prevention of “operational manipulation” reference is made to the protocol set out in Chapter. 7.7.2.2, on “Management of market transactions to prevent the criminal offences and administrative infringements relating to market abuse”.

The purpose of the rules set out in this document, in compliance with the requirements of current legislation, is to ensure that:

- information is circulated within the company without affecting its privileged or confidential status and all safeguards are adopted to prevent disclosure of such information to unauthorised persons and to ensure that disclosure of inside information to the market is effected in a timely and complete manner and in any case in such a way as to avoid inequalities among the public in access to information;

- inside information is not disclosed, even unintentionally, to third persons for reasons not related to the office activity, prescribing to this purpose a particularly cautious conduct to employees and to the members of the Corporate governance bodies and furthermore, for employees, the duty to report to the Bank’s competent Structures those situations that might involve the risk of an unauthorized disclosure of such information;
the Corporate governance body members, the employees and the collaborators do not misuse inside information available to them by virtue of their position and/or their functions within the bank for the purpose of operating in financial instruments in the interest and on behalf of the Bank and/or their own;

- the Bank’s communications to the market and, in general, to external parties are made by clearly identified and duly empowered persons, to prevent the disclosure of false or misleading information or news concerning either the Bank or third companies.

This protocol is aimed at ensuring that the Bank complies with current legislation and the principles of transparency, correctness, objectivity and traceability in the performance of the activity in question.

Process description

The process of managing and disclosing the inside information of which the Bank’s structures become aware is organised in accordance with the specific operational responsibilities assigned under the Bank’s role and mission allocation system.

The criteria used for identifying inside information and operating procedures for managing said information are governed by the internal rules developed and updated by the competent Structures which form an integral and substantial part of this protocol.

By reason of their operational duties and functions within corporate operations, the Bank’s Structures may handle inside information concerning:

- the Bank, its subsidiaries and the financial instruments issued;
- the customer companies and the financial instruments they issue (e.g. when providing corporate finance services to listed customer companies);
- the information provided by a customer and/or concerning customer orders still to be executed, of a precise nature which has not been made public, relating directly or indirectly to one or more issuers of financial instruments or one or more financial instruments and which, if it were made public, would be likely to have a significant effect on the prices of those financial instruments.

The inside information can concern an internal decision of the Bank (for example strategic initiatives, agreements and extraordinary transactions) or be obtained with regards to objective events or circumstances having an impact on the business activity and/or on the performance of the financial instruments it has issued (for example period financial statements, information on the management) or be acquired in the course of activities performed in the name or on behalf of third-party companies or from activities performed on financial markets on one’s own or third persons’ behalf.

In order to ensure the traceability of access to inside information, pursuant to Article 115-bis of the Consolidated Law on Finance, a Register of Intesa Sanpaolo S.p.A. of persons having access to inside information has been created – covering access to both inside information concerning the Bank, and information concerning third party issuers in whose name or on whose behalf Intesa Sanpaolo S.p.A. operates; a similar register has also been created for each of the Group Companies to which the relevant legislation applies; for other inside or confidential information falling outside the scope of art. 115-bis of the Consolidated Law on Finance and of the relevant implementation rules, the Bank has created a supplementary system for recording sensitive situations within its internal regulations.

In order to ensure that the disclosure to the market of information which is price sensitive for the Group, i.e. information on events which take place within the scope of the activities of the Parent Company and/or of its Subsidiaries and which have a substantial impact on the Group’s profit and loss performance and asset situation, takes place in observance of the law, the Bank has created an internal set of rules covering the following phases:

- identifying the inside information;
- preparing and approving the communication to be made to the market;
- issuing of a statement by the Manager responsible for preparing a company's financial reports, pursuant to Article 154-bis of the Consolidated Law on Finance, if the communications concern directly the Bank’s and the Group’s economic and financial reporting information;
- dissemination of the information.

With regard to further obligations of correctness and transparency in the disclosure of news, data and information, even concerning third party issuers, the Bank in order to prevent any manipulation of information has adopted internal rules governing the process of disclosing studies and recommendations which comprises the following phases:

- preparing the recommendations;
- monitoring compliance with the adopted standard;
- disclosing the recommendations.
Control principles

The control system for monitoring the processes described above is based on the following elements:

- creation of the Register of persons having access to inside information pursuant to Article 115-bis of the Consolidated Law on Finance: the internal set of rules outlines the process for making entries in and updating the Registers, and the corporate functions which are from time to time responsible for their keeping. Such corporate functions, each acting within the scope of its competence, are required to fulfil disclosure obligations towards the persons entered in the Register and shall comply with any request for access to the Register made by the competent Authorities;
- implementation of best practice logical and physical security systems and other relevant procedures so as to ensure sound management of the information;
- adoption of functional and logistic segregation measures (known as the “Chinese Wall” or Information Barriers) between the organisational structures which provide corporate finance services and activities to “Corporate-side” customers and those providing services and investment activities or a number of additional services to investors or financial markets (“Market side”) or to the so-called Research (i.e. the Bank’s Structures in charge of preparing studies and researches on investments), to ensure that:
  - no inside or confidential information held by the Corporate side is disclosed to Market side structures;
  - Market-side structures do not report, hierarchically, to the Corporate side structures and cannot be apprised of the other side’s transactions or activities, thus ensuring that the two sides operate independently and without influencing each other:
  - the structures tasked with preparing studies and researches are kept separate from both Corporate-side and Market-side structures;
- Watch list and Restricted list procedures are put in place, to monitor “sensitive” situations involving the risk of conflicts of interest between the Bank and its key customers or the market in general or among customers (Watch List), or to manage and monitor any exchanges of inside or confidential information also between mutually segregated Structures and impose any additional specific operational restrictions as necessary (Restricted List);
- provision of the obligation incumbent on the employees of the business Structures to provide immediate notification to their manager and to the Compliance department of the occurrence, with regards to a specific transaction that may present the requirements of a sensitive situation falling within the scope of situations of conflict of interest’s Watch List (even if only potential), on their own behalf or on that of third parties, especially arising from kinship or spouse relations or from one's own economic or asset interests or those of one's own relative: this without prejudice to the general obligation of abstention provided for by Art. 3 of the Group’s Code of Ethics;

- provision of rules identifying the fulfilments and limitations to which the members of the corporate bodies, employees and collaborators are subject when they wish to carry out investment transactions on financial instruments on a personal basis: the said rules provide, together with the general prohibitions applicable to all the aforesaid subjects, specific prohibitions and restrictions for employees and collaborators operating in organisational Structures / Units where there is a greater amount of inside information, as well as reporting, registration and monitoring obligations of the personal transactions permitted;

- procedural and organisational measures are implemented to prevent market abuse offences;

- compliance clearing activities are carried out by the competent Bank Structures, on the information concerning products distributed by the Bank and advertising messages;

- Dedicated Structures are put in place for supervising communication and external relations activities.

All such measures are defined and regulated in greater detail in the internal policies and regulations in force from time to time which form an integral and substantial part of this protocol.

The process of disclosing inside information to the market includes the following steps:

- in the case of “price-sensitive” events which are subject to the decision of the Management Board and/or the Supervisory Board, all related communications to the market must be approved by the Board that has adopted the decision;

- in all other cases of events which might give rise to disclosure obligations, the Managing Director, supported by the competent Investor Relations function, shall assess the "price sensitivity of the information to be disclosed. The text of the press release shall be approved by the Managing Director;

- if the communications concern directly the Bank's and the Group’s economic and financial reporting information, the Manager responsible for preparing a company's financial reports shall issue the attestation provided for by Article 154-bis of the Consolidated Law on Finance;

- the Chairman of the Management Board shall authorise release to the market of the communiqués approved by the Management Board. the Chairman of the Supervisory Board shall authorise release to the market of the communiqués approved by the Supervisory Board. The Managing Directors inform – as to their respective competences - the Chairman of the Management Board and the Chairman of the Supervisory Board of the communiqués submitted to his approval;

- if the price-sensitive information concerns events that occur within the scope of the Subsidiary Companies’ activities, the Board of Directors and/or the General Management of each Subsidiary shall be responsible for identifying and reporting any circumstances and events that might have a bearing on such information and shall promptly contact the Parent Company’s Investor Relations and External Relations functions to ensure proper discharge of associated market disclosure requirements;

- the Investor Relations function shall prepare press releases relating to information which is price sensitive for the Group, i.e. which refers to events occurring within the sphere of operations of the Parent Company and/or of the Subsidiary Companies having a substantial impact on the Group’s profit and loss and balance sheet performance, which shall be submitted – after authorisation by the competent corporate bodies and via the External Relations function – to the competent Supervisory Authorities, via the N.I.S., and to the media;

- if the information is price-sensitive for the Subsidiary Companies alone, i.e. it concerns events occurring within the sphere of activity of the Subsidiary Companies that are issuers of the financial instruments referred to in Article 182 of the Consolidated Law on Finance or which are widely distributed among the public, and such information has a substantial impact on such Subsidiaries’ profit and loss and balance sheet performance, but not on overall Group performance, the related press releases shall be prepared by such Subsidiary Companies and submitted by them – after obtaining the authorisation of the Parent Company’s Investor Relations and External Relations functions - to the competent Supervisory Authorities and to the media;

- the Investor Relations function is responsible for managing relations with financial analysts and institutional investors for the purposes of disclosure of significant information, ensuring its uniformity and consistency, also where such information is disclosed via the internet;

- relations with rating agencies concerning the disclosure of significant information shall be managed by a dedicated corporate function.
Rules of conduct

The Corporate Structures, as well as each employee or collaborator, which are howsoever involved in management and disclosure of privileged information shall comply with the procedures set out in this protocol, the applicable provisions of law, the internal rules and any provisions of the Group's Code of Ethics and Internal Code of Conduct.

Specifically:

- all the information and documents acquired in the course of discharging one's duties, whether they concern the Bank and its financial instruments or third-party Companies having business relations with the Bank and their financial instruments shall be kept confidential; all such information or documents shall be used exclusively in discharge of work-associated duties;

- no staff member may carry out transactions on financial instruments of the Bank, Group Companies or third-party Companies having business relations with the Bank, where he has access to inside information on the issuer or the security, and where he is aware of the privileged nature of such information or would have been aware of it by exercising ordinary due diligence. This prohibition applies to any type of transaction in financial instruments (for example: shares, bonds, warrants, covered warrants, options, futures);

- no staff member may perform transactions in advance of customer transactions on the same instruments, since for the purposes of these rules, information on customer orders still to be executed is classified as inside information. This provision also implies the prohibition of transmitting to third parties any information on orders or on information received from the customers;

- inside information may be disclosed within the Bank's Structures and offices only to those staff members who need knowledge of it in order to perform their normal duties and in compliance with existing segregation rules, highlighting the confidential nature of the information and reporting disclosure for the purpose of entering the names of the persons receiving it in the Register of the persons having access to inside information. Furthermore, in the event that a person entered in the Register involuntarily discloses inside information to another person who is not authorised to access it, the person who inadvertently made the disclosure must report the event to the Structure managing the Register for the necessary action;

- it is forbidden to disclose inside information to third parties for any reasons other than performance of duties (for example and without limitation: to customers, issuers of publicly traded securities, etc.) or to advise or induce third parties to carry out transactions linked to the inside information; if such information must be communicated to third parties for performance of duties (e.g. to external consultants and/or professionals), their names must be entered in the Register of the persons having access to inside information. Where such third parties have no institutional obligation to maintain confidentiality under existing legal, regulatory or statutory provisions, a formal confidentiality agreement shall be signed, creating a mutual obligation of confidentiality on the information exchanged;

- it is forbidden to discuss inside information in public places or in premises where persons not belonging to the company are present or in any case in the presence of persons who do not need to know such information. For example: no inside information can be discussed in open spaces with various facilities, lifts, hallways, snack areas, company canteens, restaurants, trains, airplanes, airports, buses and, in general, places accessible to the general public; special attention must be paid when using cell phones and loudspeaker phones;

- without prejudice to provisions on disclosure to the public of inside information concerning the Bank, it is forbidden to disclose to the market or the media inside information concerning the Bank’s corporate customers. If comments on specific transactions concerning such issuers are requested, any comments made shall refer only to facts already disclosed by the issuer under Article 114 of the Consolidated Law on Finance; in any case, the bank staff member concerned has an obligation to consult with the corporate functions that lawfully hold the inside information to enable them to check whether confidential information has also been inadvertently disclosed;

- it is forbidden to disclose, either to other staff members or to third parties not belonging to the Bank, through any medium, including the internet, any inaccurate information, rumours or news or information whose accuracy has not been established, and which are likely, even merely potentially, to provide false or misleading information on the Bank or the Group and/or on their financial instruments or on third-party Companies which have business relations with the Bank or the Group and their financial instruments;

- it is forbidden to produce and disseminate studies and researches or other marketing communications in infringement of the internal and external rules specifically laid down for such activity and, in particular, without ensuring that the information provided is clear, accurate and not misleading, without disclosing in the manner required by law the existence of any significant interests and/or conflicts of interest;

- in accordance with the provisions of the internal rules on physical and logistical security all documents containing confidential and reserved information must be filed securely: to this end, staff members shall take care to maintain their own personal password secret and shall ensure that their computer is adequately protected, and that access to it is temporarily blocked wherever they move away from their workstation. Also note that:
  - the production of any documents containing inside information (for example, printing or photocopying of such documents) must be handled by duly authorised staff;
the documents in question shall be classified as “confidential”, “reserved” or, where possible, using code names to safeguard the kind of information they contain; when confidential and reserved information is prepared/processed/transmitted/filed in electronic format access to such information shall be password protected or, for those Structures so equipped, will involve the use of encryption software;

do the physical supports containing confidential and reserved information must be kept in secure controlled-access premises, or placed in controlled or protected archives after their use, and must never be left unattended, especially when they are taken outside the workplace; destruction of the physical supports containing confidential and reserved information must be carried out by the same persons responsible for them, using appropriate procedures to avoid any unauthorised retrieval of the information they contain.

Furthermore:

- with particular regard to the issue of official communications to the market, such communications shall be prepared in compliance with the applicable laws and regulations and, in any case, fully respecting the requirements of correctness, clarity, and equal access to the information, where:
  - correctness means exhaustive and non-misleading information, having regard to the legitimate requests for data and news coming from the market;
  - clarity refers to the forms in which the information is communicated to the market and means that it must be complete and clearly understandable, also taking into account the intended recipients of the communications;
  - equal access means that no information that might be relevant for assessment of financial instruments may be communicated in any manner that is howsoever selective;

- the disclosure of inside information to the Supervisory Authorities shall take place in an exhaustive, timely and appropriate manner, in compliance with the applicable rules and regulations. Prior to this communication no declaration concerning inside information may be released to external parties.

Lastly, the Bank has adopted an “Internal dealing” regulation which sets out specific rules of conduct based on the legal reporting requirements for transactions performed on the financial instruments of a listed issuer by relevant and/or related parties, pursuant to Article 114, paragraph 7, of the Consolidated Law on Finance and to the Issuer Regulation (Consob resolution no. 11971/1999 as subsequently amended and supplemented) for the purpose of ensuring that the information provided to the market meets the highest standards of transparency.
The Heads of the Structures concerned have an obligation to put in place all systems necessary to ensure the effectiveness and the concrete implementation of the control and conduct principles described in this protocol.
Introduction

This protocol applies to all the Bank Structures involved in the management of market transactions on financial instruments.

The process of managing market transactions presents potential opportunities for commission of the offences of market rigging and market manipulation or the corresponding administrative breach, covered respectively by Article 2637 of the Civil Code, and by Articles 185 and 187-ter of the Consolidated Law on Finance, with reference to the conduct of “operating manipulation” described by those provisions.

With regard to prevention of the criminal offence and administrative breaches of “information manipulation” – which may consist in the dissemination of false or misleading information, rumours or news – reference is made to the protocol set out in Chapter 7.7.2.1, on “Management and disclosure of information for the purposes of preventing criminal and administrative offences in the area of market abuse”, which sets out the control and conduct principles to be applied in the process of managing the inside information which the Bank’s operational Structures might acquire in performance of their assigned duties, or to the Bank’s communications to the market and, in general, to all external parties.

The purpose of the rules set out in this document, in accordance with the requirements of current legislation, is to ensure that during execution of trading and settlement transactions on the market – or when orders to execute such transactions are given to third parties - no simulated transactions or other fictitious devices likely to have a significant effect on the prices of financial instruments are carried out, or transactions or other fictitious devices likely to provide false and misleading information on the offer, demand for, or the price of the financial instruments.

The contents of this protocol are aimed at ensuring that the Bank complies with current legislation and the principles of transparency, correctness, objectivity and traceability in the performance of the activity in question.
Process description

The process of managing market transactions, for the purposes of this protocol, concerns trading activity performed either on the Bank’s own behalf or on behalf of third parties concerning the financial instruments referred to in Article 182 of the Consolidated Law on Finance. As to trading on the Bank’s own behalf, the process comprises the following main activities:

- defining the general guidelines for managing the portfolio of securities owned by the Bank;
- planning investment strategies on the basis of the analyses and proposals submitted to the approval of the competent Bank bodies;
- management of the portfolio and/or of ownership risk (VAR) and performance trading activity, arbitrage and the taking of long/short positions on Capital Market cash products and derivatives, taking positions exposed to interest rate risk, exchange rate risk, credit risk, equity risk and volatility risk, in compliance with the notional limits, VAR limits and the limits of the expected risk/return profile;
- management of the portfolio of investments in alternative funds, traditional funds and related instruments;
- support to intermediation in the Bank’s own bonds;
- technical support to the management of financial profiles of the Bank’s investments in listed stocks;
- management of trading in own shares on the markets;
- direct or indirect execution on the markets of trading transactions for managing the Bank’s security portfolios;
- fulfilment of the administrative/regulatory requirements associated with performance of the trading transactions.

With regard to the Bank’s trading activity on behalf of third parties (executing orders on behalf of customers and receiving/transmitting orders) or to trading on the Bank’s own account hedged back to back with customers, an automatic procedure is in place which selects suspicious transactions which are subsequently analysed. If at the time of receiving an order there are reasons to believe or suspect that execution of the transaction is instrumental to the commission of an offence or an administrative breach or to obtaining the proceeds of such offence or breach, the operator should consider whether the transaction should be denied or suspended.

The operating procedures for management of the process are governed by the internal rules, which are developed and updated by the competent Structures, and which form an integral and substantive part of this protocol.
Control principles

The control system for monitoring the process described above is based on the following elements:

- Clearly defined authorisation levels, including in particular approval by the Bodies which are competent under the current power and delegation system of:
  - the guidelines for the management of the Bank’s portfolio of current and non-current securities;
  - the operating perimeter for trading financial instruments on the market;
  - decisions authorising the performance of equity investments/divestments;
  - operating limits based on the seniority and position of the staff concerned.

- Organisational separation (Chinese Walls) between the Structures which deal with inside information (in particular between those that manage business relations with the corporate customers, grant and manage credit, provide corporate finance services, and manage subsidiaries and equity investments) and those which hold direct relations with the market, including the structures engaged in the production of studies and researches on issuers of listed financial instruments and those performing trading activities (on behalf of the Bank or of third parties, including asset management) and sales activities.

- Control activity on purchase and sale transactions executed on the markets by means of a differentiated control system which takes into account the different types of financial instruments dealt with and the specific features of the reference market.

- Monitoring of investment service activities by second level control functions of the Bank, in particular the Compliance function which, for the aspects falling under its competence, performs prior validation activity and ongoing monitoring of the appropriateness of the internal procedures concerning the provision of investment services, including verification of compliance with reference legislation, taking into account the findings of the Internal Auditing Department.

- Process traceability including both the electronic and the paper trail: in particular, financial instrument purchase and sale transactions are managed through dedicated software systems, where all details of the transactions executed are saved.
The general principles covering operations management are set out in the detailed internal rules which address, in particular, the following aspects:

- identification of the intermediaries authorised to operate with the Bank, trading and conclusion procedures (quotation and execution), trading times, late deals, “fast” payments relating to OTC derivative transactions, processes for the authorisation of new products, access to trading rooms, authorised traders, errors, litigations and complaints.

Rules of conduct

The Bank’s structures howsoever involved in the management of customers’ assets or in trading activities, on the Bank’s behalf or on account of third parties, through negotiation and settlement of transactions on the markets, shall comply with the procedures set out in this protocol, the applicable provisions of law, the internal rules and any applicable provisions of the Group’s Code of Ethics and Internal Code of Conduct.

In particular it is forbidden to:

- set up sham transactions or employ other fictitious devices likely to significantly affect the price of financial instruments;
- undertake transactions or issue purchase or sale orders which provide or are likely to provide false or misleading indications on the offer, demand for or price of financial instruments;
- undertake transactions or purchase and sale orders making it possible, also through the coordinated action of several persons, to fix the market price of financial instruments at an abnormal or artificial level;
- undertake transactions or purchase and sale orders employing fictitious devices or any other form of deception or contrivance;
- use other fictitious devices likely to provide false or misleading indications on the offer, demand for or price of financial instruments.

The following types of conduct concerning the financial instruments referred to in Article 182 of the Consolidated Law on Finance are forbidden, with the exception of those cases and procedures set out in current legislation:

- undertake transactions or give orders to trade which represent a significant proportion of the daily volume of transaction in the relevant financial instrument on the market concerned, in particular when these orders or transactions lead to a significant change in the price of the financial instrument;

- undertake transactions or give orders to trade when holding a significant buying or selling position in a financial instrument leading to significant changes in the price of the financial instrument or related derivative or underlying asset;

- undertake transactions leading to no change in beneficial ownership of the financial instrument;

- undertake transactions or give orders to trade which include position reversals in a short period and represent a significant proportion of the daily volume of transactions in the relevant financial instrument on the market concerned, and might be associated with significant changes in the price of a financial instrument;

- undertake transactions or give orders to trade which are concentrated within a short time span in the trading session and lead to a price change which is subsequently reversed;

- give orders to trade that change the representation of the best bid or offer prices in a financial instrument, or more generally change the representation of the order book available to market participants, and are removed before they are executed;

- undertake transactions or give orders to trade at or around a specific time when opening or closing auction prices, control prices, reference prices, settlement prices and valuations of financial instruments are calculated and lead to price changes which have an effect on such prices;

- undertake transactions or give orders to trade which are preceded or followed by the dissemination of false or misleading information, also through other persons;

- undertake transactions or give orders to trade before or after producing or disseminating, also through other persons, research or investment recommendations which are erroneous or biased or demonstrably influenced by material interest.

7.8 Sensitive area concerning workplace health and safety offences

7.8.1 Types of offences

Introduction

Law no. 123 of 3 August 2007 added to Legislative Decree no. 231/2001 Article 25-septies, which adds to the list of the predicate offences giving rise to the liability of Entities the offences of unintentional killing (manslaughter) and of unintentionally causing grievous bodily injury where such offences are committed through violation of accident prevention and workplace health and safety rules.

Subsequently, the Consolidated Law on protection of health and safety in the workplace was issued, (Legislative Decree no. 81 of 9 April 2008, as amended by Legislative Decree no. 106 of 3 August 2009) which reorganised in a coherent framework the large number of previous legislative acts governing this area. With regard to the administrative liability of Entities, Article 300 amended Article 25 septies of Legislative Decree no. 231/2001 leaving practically unchanged the definition of the types of criminal offences which are predicate offences; furthermore, Article 30 set out the required contents of the Organisational, Management and Control Model in this area for the purpose of preventing the offences in question.

The purpose of the above legal provisions is to provide more effective means of prevention and punishment, in the light of the spike in the number of workplace accidents and of the need to safeguard the physical and mental wellbeing of workers and the safety of workplaces.

Involuntary manslaughter (Article 589 of the Criminal Code)

Involuntary serious or grievous bodily injury (Article 590 paragraph 3 of the Criminal Code)

The two offences consist in culpably causing respectively death or serious or grievous bodily injury.

Serious bodily injury indicates a condition which endangers the life of the injured person, or causes incapacity to attend to normal activities for a period exceeding forty days, or an injury which results in the permanent weakening of a sense or an organ; grievous bodily injury indicates a probably incurable condition; the loss of a sense, a limb, an organ or the capacity to procreate, permanent impairment of the power of speech, and facial deformity or permanent disfigurement.

Under the above-mentioned Article 25 septies of the Decree, to give rise to the Entity’s liability, both conducts must be characterised by violation of workplace accident prevention and health and safety protection regulations.
Various legal provisions cover this area, most of which have been since absorbed by the Consolidated Law on the protection of workplace health and safety, which repealed many of the previous special laws, among which we should mention: Presidential Decree no. 547 of 27.4.1955 on accident prevention; Presidential Decree no. 303 of 19.3.1956 on workplace hygiene; Legislative Decree no. 626 of 19.9.1994 which contained general provisions on the protection of workers’ health and safety; and Legislative Decree no. 494 of 14.8.1996 on construction site safety.

The specific prevention requirements set out in sectoral legislation are complemented by the more general provision of Article 2087 of the Civil code, which requires employers to set in place measures to protect the physical and mental health of workers having regard to the characteristics of the work, the workers’ experience and the techniques employed.

Lastly, it should be noted that according to case law the employer may also be liable for the offences in question where the injured person is not a worker but a third party, provided that his presence at the workplace at the time of the accident was neither anomalous nor exceptional.

7.8.2 Sensitive company activities

The protection of occupational health and safety is a requirement applying throughout all companies, areas and activities.

We reproduce below the protocol laying down the control principles and rules of conduct applicable to the management of the risks relating to workplace health and safety. This protocol is completed by the applicable detailed corporate regulations in force.
Introduction

The management of the risks relating to workplace health and safety concerns any type of activity aimed at developing and putting in place a system for the prevention of and protection against workplace risks, in accordance with the contents of Legislative Decree no. 81/2008 (hereinafter, the Consolidated Law).

First of all, it is worth recalling that pursuant to the Consolidated Law, the Employer has a duty to establish a company policy addressing workplace health, while the Principal and/or his delegates are responsible for and manage the temporary or mobile worksites governed by Title IV of the Consolidated Law, and both, within the scope of their respective competences, must fulfil the obligations relating to the award of supply/works contracts set out in Article 26 of the same Consolidated Law.

In accordance with the provisions of such Law, the Bank has adopted and keeps updated a “Risk Assessment Document”, containing:

- assessment of the health and safety risks to which workers are exposed in the course of their work activity;
- identification of the prevention and protection measures adopted to safeguard the workers and of the programme of measures deemed appropriate to upgrade safety levels within the short term;
- identification of the procedures for implementing the measures so identified, and of the corporate structures and officers responsible for them, who shall be solely persons possessing the appropriate competences and powers;
- identification of the officer responsible for the prevention and protection service, of the Workers’ safety representatives and of the competent medical doctors who have participated in the risk assessment;
- identification of the tasks which might expose workers to specific risks requiring proven professional skills, specific experience and appropriate training and updating.

This Document is prepared in compliance with national legislation and national and European guidelines (ISPESL, INAIL, UNI-EN-ISO, European Agency for Safety and Health at Work). More specifically, the “Guidelines for a Health and Safety Management System at Work (SGSL)” are hereby incorporated as set forth by UNI – INAIL (Italian Workers’ Compensation Authority) in September 2001. To this end, the Risk Evaluation Document identifies, within the corporate organisation, the responsibilities, procedures, processes and resources for the implementation of its own prevention policy in compliance with applicable health and safety regulations. The same Document describes the specific methods with which the organisation meets the requirements of the aforesaid Guidelines and outlines the operational processes and corporate documents aimed at guaranteeing the fulfilment of the provisions laid down by Art. 30 – Organisation and management models – of Legislative Decree no. 81/2008.

The “Company’s Prevention and Protection Management System” outlined in the above-mentioned document has been prepared on the basis of a quality system, more specifically, following the guidelines contained in BS 8800 (Guide to Occupational Health and Safety Management Systems) and in OHSAS 18001:1999 Occupational Health and Safety Assessment Series. Furthermore, the Bank has chosen to obtain quality certification of the processes managed by the Prevention and Protection function in accordance with the ISO 9001 standard, 2000 edition. The company has adopted a system of functions appropriate to the nature and size of the organisation and type of activity carried out, ensuring the necessary technical competences and powers for risk verification, assessment, management and control.

The corporate Structures in charge of managing OH&S documentation, including authorisations/certifications/favourable opinions issued by the Public Administration, must comply with the rules of conduct set out and described in the protocol “Management of activities relating to the request for authorisation or fulfilment of requirements towards the Public Administration”.

The company’s workplace health and safety policy must be disseminated, understood, applied and updated throughout the organisation and at all levels. The Bank’s general guidelines must target ongoing improvement of the quality of health and must contribute to the development of an effective “prevention and protection system”. All the Bank’s structures must comply with the provisions on workplace health, safety and hygiene, and take them into due account whenever changes to the existing organisational setup are introduced, including workplace restorations/setups.

The contents of this protocol are aimed at ensuring that the Bank complies with current legislation and the principles of transparency, correctness, objectivity and traceability in the performance of the activity in question.

Process description

The workplace health and safety risk management process comprises the following stages:

- identifying and classifying hazards (including both safety hazards and occupational health hazards);
- carrying out risk assessment;
- defining and developing prevention and protection measures;
- preparing an action plan and allocating actions among the various corporate structures; implementing the planned actions in the framework of a programme; monitoring implementation and checking the effectiveness of the measures adopted.

With specific reference to construction site management (Articles 88 et seq. of the Consolidated Law) which falls under the responsibility of the "Principal", the process comprises the following stages:

- verifying the technical and professional competence of the contractors/subcontractors and self-employed workers;
- appointment of the Project manager and, where necessary, of the Site engineer, the design Coordinator and the works Coordinator, subject to verification of the professional requirements of the subjects in charge and formalisation in writing of the relevant appointments;
- planning of the works stages and their evaluation with special reference to the interactions of the activities also having an impact on the surroundings of the work site and the possible concurrence of the Bank's activities and preparation of the safety and coordination plans or, where interference risk evaluation documents are not provided for by regulations, also on behalf of appointed professionals;
- preparation of requests for proposals with information to the counterpart as to the arrangements in place on the subject of health and safety (safety and coordination plans/interference risk evaluation documents);
- preparation of the proposal by the offeror with indication of the costs allocated to health and safety relating to the measures in place to manage interferences, on the basis of the scope and characteristics of the service/supply being offered, as well as containing a statement of acknowledgment of the risks present in the places where the work is carried out and of the relevant measures aimed at their elimination/reduction;
- fulfilment of technical-administrative obligations, notifications and communications to the public administration, including on behalf of the professionals in charge
- awarding of the service and stipulation of the agreement, with the indication of the costs relating to safety and attachment of the safety and coordination plan/interference risk evaluation document;
- coordinating performance of activities by the various contractors/self-employed workers and carrying out site controls in compliance with the required measures, also through the professionals appointed for this purpose.

At temporary or mobile construction sites where Bank employees are present, the risks arising from interference between the two activities are managed by the Principal, even through professionals specifically appointed for this purpose, by identifying the prevention, protection and emergency measures safeguarding the health and safety of the employees, customers, contractors and self-employed workers. Such measures are set out in the Safety and Coordination Plan or, if not provided for therein, in the Single Interference Risk Assessment Document (having regard to their respective scopes) prepared by the persons appointed by the Principal, with support, as required, of the Bank’s Prevention and Protection structure.

With specific reference to the management of supply contracts, works contracts and service contracts falling within the scope of Article 26 of the Consolidated Law the process comprises the following stages:

- verifying the technical and professional competence of the contractors/subcontractors and of the self-employed workers;
- providing information to the subcontractors/self-employed workers on the specific risks at work sites, and on the prevention and emergency measures adopted, having regard to the activities covered by the contract; moreover, where provided for by the law or regulations, preparing the Interference Risk Assessment Document (DUVRI), to be supplied to bidders for the purpose of preparing their bid, and which will constitute an integral part of the contract, containing the appropriate measures for eliminating or reducing the risks arising from the interference of other activities with those required for contract performance, and simultaneous preparation of the request for bids, where provided for;
- preparation of the bid by the bidder, indicating the costs earmarked for safety measures and interference management measures, which shall be proportionate to the scope and characteristics of the supply/works offered, and shall contain a statement to the effect that the bidder has been informed of the risks present at the proposed construction site, together with a description of the proposed measures to eliminate/reduce those risks;
- award and signing of contract, indicating the cost earmarked for safety measures and annexing the DUVRI;
- performance of the supply/works contract by the selected contractor and cooperation and coordination with the subcontractors/self-employed workers to implement occupational risk protection and prevention actions, also via the exchange of information to eliminate the risks due to any interference between the works of the different contractors involved in performance of the overall project and the risks linked to the concurrent presence of the Bank’s agents, employees and customers on site;
- control on compliance with contractual requirements in performance of activities.

The Employer has delegated the Head of the Property and Procurement function, for the activities falling under its competence, for the purpose of fulfilling the obligations set forth in above mentioned art. 26; such activities can be further delegated to other specifically appointed persons.
The operating procedures for managing the process and identifying the structures/roles in charge of the different stages are governed by internal rules, which are developed and updated by the competent Structures and form an integral and substantive part of this protocol.

Control principles

The control system for monitoring the process described above must be based on the following elements:

- Authorisation levels defined within the process.
  - the company’s management system defines specific responsibilities and procedures to allow the full implementation of the workplace health and safety policy with a systematic and planned approach. In particular, the company figures playing respectively the roles of “Employer” and “Principal” must be identified. Such figures are empowered to issue health and safety related instructions to the company’s Structures and are endowed with the broadest organisational autonomy and spending powers. They may also delegate and sub-delegate tasks, pursuant to Article 16 paragraph 3-bis of the Consolidated Law;
  - a system of different functions is in place, to ensure the necessary technical competences and powers for risk verification, assessment, management and control;
  - all the persons/corporate roles taking part in all stages of the above-mentioned process must be identified and authorised by an express provision of the internal rules or by means of internal delegation, to be issued and kept on file by the Employer/Principal, or by the persons appointed by them.

- Segregation of the duties between the different persons/corporate roles involved in the process of managing the risks relating to workplace health and safety. Specifically:
  - the operational Structures responsible for implementing and managing projects (real estate, IT, physical security, or relating to work processes and staff management), shall be distinct and separate from the Structure which is appointed under the law and/or the internal rules, to provide advice on risk assessment and on the monitoring of risk prevention and reduction measures;
  - the competent structures shall appoint persons having specific responsibilities for managing/preventing occupational health and safety risks;
  - The workers’ safety representatives shall actively collaborate with the Employer, reporting any problems identified and helping to pinpoint appropriate solutions.
Control activities:

- the competent structures must put in place a corporate plan of systematic controls ensuring periodic assessment of the sound application/management and of the effectiveness of the occupational health and safety procedures in place and of those measures implemented to assess workplaces in accordance with the requirements of law. In particular, the plan shall cover:
  - corporate areas and activities to be assessed (including organisational activities\(^1\), health surveillance, worker information and training, and monitoring of workers’ compliance with health and safety requirements in performance of their duties);
  - procedures for performing verifications, reporting procedures.

The company plan must also ensure:

- compliance with the technical-structural standards required by law in respect of equipment, plant, workplaces, and chemical, physical and biological hazards;
- provisions to ensure that the competent structures obtain the documentation and certifications required by law (concerning buildings, plant, individuals, companies etc.);
- compliance with the process and technical and administrative requirements set out in the internal regulations and applicable laws.

An appropriate control system shall also be put in place with regard to the effective implementation and ongoing maintenance of the conditions of appropriateness of the measures adopted. The plan shall be reviewed and amended in an appropriate manner whenever significant infringements are detected to the rules on accident prevention and workplace hygiene or whenever organisational and operational changes are made to incorporate scientific and technological developments.

- the competent Structures shall ensure that all the planned prevention and protection measures are implemented, providing ongoing monitoring of risk situations and of the progress of the action plans established by the specific risk assessment documents. Such Structures shall avail themselves as appropriate of the cooperation of the Structure responsible for managing human resources, and of the structures in charge of managing and implementing real estate projects, workflow design and management processes, physical security, information systems, management and maintenance projects;

- The Workers’ Safety Representatives, acting in compliance with applicable legislation, are entitled to access the company’s documents relating to risk assessment and associated prevention measures and to request additional information on the subject. These Representatives shall also be authorised to access workplaces and make observations at the time of inspections and checks by the competent Authorities;

- all workplaces shall be visited and assessed by persons meeting the legal requirements and having appropriate technical qualifications. The Competent Doctor and the Officer in charge of the Prevention and Protection Service shall visit the workplaces where workers are exposed to specific risks and shall carry out spot checks in the other workplaces;

- specialist figures possessing proven professional expertise and meeting the requirements provided for by specific standards assessed on a prior basis, shall contribute to the assessment process and to planning protection measures in respect of specific risks (e.g. asbestos, radon, high risk of fires) and at the temporary or mobile construction sites (Project supervisors, Safety coordinators, Designers, Project managers, etc.);

- the competent Structures identified by the Employer/Principal shall assess the technical and professional competence of contractors or self-employed workers in respect of the tasks assigned to them;

- the competent Structures identified by the Principal shall assess the technical and professional competence of the Project supervisors, the Site engineer, and the works Coordinator in relation to the specific characteristics of the works to be executed under the works contracts.

- if the documentation required under the Consolidated Law is maintained on electronic medium, the competent Structure shall check that the data saving methods and the procedures for accessing the data management system are in compliance with Article 53 of the Consolidated Law;

- the Employer and the Principal, each within their respective spheres of competence, acting in accordance with paragraph 3-bis of Article 18 of the Consolidated Law, shall supervise the compliance of agents, workers, competent doctors, designers, manufacturers, suppliers, and installers with their obligations under health and safety legislation through the above-mentioned company-wide systematic control plan.

- With regard to temporary or mobile worksites, the Principal verifies that tasks are correctly assigned and that the Site engineer, the Project manager, the design Coordinator and the works Coordinator, where appointed, duly fulfil their obligations; to this purpose the Principal receives from them periodic reports on the activities carried out, critical issues, if any, and the measures adopted to rectify them.

- Process traceability including both the electronic and the paper trail:

- the use of computer systems for managing the data and documentation required by the Consolidated Law shall be in compliance with Article 53 of said Law;
in order to allow reconstruction of responsibilities, each Structure from time to time concerned shall put in place adequate systems for recording activities performed, and shall be responsible for filing and storing, also in telematic or electronic format, all executed contracts and all the documentation produced as part of its activities relating to management of workplace health and safety risks and the associated control activity;

- each Structure from time to time concerned shall also be responsible for acquiring, storing and filing the documents and certifications required by law, as well as any documentary evidence of the technical and professional expertise of contractors, self-employed workers and persons appointed as responsible for workplace safety (e.g. the Project manager, design and works Coordinators);

- management of the different risk contexts provides for the use of specific information systems accessible via the intranet by all the Structures concerned and authorised to carry out risk assessments relating to the operating units. These information systems shall contain, for example, the technical documentation of plant, machinery, workplaces, etc., the lists of employees exposed to specific risks, the health documents (in compliance with the confidentiality requirements provided for by legislation), training and information activities, risk elimination/reduction activity, internal and external inspections, information on injuries and risk reporting, forms for the management of environmental monitoring and health records, etc..

Rules of conduct

The Bank Structures howsoever involved in the management of the risks relating to workplace health and safety, as well as all employees shall comply with the procedures set out in this protocol, the applicable provisions of law, internal rules and any provisions of the Group's Code of Ethics and Internal Code of Conduct.

In particular, all the Structures/roles are obligated – within their respective spheres of competence - to:

- ensure, within their sphere of competence, performance of the measures relating to occupational health and safety, by implementing general protection measures and assessing the choice of work equipment and workplace layout and organisation;

- if third parties are to be involved in the management/prevention of workplace health and safety risks, the contracts entered into with such persons shall contain a specific declaration that they are aware of the provisions of Legislative Decree no. 231/2001 and undertake to comply with them;

- all appointments of external consultants must be made on substantiated and objective grounds of competitiveness, benefits, price, integrity, reliability and the ability to provide effective ongoing assistance. In particular, the rules for the selection of professionals shall refer to the criteria of clarity and availability laid down in the Group’s Code of Ethics and Internal Code of Conduct;

- adopt transparent and cooperative conduct towards the Agencies in charge of performing controls (e.g. Labour Inspectorate, Local Health Authorities, the Fire-fighting agencies, etc.) when such agencies carry out checks or inspections;

- when awarding supply/works contracts, inform the contractors of the specific risks present at the worksites where they will operate, and apply measures to ensure the safe management of any interferences between contractors, including any self-employed workers, highlighting the planned cost of safety measures in the contracts where such indication is provided for;

- foster and promote internal information and training on work-related risks, on the prevention and protection measures and activities adopted, first aid procedures, fire-fighting measures and worker evacuation procedures;

- ensure compliance with the health and safety rules and legislation by all workers who are not Bank employees, with particular reference to the contracts governed by Legislative Decree no. 276/2003 as subsequently amended and supplemented, to individuals operating under training schemes and to any third parties who might be present in the workplaces;

- ensure that, in respect of automatic data processing systems, data saving methods and the procedures for accessing the required documentation management system meet the requirements set out in Article 53 of the Consolidated Law.

On their part, all employees have an obligation to:

- comply with the provisions of the law, the internal rules and the instructions issued by the corporate Structures and the competent Authorities;

- use in an appropriate manner machinery, equipment, tools, means of transport and all other work equipment, and safety devices;

- report immediately to the officer in charge of emergencies or his subordinates any potential or real danger situation and, in case of emergencies, take all steps within their competences and possibilities, to eliminate or reduce the hazardous situation.

In any case, it is forbidden to engage/collaborate in or induce conduct (or omissions) which may belong to one of the types of offences covered by Legislative Decree no. 231/2001.

7.9 Sensitive area concerning computer crimes

7.9.1 Types of Offences

Introduction

Law No 48 of 18.3.2008 ratified the Convention on Cybercrime of the Council of Europe, done in Budapest on 23.11.2001, aimed at fostering international cooperation between the States parties to the Convention in order to combat the spread of cybercrime directed against the confidentiality, integrity and availability of computer systems, network and data, especially in consideration of the nature of such crimes, whose planning or commission often involve different countries.

The reform of the legislation on cybercrime was carried out both by introducing new types of crimes in the Criminal Code and by amending certain existing crimes. Article 7 of the Law has also added to Legislative Decree no. 231/2001 Article 24-bis, which lists the series of computer crimes which might give rise to the administrative liability of Entities.

The above-mentioned law has also amended the Code of Criminal Procedure, essentially in order to facilitate and regulate the investigations and the search and seizure of computer data, requiring investigating or police authorities to adopt appropriate technical measures to ensure the storage of the original data and prevent their alteration. Moreover, Section 132 of the Data Protection Code (Legislative Decree no. 196/2003) was also amended, to enable the competent Authorities to order IT and/or Internet service providers and operators to retain and protect Internet traffic data for a total period not exceeding six months. On the other hand, the Italian legal system has not implemented the definitions of “computer system” and “computer data” provided by the Budapest Convention; such definitions, which are reproduced hereunder, may however be taken as a reference by case law in this area:

- “computer system” means: any device or a group of interconnected or related devices, one or more of which, pursuant to a program, performs automatic processing of data;
- “computer data” means: any representation of facts, information or concepts in a form suitable for processing in a computer system, including a program suitable to cause a computer system to perform a function.

The predicate offences listed by Article 24-bis of Legislative Decree no. 231/2001 are described below.
Unauthorised access to a telecommunications or computer system (Article 615-ter of the Criminal Code)

This offence is committed by anyone who abusively gains access to a computer system or telecommunications system protected by safety measures or retains access thereto against the will of any person who is entitled to deny such access.

For the offence to occur it is not necessary that it be committed for the purpose of making a profit or damaging the system; the offence occurs also where the purpose is to demonstrate the hacker’s ability and the vulnerability of the system; however, unauthorised access is in most cases aimed at damaging the system or perpetrating frauds or committing other computer crimes.

The offence is prosecutable on the action of the injured party; however, it is prosecutable ex officio where the specific aggravating circumstances set out in the Article are present, including: if the deed causes the destruction or the damage of the data, the software or the system or the partial or total interruption of its operation; if the deed concerns systems of public interest; or if the deed was committed by abusing one’s role as system operator.

In the corporate context, the offence may also be committed by any employee who, while possessing system access credentials, accesses parts of the system which are off limits to him, or accesses, without authorisation a databases of the Bank (or also of third parties which the Bank is licensed to use), by using the credentials of other, authorised, co-workers.

Wiretapping, blocking or illegally interrupting computer or information technology communications (Article 617-quater of the Criminal Code)

Installation of devices aimed at wiretapping, blocking or interrupting computer or information technologies communications (Article 617-quinquies of the Criminal Code)

The conduct punished by Article 617-quater of the Criminal Code consists in fraudulently wiretapping communications within a computer system or telecommunication system or between several systems, or blocking or interrupting such communications. The same offence is committed, unless the deed constitutes a more serious offence, when the contents of the above-mentioned communications are disclosed to the public by any means of communication.

Wiretapping can be performed either by technical devices or through the use of software (spyware). The blocking or interruption of communications (“Denial of service”) may also consist of slowing down communications and can be achieved not only by using computer viruses, but also for example by causing system overload by generating a vast number of fake communications.

The offence is prosecutable on the action of the injured party; however, it is prosecutable ex officio where specific aggravating circumstances set out in the Article are met, including where the offence is committed against a computer or telecommunication system used by the State or by another public Entity or used by a company that provides public services or services of public interest, or where the offence is committed by abusing the role of system operator.
Within the company, the blocking or interruption of communications may for example be caused by the unauthorised installation of a software system by an employee.

Article 617- punishes any person who, other than in the cases allowed by law, installs equipment designed to wiretap, block or interrupt communications, regardless of whether such events do actually occur. This offence is prosecutable ex officio.

Damaging computer information, data and programs (Article 635-bis of the Criminal Code)

Damaging computer information, data and programs used by the Government or any other public Entity or by an Entity providing public services (Article 635-ter of the Criminal Code)

Article 635-bis of the Criminal Code punishes, unless the deed constitutes a more serious offense, any person who destroys, damages, cancels, alters or suppresses computer information, data or software belonging to others.

According to a strict interpretation, the concept of “software belonging to others” might also include software used by the person under a licence granted by the lawful owners of the software.

Article 635-ter of the Criminal Code, unless the fact constitutes a more serious offence, punishes any conduct aimed at producing the occurrences described in the preceding Article, regardless of whether material damage actually occurs: any such material damage constitutes an aggravating circumstance. This offence applies only to conduct aimed at damaging computer information, data or software used by the Government or another public Entity or by an organisation providing a public service. Therefore this type of offence also includes conduct aimed at damaging data, information and software used by private organisations, where they are intended to provide public interest services.

Aggravating circumstances for both offences exist where the deed is committed with violence to individuals or threat, or by abusing the role of system operator. The first offence is prosecutable on the action of the injured party, or ex officio where one of the aggravating circumstances occurs, while the second offence is always prosecutable ex officio.

Damaging computer or telecommunication systems (Article 635-quater of the Criminal Code)

Damaging computer or telecommunication systems of public interest (Article 635-quinquies of the Criminal Code)

Article 635-quater of the Criminal Code, unless the fact constitutes a more serious offense, punishes any person who, by the conducts referred to in Article 635-bis, i.e. by introducing or transmitting data, information or software, destroys, damages or makes it impossible, either in whole or in part, to use another person’s computer or telecommunication system or seriously obstructs its functioning. For this offence to be committed, the system so attacked must be damaged or rendered unusable at least in part, or its functioning must be obstructed.

Article 635-quinquies of the Criminal Code punishes the same conduct set out in Article 635-querter even where no actual damage occurs. Where damage does in fact occur, this constitutes an aggravating circumstance (it should however be noted that the material obstruction to the system’s functioning is not expressly included among the aggravating circumstances). For this Article to apply, the computer or telecommunications systems so attacked must be of public interest. This provision, differently from Article 635-ter, contains no reference to use by Public Bodies: it would seem therefore that for this offence to occur, the systems attacked must simply be “of public interest”; therefore, on the one hand, their use by Public Bodies would not suffice, and on the other, the rule would also be applicable to systems used by private organisations acting for public interest purposes.

Both offences are prosecutable ex officio; aggravating circumstances occur where the deed is committed with violence to individuals or threat, or by abusing the role of system operator.

It would seem that the offence of system damage subsumes data and software damage where the latter have the effect of making the systems unusable or of severely obstructing their regular functioning.

If the conducts described are committed through unauthorised system access, they shall be punished under the above-mentioned Article 615-ter of the Criminal Code.

Unauthorized possession and distribution of computer or telecommunication systems’ access codes (Article 615-querter of the Criminal Code)

Distribution of computer equipment, devices or computer programs for the purpose of damaging or interrupting a computer or a telecommunication system’s operations (Article 615-quinquies of the Criminal Code)

Article 615-querter punishes any person who, in order to obtain personal profit or profit for others or to cause damage to others, illegally obtains, reproduces, distributes, communicates or delivers codes, keywords or other methods suitable to access a system protected by security measures, or provides information for such purposes.

Article 615-quinquies punishes any person who procures, produces, reproduces, imports, spreads, communicates, delivers or makes available to others computer equipment, devices or software in order to illegally damage a system or the data and software contained therein or to assist the interruption or the altering of such system's operation.

These offences, which are punishable ex officio, also occur in the event of unauthorised possession or dissemination of passwords or of potentially damaging programmes (virus, spyware) or devices regardless of whether the other computer crimes illustrated above – which might be prepared by these actions – are actually committed or not.

One condition for the first offence is the intention of obtaining profit or causing damage. However, for the purpose of assessing such types of conduct, one key element might be the objectively abusive nature of the transmission of data, software, e-mail, etc., by persons who, while not intending to obtain profit or causing damage, are aware of the presence in such data etc. of a virus which might cause the harmful occurrences described in the provision.

Article 491-bis of the Criminal Code applies to public or private computer documents having probative value the same treatment applicable to forgery of traditional paper documents, as set out in Articles from 476 to 493 of the Criminal Code. They include in particular material falsification or provision of intentionally false statements committed by a Public Official or by a private individual, falsification of registers and notifications, forgery of private agreements, intentionally false statements in certificates by providers of public interest services, and the use of a false act.

In current legislation, the concept of electronic document is independent of the material medium containing it, since the element having relevance in criminal law for the purpose of identifying the electronic document is whether such document can have probative value according to the rules of civil law.

In the offences of false deeds/forged deeds, one fundamental distinction must be made between material falsity and an intentionally false statement (falso ideologico): material falsity means the real author of the document is not the stated author, or that the document was altered (also by its original author) after being produced; an intentionally false statement occurs when the document contains untrue or unfaithfully reported statements.

1 On this point it should be noted that under the Digital Administration Code (Article 1, point p) of Legislative Decree no. 82/2005), an electronic document is “the electronic representation of acts, facts or data having legal significance”, but:

- if such document is not signed with an electronic signature (Article 1, point q), it cannot have probative value, but can at the most, at the Court’s discretion, satisfy the legal requirement of the written form (Article 20, paragraph. 1-bis);
- where the document is signed with “simple” (i.e. unqualified) electronic signature it cannot have probative value (and for the purpose of assigning probative value the Court shall assess the objective characteristics of quality, security, integrity and inalterability of the electronic document);
- an electronic document signed with digital signature or any other kind of qualified electronic signature shall have the probative weight of a private deed as laid down in Article 2702 of the Civil Code unless a claim of falsity is made, if the signature is recognised by the person against whom the document is asserted.
As concerns computer documents having probative value, material falsity may occur where some other person’s electronic signature is used, whereas alteration of the document subsequent to its preparation seems unlikely. On the other hand, the provisions that punish the signing of blank sheets of paper (Articles 486, 487, 488 of the Criminal Code) do not seem to be applicable to electronic documents. The offence of use of false acts (Article 489 of the Criminal Code) punishes any person who, while not taking part in the falsification of an act, uses such false act despite being aware of its falsity. Among the offences mentioned by Article 491-bis, the following are punishable on the action of the party harmed: falsification in a private instrument (Article 485 of the Criminal Code) and, if it concerns a private instrument, use of false acts (Article 489 of the Criminal Code) and the removal, destruction and concealment of genuine acts (Article 490 of the Criminal Code).

This offence is committed by any person responsible for certifying electronic signatures and who, in order to gain an unjust profit for himself or for others or to cause damage to others, infringes the legal obligations concerning issuance of a qualified certificate. The author of the offence can clearly only be a “certification service provider” who performs specific certification functions in respect of qualified electronic signatures.

On this specific issue it should be noted that the Bank assumes the role of “certification service provider” and therefore is directly relevant to it. It should however be noted that in order to take on criminal relevance, the infringement of obligations relating to the issue of a qualified certificate must be accompanied by the specific intention described above (gaining an unjust profit or cause damage to others).

More in general it should be noted that many types of computer crimes in concrete terms might well not fulfil the requirement of being committed in the Bank’s interest or for its benefit, which must be present for the Bank to incur administrative liability. However, where all the elements provided for by Legislative Decree no. 231/2001 occur, the Bank may be held liable, in accordance with the provisions of Article 8 of the Decree, even where the author of the offence cannot be identified (in this case, the offender, albeit unidentified, should at least be proven to be a manager or an employee). This eventuality is certainly not unlikely in the field of computer crime, in the light of the complexity of the medium and of the evanescence of cyberspace, which also make it objectively difficult to identify the specific place where the offence may have been committed.

1 Under Article 1 points e) and f) of Legislative Decree no. 82/2005, qualified certificate means an electronic attestation which links a signature verification device to a person, confirms the identity of that person and meets the requirements laid down in Annex I to Directive 1999/93/EC and is provided by a certification service provider – i.e. a person providing electronic signature certification services or similar electronic signature related services – who fulfills the requirements laid down in Annex II to the same Directive.

Lastly, it should be recalled that also Article 640-ter of the Criminal Code, which punishes computer crimes against the State or another Public Body, is a predicate offence of the administrative liability of Entities; on this point, the reader is referred to Chapter 7.2.1.

7.9.2 Sensitive company activities

The Bank’s activities exposed to the risk of computer crimes and of unlawful handling of electronic data held by the company are those of all company sectors where information technologies are used.

The Bank has put in place specific organisational safeguards and has adopted appropriate security solutions, in compliance with Supervisory Authority regulations and with the Privacy Code, to ensure prevention and control of risks relating to information technology (IT), and to protect its information assets and the personal data of its customers and third parties.

The offence referred to in Article 640-quinquies of the Criminal Code concerns specifically the Bank’s activity in its role as qualified certifier of digital signatures.

The sensitive activity identified by the Model where the risk of the above described unlawful conduct is highest is the following:

- Management and use of the Group’s IT systems and Information assets.

We reproduce below the protocol laying down the control principles and rules of conduct applicable to this activity, as well as the detailed corporate regulations governing this activity.
7.9.2.1. Management and use of the Group’s computer systems and Information assets

Introduction

This protocol applies to all the Bank Structures involved in the management and use of the Group’s computer systems and Information assets. In particular, it applies to:

- all the Bank’s structures involved in the management and the use of the information systems that interconnect with/use software of the Public Administration or the Supervisory Authorities;
- all the Structures tasked with designing, implementing or managing computer, technology or telecommunications tools;
- all the Structures responsible for implementing organisational, regulatory and technology actions to ensure the protection of the Group’s Information assets in the activities falling under their competence and in relations with third parties with access to the Group’s Information Assets;
- all the professional roles involved in company processes and operating therein for any reason, whether as employees or as collaborators or freelance professionals, who use the Bank’s information systems and handle data belonging to the Group's Information Assets.

Pursuant to Legislative Decree no. 231/2001, the related processes might present potential opportunities for commission of the computer crimes referred to in Article 24-bis, and of the offence of computer crimes against the State or another Public Body, laid down in Article 640-ter of the Criminal Code and referred to in Article 24 of the Decree. Furthermore, access to the computer networks could also provide a means for committing offences against intellectual property rights.¹

The contents of this protocol are aimed at ensuring that the Bank complies with current legislation and the principles of transparency, correctness, objectivity and traceability in the performance of the activity in question.

¹ For description of the relevant conduct see Chapter 7.10.
Process description

The use and management of computer systems and of Information Assets are essential activities for the performance of corporate business and characterise most of the Bank’s processes. The information systems used by the Bank also include hardware and software for fulfilment of requirements towards the Public Administration which involve the use of specific software supplied by the Public Bodies, or direct connection with such software. Hence the necessity to identify effective and stringent rules and measures relating to organisational, behavioural and technological security, and design specific control measures ensuring that the IT systems and the Group’s Information Assets are operated and managed in full compliance with current legislation.

In the light of the above comments, the following processes have been identified for exercising control over the operation and management of the Group’s IT systems and Information assets.

The computer security management process comprises the following phases:

- analysis of computer risk and identification of computer security requirements;
- management of Computer Resource Accesses and ICT Security Services;
- management of regulations and computer security architecture;
- monitoring computer security events and managing information security crises;
- design and implementation of computer security solutions.

The fraud prevention process involves the following stages:

- identification of the appropriate measures to upgrade prevention;
- monitoring of developments in computer crimes, also with regard to any related physical security aspects management of the activities necessary to identify and resolve threats to company assets; management of communications with Law Enforcement Bodies.

The physical security management process comprises the following phases:

- managing the protection of areas and premises where the activity is performed;
- managing the physical security of peripheral systems (premises of branches, central headquarters, other networks).

The process relating to the electronic signature certification service comprises the following phases:

- opening the contract;
- registering the holder;
• managing the certificate (suspending, reactivating, revoking, renewal and PIN unlocking).

The process for the design, development and implementation of the ICT services comprises the following phases:
• design, implementation and management of the Group’s software solutions and technology infrastructure.

The ICT management and support process comprises the following stages:
• provision of ICT services;
• monitoring of the operation of ICT services and management of any malfunctions;
• user assistance via Help desk and problem solving activities.

The operating procedures for management of the processes described herein are governed by internal rules, which are developed and updated by the competent Structures, and which form an integral and substantive part of this protocol.

Control principles

Without prejudice to the specific security requirements applicable to the software of the Public Administration or the Supervisory Authorities used by the Bank, the control system safeguarding the processes described above must be based on the following factors:

• Authorisation levels to be defined within each operating step of the processes described above. Specifically:
  o authorisations are managed by defining “access profiles” on the basis of the functions performed by each individual within the Bank;
  o changes to profile contents are performed by the Bank structures responsible for control of logical security, acting on the request of the Structure involved. The requesting Structure must in any case ensure that computer authorisations required match the work duties of each individual;
  o each user is associated with only one authorisation profile, on the basis of his role in the organisation and in compliance with the “least privilege” rule. In the event of user transfer or change of activity, a new authorisation profile will be defined, tailored to the newly assigned role;

• Segregation of duties:
  o different roles and responsibilities are assigned in respect of information security management; in particular:
- Assigning specific responsibilities ensures control over the areas of security direction and governance and planning, implementation, operation and control of the countermeasures adopted to protect corporate Information Assets;
- precise responsibilities for the management of security issues are assigned to the organisational functions responsible for developing and managing information systems;
- responsibilities and mechanisms are defined to ensure the management of abnormal security events and of emergency and crisis situations;
- precise responsibilities for preparing, validating, issuing and updating the security rules are assigned to corporate functions different from those in charge of computer security management;
  - the activities of implementing and modifying software, managing computer procedures, physical and logical access controls and software security controls are organisationally assigned to structures which are different from the users, to ensure sound management and ongoing control over the information system management and use process;
  - precise responsibilities are assigned to ensure that the software development and maintenance process, whether performed in-house or by third parties, is managed in a controlled and verifiable manner, following an appropriate authorisation process.

- Control activities: the management and use of the Bank’s information systems and of the Group’s Information assets undergo ongoing control activity by using appropriate information protection measures, so as to safeguard its confidentiality, integrity and availability, with particular reference to the handling of personal data, and by adopting for the overall set of corporate processes specific operating continuity solutions of a technological, organisational and infrastructural nature, able to ensure continuity in the event of emergency situations. These control activities also provide valid support ensuring traceability of all changes made to computer procedures, the identification of the users who have made such changes and of those who have carried out controls on the changes made.

The planned controls, set out in the relevant internal policies, shall be based on identification of specific activities targeting long-term management also of the aspects relating to protection of the Group’s Information assets, such as:
  - defining security objectives and strategies;
  - defining a risk analysis method for the Information Assets, to be applied to the company’s processes and assets, estimating the greatest risks the information is exposed to with regard to the criteria of confidentiality, integrity and availability; identifying appropriate countermeasures against the risk levels detected, monitoring and checking that such security levels are properly maintained;

- delivery of appropriate staff training on computer security aspects in order to raise their awareness of and alertness to the issue;

- preparing and updating security rules, in order to ensure their sustained applicability, adequacy and effectiveness;

- controls on correct application and compliance with the defined legislation.

The main control activities performed from time to time, and set out in detail in the reference internal rules, are the following.

With reference to physical security:

- protection and control of physical areas (perimeters/reserved areas) to prevent unauthorised accesses to, or altering or theft of information assets.

With reference to logical security:

- identification and authentication of user identification codes;

- authorising requests for access to information;

- provision of encryption and digital signature technologies to ensure the confidentiality, integrity and of stored of transmitted information and prevent its rejection.

With reference to the operation and management of applications, systems and networks:

- ensuring separation of the premises (development, testing and production) in which the systems and their applications are installed, managed and maintained, in order to ensure their sustained integrity and availability;

- preparing and protecting system documentation concerning configurations, customisation and operating procedures, to ensure the appropriate and secure performance of activities;

- putting in place of measures for software under development in terms of installation, management of operation and emergencies, and code protection, ensuring the preservation of the confidentiality, integrity and availability of the information handled;

- implementing actions to remove systems, applications and networks identified as obsolete;

- planning and managing the rescue of operating systems, software, data and system configurations;

- managing data storage devices and media to ensure their long-term integrity and availability by regulating and controlling use of the devices, equipment and all information assets assigned, and by defining procedures for the custody, re-use, reproduction, destruction and physical transport of removable data storage media in order to protect them from damage, theft or unauthorised access;

- monitoring applications and systems, by defining efficient criteria for the collection and analysis of the relevant data, in order to allow identification and prevention of non-compliant actions;

- prevention of malware by means of appropriate tools and infrastructure (including antivirus systems) and by assigning responsibilities and setting up procedures for the stages of installation, verification of new releases, updates and actions to be implemented when potentially damaging software is identified;

- formalising responsibilities, processes, tools and procedures for exchanging information by e-mail and through websites;

- adopting appropriate safeguards to achieve the security of telecommunications networks and supporting devices, and ensure the correct and safe circulation of information;

- establishing specific procedures covering the stages of system and network design, development and replacement, defining solution acceptance criteria;

- establishing specific procedures to ensure that any materials covered by intellectual property rights are handled in accordance with legal and contractual provisions.

With reference to application development and maintenance:

- identifying appropriate countermeasures and controls to protect the information handled by the applications, meeting the requirements of confidentiality, integrity and availability of the information handled, having regard to the areas and use procedures, integration with existing systems and compliance with the provisions of law and with internal rules;

- putting in place appropriate security controls throughout the application development process, to ensure their correct operation, including systems for restricting access to authorised persons only by means of tools, external to the application, for identification, authentication and authorisation.

With reference to the management of security failures:

- establishing appropriate reporting channels and procedures for promptly reporting incidents and suspicious situations, in order to minimise any consequent damage, prevent repetition of inappropriate conduct and initiate a response process which may also lead to declaration of a state of crisis.

- Process traceability including both the electronic and the paper trail:
the decision-making process, with reference to the management and use of IT systems, is ensured by full system-wide traceability;

- all occurrences and the activities carried out (including access to information, corrective actions performed via the system, for example accounting adjustments, changes in user profiles etc.), with particular regard to the actions carried out by privileged users, are tracked through systematic recording (log file system);

- all accesses to and exits from reserved areas by duly authorised staff who actually need to access such areas, shall be recorded by dedicated tracking mechanisms;

- all operations performed on the data shall be tracked, compatibly with current laws, in order to allow reconstruction of the responsibilities and of reasons for the choices made; moreover each Structure shall be responsible for filing and storing the documentation it has produced, also in telematic or electronic format, which falls under its competence.

Rules of conduct

The Bank’s structures, howsoever involved in the activity of management and use of computer systems and of the Group’s Information assets shall comply with the procedures set out in this protocol, the applicable provisions of the law, the internal rules and any provisions of the Group's Code of Ethics and Internal Code of Conduct.

Specifically:

- the Structures involved in the processes shall prepare and maintain a census of the applications that interconnect with the Public Administration or with the Supervisory Authorities and/or of their specific software in use;

- all persons involved in the process must be duly appointed;

- each employee/system administrator shall report to Top Management any security incidents (including any attacks on the computer system by external hackers), making available and storing all documentation pertaining to the incident and setting in motion the response and escalation process, which may lead to declaring a state of crisis;

- each employee is responsible for the correct use of the computer resources assigned to him (e.g. desktop or laptop personal computers), which are to be used solely for performance of his work duties. Such resources shall be kept with due care, and the Bank must be informed without delay of any instances of theft or damage;

- where third parties/outsourcers are to be involved in the management of the Group’s IT systems and Information assets and in the interconnection with/use of the software of the Public Administration or the Supervisory Authorities, the contracts entered into with such persons shall contain a specific declaration that they know the provisions of Legislative Decree no. 231/2001 and undertake to comply with them;

- the payment of fees or remuneration to any employees or external consultants involved is subject to prior authorisation to be issued by the organisational unit competent to assess the quality of service and the consequent appropriateness of the remuneration requested; in any case, no remuneration shall be payable to employees or external consultants where not fully justifiable by the type of work performed or to be performed.

With reference to the specific activity of "qualified certifier"

- at the time of signing the contract and handing over the electronic signature device each employee shall verify the customer's identity by demanding presentation of a legally recognised and valid identity document and, if the person acts on behalf of third parties, by verifying that he holds the required power of attorney;
- the operator must ensure the sound and prompt performance of the operations relating to the certificate (suspension, reactivation, revocation, renewal and PIN unlocking).

In any case, it is forbidden to engage/collaborate in or induce conduct which may belong to one of the types of offences covered by Legislative Decree no. 231/2001; more specifically, purely by way of example and without limitation it is forbidden to:

- enter without authorisation, directly or through another person, into a computer or telematic system protected by security measures against the will of the holder of access rights, also in order to acquire confidential information;
- access the Bank's or the Group's computer system or telecommunications system or part thereof, or databases or parts thereof, without holding credentials or using the credentials of authorised colleagues;
- fraudulently wiretap and/or disclose to the public through any information system, communications within a computer system or telecommunication system or between several systems;
- use unauthorised technical devices or software tools (viruses, worms, trojans, spyware, diallers, keyloggers, rootkits, etc…) able to hinder or interrupt communications within a computer or telecommunications system or between several systems;
- destroy, damage, cancel, alter or suppress information, data or software programs owned by third parties or endanger the integrity and the availability of computer information, data or software used by the Government or another public Entity or relating to them or howsoever of public interest;
• enter or transmit data, information or software in order to destroy, damage, make partly or totally unusable or hinder the operation of computer or telecommunications systems of public interest;
• hold, procure, reproduce or disseminate access codes or other suitable means of access to a system protected by security measures without authorisation;
• procure, reproduce, disseminate, communicate, or make available to others computer equipment, devices or software in order to illegally damage a system or the data and software contained therein or to assist the interruption or the altering of such system's operation;
• alter electronic documents by using another person’s electronic signature or by any other means;
• produce and transmit electronic documents containing false and/or altered data;
• carry out, through access to a computer network, unlawful conduct constituting breaches of intellectual property rights, including, for instance:
  o dissemination in any form of intellectual property not intended for publication or misappropriate their authorship;
  o copying, holding or disseminating in any form without being authorised computer programmes or audiovisual or literary works;
  o holding any means aimed at removing or circumventing software protection devices;
  o reproducing databases on media not marked by the Italian Society of Authors and Publishers (SIAE), disseminating them in any form without the copyright holder’s authorisation or in breach of the prohibition established by the maker;
  o removing or altering electronic information present in the protected works or appearing in their notices to the public on the copyrights applicable to them;
  o importing, distributing, installing, selling, modifying or using devices for unscrambling restricted access audiovisual transmissions, also where these are receivable free of charge.

The Heads of the Structures concerned have an obligation to put in place all systems necessary to ensure the effectiveness and the concrete implementation of the control and conduct principles described in this protocol.
7.10 Sensitive area concerning crimes against industry and trade and crimes involving breach of copyright

7.10.1 Types of offences

Introduction
Law no. 99 of 23.7.2009 – Provisions for the development and internationalisation of enterprises, and measures on energy – under a broad framework of initiatives to re-vitalise the economy and protect the authenticity of the “Made in Italy” label, and safeguard the interests of consumers and competition, has included a number of offences within the sphere of the liability of Entities, including certain offences introduced or reformulated by the same law. In particular, in the amended version of Legislative Decree no. 231/2001, Articles 25-bis and 25-bis.1 refer to offences set out in the Criminal Code relating to industry and trade¹, while Article 25-novies² - in order to strengthen the fight against intellectual property piracy³ and counter the serious economic damage it causes to authors and to the related industry – refers to offences set out in the copyright law (Law no. 633/1941). The offences in question are described hereunder.

Counterfeiting, alteration or use of distinctive marks of intellectual works or industrial products (Article 473 of the Criminal Code)
The offence is committed by any person who, despite being able to ascertain that trademarks and other distinctive marks of industrial products belong to other parties, counterfeits them, or alters the original marks, or uses counterfeit marks without having taken part in their counterfeiting⁴. Counterfeiting occurs where a mark is reproduced faithfully or its essential elements are imitated so as to appear authentic on initial perception. These are classified as material falsifications likely to harm public reliance on the fact that the products or services so marked come from the company which is the holder, licensee or concessionaire of the registered mark. According to case law

² Pursuant to Article 1 of Law no. 633/1941, intellectual works protected by copyright are those belonging to literature (including scientific and educational literature), music, the figurative arts, architecture, theatre, and film, irrespective of their form of expression. Computer software and data banks which by their choice of arrangement of materials constitute an intellectual creation of their author are also ranked as literary works.

³ The term “use” of the counterfeit marks means ancillary types of conduct, such as, for instance, placing on one’s products counterfeit marks which have been falsified by third parties. In other words, it concerns types of conduct different from either putting into circulation products bearing counterfeit marks, covered by Article 474 of the Criminal Code, or from those conducts specifically related to counterfeiting, such as reproducing another party’s mark in one’s advertising, in commercial correspondence, in websites etc.
marks still unregistered are also protected, where an application has already been filed, since such application makes it formally knowable. For this conduct to constitute an offence, it must be engaged in intentionally; intention may also exist where the author of the conduct, while not having the certainty that the mark has been registered (or that an application for registration has been filed), fails to implement the appropriate checks despite having reason to harbour such doubt.

The second paragraph punishes the conduct of counterfeiting, as well as the use, by another party who did not take part in the counterfeiting of patents, designs and industrial models belonging to others⁠¹. This Article too aims at combating material counterfeiting which, in this type of offence, concerns documents proving the granting of the patents or model registrations. On the other hand, violation of the rights of exclusive economic exploitation of a patent is punishable under Article 517-ter of the Criminal Code.

Introducing into the country and selling products bearing counterfeit marks (Article 474 of the Criminal Code)

Article 474 of the Criminal Code punishes the conduct of those who, not having committed the offences covered by Article 473 of the Criminal Code, introduce into the territory of Italy industrial products bearing counterfeit or altered marks or distinctive signs, or hold for sale, sell or howsoever put into circulation counterfeit products, if they are not already punishable for having introduced them into the territory of Italy. To give rise to this offence, the conduct must be aimed at gaining a profit.

The holder of such products may be punishable, in addition to the offence in question, also for receipt of stolen goods, if at the time of purchasing the products he was aware of the falsity of the distinctive signs placed on the product by his supplier or by another party. It should be noted that, pursuant to Article 25-octies of the Decree, the offence of receipt of stolen goods may also give rise to the administrative liability of Entities.

Infringement of the freedom of commerce or industry (Article 513 of the Criminal Code)

This offence, prosecutable on the injured party’s action, is committed by the exercise of violence against property or the use of fraudulent means to prevent or disrupt the operation of an industry or commerce, unless a more serious offence is committed (e.g. arson, or one of the computer crimes set out in Article 24-bis of the Decree). For instance, this offence has been deemed to occur by those who enter in their website’s source code – for the purpose of enhancing its visibility for search engines – keywords referable to a competitor’s enterprise or products, in order to divert such competitor’s potential customers.

Illegal competition through threats or violence (Article 513-bis of the Criminal Code)
This offence occurs when a businessperson carries out acts of competition using violence or threats. This provision, introduced into the Criminal Code by the anti-mafia law “Rognoni – La Torre” no. 646/1982, can also apply outside the scope of mafia-type criminal associations; its purpose is to combat acts aimed at preventing or limiting the market activities of competitors. The offence also occurs when the violence or threat is committed by third parties on behalf of the businessperson, or is not directly directed at the competitor but rather at his potential customers. Cases of such offences may include for instance: the threat of unfair damage to the participants in a public call for tenders in order to be informed of the contents of their tenders and submit a lower-priced tender; a threat to one’s customer to apply worse terms and conditions or revoke granted credits or, in relations with one’s supplier a threat to refrain from placing other orders in the event that the customer/supplier uses the services/supplies of a specific competitor.

Fraud against national Industries (Article 514 of the Criminal Code)
This offence occurs when harm is done to national industry by placing on sale or otherwise putting into circulation, industrial products with counterfeited trademarks or distinctive marks. The scope of the damage must be such as to harm not only individual enterprises, but the whole industrial economy of Italy.

Fraud in the conduct of commerce (Article 515 of the Criminal Code)
Unless the conduct gives rise to an offence of fraud, this offence is committed by a person engaged in commercial activity who delivers goods other than those agreed, or delivers goods which, while being of the same species as the agreed upon goods, differ from them as to origin, provenance, quality or quantity.

Sale of non-genuine foodstuffs as genuine (Article 516 of the Criminal Code)
The offence is committed by any person who sells or places on the market non-genuine foodstuffs, i.e. substances, foods and beverages intended for human consumption which, while not hazardous for health, have been altered by adding or removing elements, or have a different composition from that required.
Sale of industrial products with deceptive marks (Article 517 of the Criminal Code)
This offence is committed by placing for sale or otherwise putting into circulation intellectual works or industrial products bearing names, trademarks or distinctive marks\(^1\) likely to mislead the buyer about the origin, provenance or quality of the work or product. The offence occurs where the distinctive marks, also having regard to the other circumstances of the concrete case (price of the products, their characteristics, manner of placing for sale) are likely lead the consumers to confuse the products with similar products (but of different origin, provenance or quality) bearing a genuine mark. The provision aims at safeguarding correct commercial practices and is applicable in the alternative, where the conditions for the more serious offences set out in Articles 473 and 474 of the Criminal Code are not met. The provision includes cases such as the counterfeiting and use of non-registered trademarks, the use of containers or packages with original trademarks but containing different products, and the use of the trademark by the lawful trademark holder on products whose quality standards differ from those of the products originally bearing the trademark (the conduct does not constitute an offence where production is contracted to another company but the client controls compliance with his quality specifications).

Manufacture and sale of goods made by usurping industrial property rights (Article 517-ter of the Criminal Code)
The offence covers two different types of conduct. The first, prosecutable on the injured party’s action, occurs when any person, being able to learn of the existence of inventors or registrations held by other parties, manufactures or uses for industrial manufacturing purposes items or other goods, thereby usurping or violating an industrial property right. If the conduct includes the counterfeiting of trademarks or another of the conduct laid down in Articles 473 and 474 of the Criminal Code, the perpetrator might also be prosecutable for such offences.
The second type of offence occurs when a person, in order to make a profit, introduces in the territory of Italy, holds for sale, places for sale or otherwise puts into circulation goods manufactured in infringement of industrial property rights. If the goods bear counterfeit marks, Article 474, paragraph 2, of the Criminal Code shall also apply.

Counterfeiting of geographical indications or denominations of origin of agricultural food products (Article 517-quater of the Criminal Code)
This offence consists in counterfeiting and altering geographical indications or designations of origin of agricultural food products\(^2\) and, for the purpose of making a profit, introducing in Italy,

\(^1\) Article 181-bis, paragraph 8, of Law no. 633/1941 states that for the purposes of criminal law the SIAE mark is considered a distinctive mark of an intellectual work.

\(^2\) Pursuant to Article 29 of Legislative Decree 30/2005 the following are protected: “geographic indications and designations of origin which identify a country, region or locality, when they are adopted to designate a product that holding for sale, offering for sale and offering directly to consumers or putting into circulation such products bearing counterfeit indications or designations.

Making available protected intellectual works in telecommunications networks without authorisation (Article 171, paragraph 1 point a-bis, Law no. 633/1941)

Aggravated unauthorised use of protected intellectual works (Article 171, paragraph 3, Law no. 633/1941)

The first offence occurs when any person, without being authorised, for any purpose and in any form, makes available to the public a protected intellectual work, or a part thereof, by placing it in a system of telecommunications networks through connections of any kind. In certain specific cases – for cultural purposes or purposes of free expression and information, and subject to certain limitations – it is permissible to disclose others’ intellectual works to the public.

The second offence consists of the unauthorised use of others’ intellectual works (by means of reproduction, transcription, dissemination in any form, placing for sale, placing on telecommunications networks, public performance or representation, creative uses such as translations, summaries, etc.); this offence is aggravated by the harm to the author’s non-material rights. In this case, the conduct which already constitutes an offence is aggravated by the prohibition of publication imposed by the author, or by usurping authorship (plagiarism), or by deforming, altering or otherwise changing the work in a way that harms the author’s honour or reputation.

Both of the above offences apply in the alternative when the conduct is not characterised by profit-making aims, in which case the conduct would be punished, more severely, under the types of offence set out in Articles 171-bis and 171-ter.

Abuses concerning software and databases (Article 171-bis of Law no. 633/1941)

The first paragraph of the Article, which refers to computer software, punishes the conducts of unauthorised duplication and import, distribution, sale, holding for commercial or business purposes (hence also for internal use within one’s undertaking) and leasing, when such conducts concern software contained in media not bearing the SIAE mark (Italian Society of Authors and

1 See, for instance, Article 65 of Law no. 633/1941, which provides that current event features published in magazines and newspapers may be used by third parties, unless their reproduction has been expressly forbidden, provided their source, date and author are indicated.

2 Pursuant to Article 2 no. 8, of Law no. 633/1941 computer software in any form is protected, as long as it is original, which are an intellectual work of their author. The term software includes the preparatory materials for designing such software. Articles 64-bis, 64-ter and 64-quater of the above-mentioned law regulate extension of the software author’s rights and cases where the software may be freely used, i.e. the instances where reproductions or actions on the programme are permitted even without the right-holder’s specific authorisation.
Publishers). This offence also occurs when a person prepares, holds or exchanges any means aimed at removing or circumventing software protection devices.

The second paragraph, which concerns protection of a database author's copyright, punishes the permanent or temporary, total or partial reproduction of such database, by any means and in any form – on media not bearing the SIAE mark, and its transfer onto another medium, its distribution, public communication, presentation of demonstration, if not authorised by the copyright holder. This offence also covers the conduct of duplicating and reusing all or a significant part of the database contents, thereby infringing the prohibition imposed by the establisher of the database.

“Duplicating” means a permanent or temporary transfer of data onto another medium, by any means and in any form; “reusing” means any form of making the data available to the public, including by distributing copies, rental, or transmission by any medium and in any form.

All the above-mentioned conduct must be characterised by the specific intention of making a profit, i.e. achieving an advantage, which may also consist of saving costs.

Abuses concerning audiovisual or literary works (Article 171-ter of Law no. 633/1941)

This provision lists a long series of unlawful conducts – where committed for non-personal use and for profit-making purposes – concerning: intellectual property intended for television, movies, sale or rental of disks, tapes or similar media or any other media containing audio clips or video clips of musical, film or similar audiovisual works or sequences of moving images; literary, dramatic, scientific or educational works, musical or musical drama works or multimedia works. The punished conducts include:

- unauthorized duplication, reproduction, transmission or public dissemination using any procedure;
- the following conducts, engaged in by a person who did not take part in the unauthorised duplication or reproduction: introducing in Italy, holding for sale or distribution, placing on sale, supplying, screening in public or broadcasting on television or radio, or playing in public the unauthorised copies or reproductions;

1 Under Article 2, no. 9, of Law no. 633/1941, databases consist of collections of works, data or other independent elements, systematically or methodically arranged and which can be accessed by individuals using electronic or other means. This provision clearly leaves unprejudiced the separate protection granted to any copyright existing on intellectual works which may be present in the database. Articles 64-quinquies and 64-sexies of the law regulate the extension of the database author’s copyright and the cases where the database can be freely used.

2 The right of the establisher of the database are regulated by Articles 102-bis and 102-ter of Law no. 633/1941. The word “establisher” designates the party who made substantial investments in order to create, verify or presenting a database and who, independently of the protection granted to the database author in respect of the creative criteria according to which the material was selected and arranged, has the right to forbid the duplication or reuse of all or a significant part of the database contents. With regard to databases available to the public, for example by means of free online access, the users, also without the establisher’s express authorisations, may duplicate or reuse non-significant parts of such databases’ contents, in qualitative and quantitative terms, for any purpose, except where such duplication or reuse have been expressly forbidden or limited by the establisher.
the same conduct listed in the above bullet point (except for introducing in Italy and playing/screening in public) is punished when it involves the use of any media – even when not obtained by unauthorised duplication or reproduction – not bearing the required SIAE mark or which bears a counterfeit mark.

The following abuses are also prosecutable: the dissemination of services provided with unscramblers of encrypted transmissions; the trafficking in devices which enable unauthorised access to such services or products aimed at circumventing the technology safeguards preventing unauthorised uses of protected works; removing or altering electronic copyright notices present in the protected works or appearing in notices to the public; or importing or putting into circulation works from which the above-mentioned copyright information has been deleted or altered.

Failure to make communications or making false communications to SIAE (Article 171-septies of Law no. 633/1941)

This offence is committed by any manufacturers or importers of media containing software intended for sale who fail to provide SIAE with the data necessary to identify the media in respect of which they wish to avail themselves of exemption from the obligation to affix the SIAE mark. The offence also includes providing a false declaration of compliance with legal obligations to SIAE in order to obtain the SIAE marks to be placed on the media containing software or audiovisual works.

Fraudulent unscrambling of restricted-access transmissions (Article 171-octies L. no. 633/1941)

This offence is committed by any persons who, for fraudulent purposes, produces, imports, distributes, installs, places on sale, modifies or uses, also for personal use only, devices for unscrambling restricted access audiovisual transmissions, also where these are receivable free of charge.

---

1 Under Article 181-bis, paragraph 3 of Law no. 633/1941, without prejudice to compliance with the rights protected by the law, the SIAE mark need not be affixed to media containing software to be used solely via a computer and not containing any audiovisual works other than works created expressively for the computer software, and not containing reproductions exceeding 50% of pre-existing audiovisual works, giving rise to competition in their use for profit-making purposes.
7.10.2 Sensitive company activities

With reference to banking operations, crimes against industry and trade and crimes involving breach of copyright are more likely to occur in the following areas:

- in relationships with customers, having regard to the granting of financing or to provision of services to persons involved in the unlawful activities in question;
- in the participation in public competitive tendering procedures, with particular regard to unlawful conduct towards participants;
- in the procurement or use of products, software, databases and other intellectual works to be used in Bank activities or intended as gifts for customers.

A lower degree of risk is associated with the development and launch of new products, with management of the Group’s naming and trademarks, external communication or advertising and marketing initiatives, or with customer relationship management based on the principles of fair competition and correct and transparent commercial practices, and this by reason of the well-developed system of safeguards and control procedures already laid down in the sectoral legislation.

Accordingly, reference is made to the applicable protocols:

- Chapter 7.6.2.1 on “Financial fight against terrorism and money laundering”;
- Chapter 7.2.2.8 on “Management of the procedures for the procurement of goods and services and for the appointment of professional consultants”;
- Chapter 7.2.2.9 on “Management of gifts, entertainment expenses, donations to charities and sponsorships”;
- Chapter 7.9.2.1 on “Management and use of the Group’s IT systems and Information assets”;
- Chapter 7.2.2.1 on “Signing contracts with the Public Administration”; the above protocols contain processes, control principles and rules of conduct which are also aimed at preventing commission of the offences covered by this Chapter.

7.11 Sensitive area concerning offences against the environment

7.11.1 Type of offence

Foreword

Article 25-undecies of Legislative Decree No. 231/2001 identifies offences against the environment, for which, based on Community law provisions, entities are administratively liable.¹ These offences are described in the Italian Criminal Code, in Legislative Decree No. 152/2006 (Environment Protection Policy, hereinafter referred to as E.P.P.) and in various special laws, both classified as criminal offences, punishable in the presence of wilful misconduct, as well as contraventions² for which the presence of wilful misconduct is not necessary but where negligence is sufficient. These cases are the following:

Offences involving protected wild animals or plants or protected habitats (articles 727-bis and 733-bis of the Italian Criminal Code)
The capture, possession, killing or destruction of specimens pertaining to species of protected wild animals or plants shall be punishable, excluding cases where this is allowed by law or where the damage is considered negligible in terms of the quantity of specimens involved or in terms of the impact on the preservation of the species. Also punishable is destruction or damage that endangers the conservation status of a habitat inside a protected site. Community rules list the protected animal and plant species and identify the characteristics which impose that local laws classify a natural habitat or the habitat of species as a special protection area or special area of conservation.

Breach of rules regulating discharges (article 137, sub-articles 2, 3, 5, 11 and 13, E.P.P.)
Article 137 E.P.P punishes breach of the rules regulating discharges and, in particular, unauthorised discharges of industrial waste water containing specific hazardous substances, or in contravention of the provisions contained in the authorisation or notwithstanding its suspension or revocation, and discharges of hazardous substances beyond the established limits; breach of discharges restrictions on the ground, in groundwater and underground, except in the cases contemplated under articles 103 and 104 E.P.P..

Lastly, breach of rules prohibiting discharges into sea of hazardous substances by ships or aircrafts, as defined in international treaties is also punishable, save for discharges of rapidly biodegradable quantities for which a special licence has been issued by the competent authorities.

Breach of waste management regulations (article 256, sub-articles 1, 3, 5 and 6, 1st part, E.P.P.)

Punishable deeds are waste collection, transport, retrieval, disposal, sale or brokerage in the absence of the necessary licences, enrolment in the national Register of waste management bodies and notification to the competent authorities or in contravention of provisions included in the licences issued or communicated by the authorities or in the absence of the applicable requirements.

Moreover, unauthorised activities involving the creation or management of a waste tip, mixture of different types of hazardous waste either amongst themselves or with waste which is not hazardous and the deposit of hazardous medical waste at the place of production of a quantity exceeding 200 litres, or equivalent quantity, are also punishable.

Ground, underground, surface waters or groundwater pollution (article 257, sub-articles 1 and 2, E.P.P.)

The regulation punishes anyone who, having caused said pollution, does not inform the competent authorities and fails to proceed with site remediation in compliance with article 242 E.P.P..

False certification of waste analysis (article 258, sub-article 4, 2nd part, E.P.P.)

Whosoever provides false information on the nature, composition and chemical-physical properties of waste shown on the waste analysis certificate and whosoever utilises a false certificate for the transport of waste shall commit this offence.

Illegal shipment of waste (article 259, sub-article 1, E.P.P)

The regulation punishes whosoever makes a cross-border shipment of waste in breach of EU Regulation No. 259/93, which was repealed and substituted by EU Regulation No. 1013/2006.

Activities organised for the illegal trafficking of waste (article 260, sub-articles 1 and 2, E.P.P.)

This offence is committed by those who, for illicit gain, sell, receive, transport, export, import or, in any event, wrongfully manage significant quantities of waste. These shall not include sporadic events, but continuous activities for which proper means and organisation have been put in place. Highly radioactive substances shall constitute an aggravating circumstance.

False declaration on the origin of waste for SISTRI (article 260-bis, sub-article 6 – sub-article 7, 2\textsuperscript{nd} and 3\textsuperscript{rd} part - sub-article 8, E.P.P.)

Producers of waste and other persons involved in its management (sellers, brokers, collection or recycling consortia, persons undertaking collection or disposal operations) must participate or volunteer to participate in the IT system of control on the origin of waste known as SISTRI\textsuperscript{1}. In this respect, offences consisting in providing false information on the nature and characteristics of waste in order to obtain a waste analysis certificate to be entered in SISTRI, entering a false certificate in the system and using such certificate for the transportation of waste shall also be punishable.

The transport operator that uses a fraudulent hard copy of a SISTRI form, filled in for shipment of waste, is also punishable.

Breach of the regulations governing atmospheric emissions (article 279, sub-article 5, E.P.P.)

This regulations punishes emissions into the atmosphere resulting from factory operations which exceed the limits established by law or as fixed in the licenses or regulations issued by the competent authorities and when they exceed the limits prescribed to ensure good quality of air in terms of current regulations.

Breach of regulations governing sale and detention of animals or plants which are in extinction or of dangerous mammals or reptiles (Law No. 150/1992, article 1, sub-articles 1 and 2 – article 2, sub-articles 1 and 2 – article 3-bis sub-article 1 - article 6, sub-article 4)

Offences consist in the import, export, transport and retention of animals and plants in breach of Community and international regulations which prescribe special permits, licenses and customs certificates, and false declarations or alteration of the above documents. The law prohibits any detention of dangerous mammals and reptiles as listed in ministerial decrees.

\textsuperscript{1} SISTRI and article 260-bis of E.P.P were first repealed by Legislative Decree No. 138/2011 and then reinstated by Law No. 148/2011. By ministerial decree, waste which for the purposes of SISTRI must be considered as non-hazardous special waste must be identified; in this respect it must be pointed out that in terms of article 188-ter of E.P.P SISTRI it is not compulsory for producers of certain categories of special non-hazardous waste which employ up to ten workers.
Prohibitions concerning substances detrimental to the ozone layer (Law No. 549/1993, article 3, sub-article 6)

The law prohibits trade, use, import, export and retention of substances which are detrimental to the ozone layer as listed in the same law.

Pollution from ships (Legislative Decree No. 202/2007, articles 8 and 9)

Save as otherwise provided, this rule forbids commanders of ships, members of the crew, owners and ship builders from wilfully or negligently pouring into the sea hydrocarbons or harmful liquid substances transported in an unorderly manner.

7.11.2 Sensitive company activities

With reference to banking activities, the risk of committing offences against the environment could most likely arise in relationships with customers, with respect to granting loans or providing services in favour of persons involved in the illegal activities in question.

We cannot, however, exclude risks of directly committing illegal deeds concerning the production of waste, discharges, atmospheric emissions and ground pollution.

The protocol which lists the monitoring criteria and conduct criteria applicable to environment risk management is seen hereunder. This protocol is supplemented by company regulations which govern these activities.

Reference is also made to the protocols provided for in:

- Chapter 7.2.2.3. “Management of activities connected with the application for authorisation or the implementation of obligations vis-à-vis the Public Administration;
- Chapter 7.2.2.8 “Management of the procedures regulating provision of goods and services and professional appointments”, which include principles of control and conduct aimed at avoiding offences as defined in this Chapter.
7.11.2.1 Environment risk management

Foreword

This protocol applies to all the Bank's Structures involved in environment risk management. In compliance with its Code of Ethics which identifies protection of the environment amongst its standards of reference, Intesa San Paolo Group has adopted a specific Environment Policy. The definitions given in this protocol are aimed at ensuring the Bank's compliance with applicable regulations and principles of transparency, correctness, objectivity and traceability in carrying out the activities concerned.

Description of the process

With respect to environment risk, reference is made to the following processes:

Management of real estate and logistics:
- Territorial planning;
- Management and maintenance of real estate in the territory;
- Planning of works;
- Execution of works.

Management of legal obligations governing waste:
- Waste management.

Management of expenses and purchases:
- Purchase cycle;
- Delivery management;
- Sourcing.

Credit Management:
- Customer rating;
- Special financing transactions.

The operating terms for management of these processes are governed by internal regulations, developed and updated by the competent Structures, which constitute an integral and essential part of this protocol.
Moreover, part of the sites belonging to the Group have adopted the Environment and Energy Management System in compliance with UNI EN ISO 14001:2004 and UNI CEI EN ISO 16001:2009 whose application is presently being extended.

Monitoring Standards

The system set up to monitor the processes described above must be based on the following factors:

- Licensing levels defined within the process:
  - With respect to the purchase of goods and services, approval of the purchase request, appointment, signature of the agreement and issuing of orders shall be undertaken exclusively by persons duly empowered in terms of the system regulating assignment of powers and appointments in force which establishes the individual management powers by nature of expense and duty involved. Internal regulations define the said licensing mechanisms and provide information on the company members to whom such powers have been assigned;
  - All transportation of special waste must be accompanied by an identification form signed by the transport operator and, as far as the Bank is concerned, by persons duly appointed for this purpose;
  - Assignment to third parties - by suppliers of the Bank - of sub-contracted activities is contractually subject to the prior approval of the Bank structure which has stipulated the agreement and in compliance with the specific obligations in fulfilment of environment regulations.

- Separation of duties amongst the different persons involved in the environment risk management process. More specifically:
  - The operating Structures which are responsible for creating and managing activities involving services to individuals, buildings, maintenance, building and plant installation projects and other integrated services (e.g. toner supply, management of dispensaries etc.) are separate and distinct from the Structures responsible for consultancy on the evaluation of environment risks and on monitoring the measures suited to prevent and limit the same;
  - With respect to financing and advisory operations in Project Finance governed by the Equator Principles, the Structures responsible to ensure compliance with the applicable Equator Principles and the risks connected to social and environment matters are different from those responsible for the initial phase.
Monitoring activities:
- The register identifying special waste duly filled in and signed by the transport operator must be checked by the person responsible within the Bank;
- Sample checks on proper management of waste particularly special waste and, if present, hazardous waste carried out by the competent structures;
- Review of the proper management of waste by the contractor resulting from ordinary and extraordinary maintenance and from building restructuring. More specifically, the contractor is bound to retrieve all "refuse" accumulated during its work cycle and the Managers or persons duly appointed by the Operating Units where the works are carried out must inspect that the contractors have properly performed their duties ensuring that no waste products are left within the Bank premises;
- Monitoring the proper implementation, by suppliers, of property maintenance/cleaning services (building and persons etc) with particular attention to the proper keeping of maintenance logs on central heating and refrigeration systems as well as to regular maintenance reports drawn up by the suppliers to whom the said services have been subcontracted (e.g. reports on "leakage test" of reservoirs for storage of fuel);
- With respect to financing and advisory transactions pertaining to Project Finance regulated by the Equator Principles, the product desk and/or relations function must regularly check compliance with environment requirements and, where necessary, propose corrective measures.

Traceability of the process both from an IT standpoint as well as with respect to documentation:
- Use of IT systems supporting the operations, which ensure registration and archiving of data and information in relation to the purchasing process;
- Documenting all activities related to the process with particular reference to the proper maintenance logs on central heating systems and on refrigeration in compliance with the provisions of current legislations, particularly with respect to emissions;
- Preservation, as prescribed by law, (five years from last registration) of the register showing special waste and loading and unloading of hazardous waste;

Appendix: Bribery Act

The Bribery Act entered into force in the United Kingdom on 1 July 2011. This Act modified and supplemented the pre-existing legislation governing corruption, introducing, inter alia, a new liability upon entities for cases of corruption in their favour or in their interest, where such entities do not have in place adequate internal procedures to prevent said offences.

More specifically, English law set forth a homogeneous set of regulations governing corruption, based on four main types of offence:

- The first relates to the offer, the promise or the grant to others of financial or other type of advantage in order to obtain or compensate the illegal execution of activities or services falling within their purview of control or responsibility or that of third parties (the purview of activities are defined in the law both in the public sector as well as for private professional and commercial activities);
- The second type consists in requesting, receiving or accepting to receive such advantage (an attempt is also punishable);
- The third case concerns the crime of corruption of a foreign public official, extending application of relevant provisions to outside the United Kingdom;
- The fourth case is the "corporate offence" which consists of failure by the commercial company to adopt suitable measures to prevent corruption by "associated persons", which include persons who provide a service in the name and on behalf of the company, irrespective of the nature of the relationship between the person and the company. In cases where the person is an employee, unless evidence to the contrary is given, the person is presumed to be an associated person.

With particular reference to the last type of offence (Failure of commercial organizations to prevent bribery) it must be pointed out as follows:

- Bodies which do not carry out activities which fall under "business" are excluded;
- Only the conduct of the "associated person" is taken into consideration for the existence of the liability of the entity;
- The liability of the entity exists only if the associated person is guilty of an offence in terms of the Bribery Act (corruption of a private individual or of a public official);
- The entity could be exempt from liability if it proves to have adopted, prior to the offence, "adequate procedures" aimed at preventing corruption.
The Bribery Act provides that entities responsible for corporate offences shall be punishable by unlimited fines, while the persons committing the offence of corruption shall be subject to fines and imprisonment.

The Bribery Act is relevant to Italian companies insofar as it applies to all companies (whether British or not) which exercise their activities or part thereof in the United Kingdom.

Therefore, the Bank Structures, as well as all employees and those who carry out a service in the name and on behalf of the Bank and who work with British counterparts or, in any event, in the United Kingdom, besides respect for the provisions of the Code of Ethics, the internal Group Code of Conduct and this “Organisation, management and control model”, must also abide by the provisions of the Bribery Act and pro tempore internal regulations applicable to the London Branch in this respect (particularly the Anti Bribery corruption policy available at the Bank document repository).
